Staff Muzzled By Directive

By JIM HUME

Mayor Courtney Haddock today announced plans to reorganize Victoria city administration and at the same time sharply curb the flow of information to the public.

Interviewed this morning Haddock said he thought he would publicly announce his streamlining plans to the Victoria Rotary Club early this afternoon.

The mayor will propose that the city have a three-tier government comprised of a board of management, an executive committee and a board of governors.

The board of management, says Haddock, would be formed from all city department heads plus one or two elected officials.

The executive committee would consist of the city manager, the city comptroller "and possibly others."

Both board of management and the executive committee would be closed to the press, Haddock said.

Only at the board of governor level — Haddock's new name for city council — would the press be permitted to attend meetings.

"What I'm trying to do is reconcile my business training with effective administration at city hall," the mayor said. "Maybe it won't work. If it doesn't we can always try something else.

"What I'm striving for is total involvement of all departments so that one department knows what the other department is doing. It may take two or three meetings to make it work."

Haddock said the new administrative structure would not curb the traditional and statutory powers of city council.

"They will still be the policy makers," he said. "All the management team and the executive team will do is bring forward ideas. The board of governors will still decide whether or not to go ahead with those ideas."

Asked whether he thought the tax paying public had a right to know what debate led to decisions, Haddock said he thought the public would have ample opportunity to hear the facts when the matter came before the board of governors.

In addition to keeping from the public early debate on civic issues Haddock said that he had

HAPPY PASSENGERS disembark from P. & O. liner Oronsay today following two weeks of voluntary quarantine in Vancouver harbor after outbreak of typhoid fever made them virtual prisoners on board. Some of the 1,500 passengers and crew are to be airlifted to Australia and New Zealand, and the ship is to resume its cruise Monday.

Nigeria Jails Missionaries

LAGOS (Reuters)—A Nigerian court has sentenced 20 Roman Catholic missionaries—17 Irish and three British — to six months imprisonment for illegally entering Nigeria, reliable sources said today.

The 20 are among 32 missionaries being held in the eastern Nigerian city of Port Harcourt who worked in the former secessionist region during the 30-month civil war.

The sources said that because the 20 had been sentenced on a technical rather than a criminal charge it is expected they would be released within a week.

Two of the missionaries, who entered the eastern region before secession, were released, the sources said.

The others, including five nuns of the Holy Rosary and Presentations orders, were fined sums ranging from £10 to £50 Nigerian pounds (about $40 to $222), the sources added.

Roman Catholic sources in Lagos said the 32 missionaries were taken from the hotel and officers' mess in which they had been detained since the end of the war and were questioned Monday.

Each of the 30 sentenced signed a statement acknowledging that they had entered Nigeria illegally and worked without the approval of immigration offices, the sources said.

DEPORTATION ORDERED

Earlier, sources reported that all 32 would be deported and that all had been found guilty. The earlier report also said that they all were issued deportation orders at Port Harcourt and were expected to be put aboard a flight out of Lagos by Friday.

All the Irish priests are members of the Holy Ghost order.

Twenty-three of the missionaries were being held under house arrest in Port Harcourt's Cedar Palace Hotel, while the others were in enforced residence at a Nigerian officers' mess, the sourcs said.

Catholic sources in Lagos reported that 28 other priests, still working in the war-devastated region, have been ordered by the Nigerian military authorities to return to Port Harcourt and were expected to appear in the same magistrates' court.

Most of the Roman Catholic missionaries in former Biafra were connected with the Roman Catholic relief organization, Caritas.

The Associated Press said that in Dublin, the office of Prime Minister Jack Lynch said it learned 17 priests were given six-month jail terms. The other eight, it said, were fined $56 each but were allowed to remain at Port Harcourt.

'LEGALIZE DRUG IF WIDESPREAD'

OTTAWA (CP) — Health Minister John Munro said Wednesday that "if we find that a significant minority of the Canadian people smoke marijuana we would be totally irresponsible if we didn't legalize it."

Pressed by Carleton University students at the taping of the syndicated television program Under Attack, Munro said if the report of the government commission studying drug use reveals widespread use of marijuana, it should be legalized, even if that involves some health danger.

The parliamentary report of the commission, headed by Gerald Le Dain, dean of the University of Toronto law school, will be available "by the end of February," the health minister said.

Welfare End Forecast Again

Social Welfare Minister Phil Gaglardi promised Wednesday to "get rid of the whole basis of welfare" in an overhaul of his department's role.

Welfare recipients can look forward to being "useful," he told reporters in an interview after addressing the legislature in the throne speech debate.

In the four minutes devoted to welfare department matters during his 43 minute address, Gaglardi said "we want to challenge and utilize the talents and abilities of people."

Noting that the social welfare department would be renamed the department of rehabilitation, Gaglardi said:

"This rehabilitation business should be one of the biggest things ever to happen in the 1970s."

"The whole philosophy will be changed," he said, adding it wouldn't cost "a dime more."

DIGNITY

Outside the house, Gaglardi said it is important welfare recipients have "dignity and status" and added:

"The way to do that is to make them useful. That's all I want to say at this time."

Gaglardi told the legislature that 1,150 jobs have been found so far by the Provincial Alliance of Businessmen, an agency he has headed since mid-1969.

Given jobs were 350 people who were taken off welfare, said Gaglardi, adding that the others were probably "heading straight for the welfare department," if they remained unemployed.

In other remarks, Gaglardi stressed that the 1970s should be a "human era" in which people get together and solve their problems.

WHERE WERE YOU?

In a joking vein he said he wasn't worried about Prime Minister Trudeau "rattling around in a jet plane" and noted that some newspapers had defended Trudeau against use of a plane for personal purposes.

Looking up at the press gallery, Gaglardi asked: "Where in the name of common sense were you fellows when I needed you?"

One of the issues leading to Gaglardi's resignation as highways minister in 1968 was use of a government jet by family members.

The minister attacked the federal white paper on taxation as a threat to small business and the fabric of society and taunted the Liberal party for failing to defeat him in Kamloops in the August election.

He said a giant parade put on by the Liberals in Kamloops had some large gaps in it which were caused by cars leaving the parade, driving around a block and re-joining the end of the line.

Dow Jones Dips Further 10.49

Declining issues outpaced advances by four to one on Wall Street with the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials off 10.49 to 748.35.

SONIC RAID ON HAIFA

By United Press International

Syria said its warplanes streaked over Haifa today touching off sonic booms that caused "huge damage" in the Israeli port city.

It was the first time since the 1967 war that an Arab plane had penetrated Israel's air space and flown over one of its cities.

An Israeli military spokesman acknowledged the bombless raid but said it involved only one Arab jet fighter.

Israel's state radio said the sonic boom shattered windows in Haifa, about 60 miles west of the Syrian border.

Israeli Jets Hit Jordan

By The Associated Press

Israeli jets struck Arab guerrilla positions at three places in Jordan today, and the Israeli command said all the planes returned safely.

One 15-minute raid north of the Dead Sea hit near the village of Shunat Nimrin.

Two raids took place south of the Sea of Galilee in the Beisan Valley after an Israeli border guard and a soldier were wounded in exchanges with Arab guerrillas across the ceasefire line.

Witnesses said that moments later the jets dived out of the cloudless skies and hit guerrilla positions near a deserted Arab village.

Another Israeli patrol drew fire about five miles farther south and the planes went in again to bomb the guerrillas, the witnesses said.

Armed Shopkeepers Ruled Out by A-G

A proposal to arm British Columbia property owners and shopkeepers against holdups has received the cold shoulder from Attorney-General Leslie Peterson.

He said Wednesday he has no intention of extending the use of small firearms, following such a suggestion by Vancouver Provincial Judge Les Bewley.

"I am beginning to suspect," the judge said, "that if citizens and property owners were allowed to carry guns, crime would be greatly reduced.

"We can't expect police to do all the work, having so few of them," he said during the trial of a 19-year-old charged with attempted robbery.

The suspect, who pleaded guilty, had attempted to hold up a Vancouver shopkeeper with a toy gun. The merchant, 65-year-old Ernest Lavoie, pulled his own gun from a drawer and held the would-be bandit until police arrived.

Vancouver's city prosecutor Stewart McMorran was also cool to the suggestion from Bewley. He called it a "dangerous and disastrous" idea.

"There are too many incidents of people going for guns and getting shot themselves," he said. "Three people have died that way in Vancouver."

IN CYPRESS, SAYS LETTER

Benguet Still Involved

The New Democratic Party today released copies of a letter indicating that the Grand Bahama Port Authority, a subsidiary of Consolidated Benguet Inc., still feels it has an opportunity to develop Cypress Bowl.

Gordon Dowding (NDP — Burnaby Edmonds) said this morning he will ask in the legislature today how "this impression is still possessed" by Wallace Groves, chairman of the port authority.

Benguet, through the Bahamian company, was described by Resources Minister Ray Williston as an unacceptable partner in the development in a Nov. 26 letter he wrote to Alpine Outdoor Recreation Resources, original bowl promoter which was taken over by Benguet last fall.

Benguet's gambling casino interests in the Bahamas were given as the reason for their rejection by the government after a prolonged controversy over their involvement.

FULL-SCALE PLAN

The proposed ski development in the West Vancouver bowl was originally scheduled to have only hotel and alpine-village type accommodation but Benguet's plans apparently involved full-scale residential development as well.

Opposition Leader Dave Barrett released the Groves' letter, dated Jan. 16, after having failed Monday to get an answer from the government on whether Benguet had been told "that they are out . . . or are they still under the impression that they can go ahead."

Barrett said he wrote to Groves Dec. 2 to get more information on what Benguet had in mind for Cypress Bowl. He said today that he appears to have learned more from Benguet than the attorney-

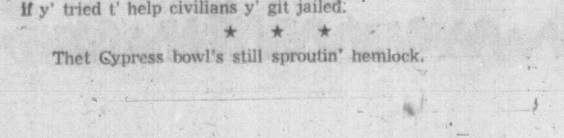
Three Men Indicted In Yablonski Death

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal grand jury today indicted Paul Eugene Gilly, Aubran Wayne Martin and Claude Edward Vealey on charges of conspiring to kill union leader Joseph A. Yablonski Dec. 31.

Attorney-general John N. Mitchell said the three were named in a seven-count indictment handed down in Cleveland.

Named as co-conspirators in an alleged plot to kill Yablonski, United Mine Workers leader who was defeated for the union presidency last year, were James Charles Phillips, Annette Gilly and other persons whose names are unknown.

Phillips and Mrs. Gilly were not actually indicted.



Whut's in a name? A board o' guv'nors by any other name would be as bored.

'Public Must Decide University Quality'

The president of the University of Victoria today called on the public to help decide the quality of its university.

Dr. Bruce Partridge also noted the economic benefits that Uvic has brought to the area, in a speech to the Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

"All I ask is that you make your decisions rationally," he told business leaders.

"Decide whether you want an outstanding university, a good university, a mediocre university or no university at all. Then face up to the costs — in tax dollars, in gift dollars, in the allowance of freedom, and in the development of understanding.

"If you want an outstanding university, that is a community resource in the best sense, let your government know it. And in honesty, I have to say that if you will be content with a mediocre or a weak university, you should let your government know that too.

"I think I know which you want. With your support, with freedom, and with understanding, we pledge to do our best to develop a great university."

PRIVATE DONATIONS

It was the obligation of the province to provide sufficient funds for development "of average or perhaps adequate universities."

But the public would not be satisfied with average universities.

"After the province provides the funds for the basic university, the difference between an average university and an outstanding university should be provided by private donations," he said.

The provincial government should provide funds to pay salaries which are reasonably competitive for good faculty members and then private donations should fill the gap to attract and keep outstanding faculty members.

Where does a university president usually learn of dissent within his university?

"I usually learn of such events when I read the paper at breakfast," he said.

One of the most frequent causes of misunderstanding about a university involves dissent, he said, and occasionally a faculty member or student says or does "something which some consider ill-advised, stupid or even so unorthodox as to be destructive.

He said he didn't think anyone wants "Canada to fall into the clutches of extremists, whether they are from the right or the left" as had happened in other countries.

"Our best insurance is to defend the right of individuals in universities to express unpopular views, as long as they are not expressed in such a way as to interfere with the rights of others," he said.

IRREGULARITIES IN CBC CITED

OTTAWA (CP) — CBC employees have been fired and prosecutions started for "irregularities" within the last two years, CBC president George Davidson informed the Commons public accounts committee today.

He did not specify the kinds of irregularities although he noted that the Commons broadcasting committee had questioned him last year on charges of "kickbacks."

"You haven't got 9,000 angels in the CBC," Mr. Davidson said in reply to questions from Harold Winch (NDP—Vancouver East).

Break in Main Closes Exchange

MONTREAL (CP) — A broken water main in Place Victoria on McGill and St. James Streets forced the Montreal and Canadian Stock Exchanges to close at noon today.

Firemen were called in earlier to pump water from the basement shopping area of the building.

Many parts of the 47-storey building were evacuated but the stock exchanges, located on the third and fourth floors, were kept in operation until noon.

Stock Exchange officials decided to close the exchanges when fumes from diesel pumps used to clear the water caused several employees to become ill.

general's department has in more than two months of investigation.

The attorney-general's investigation is not yet complete, Attorney-General Peterson said earlier this week.

The letter from Groves to Barrett said, in part:

"I certainly appreciate your interest in our proposed development of the Cypress Bowl area.

"Members of my staff are presently preparing a timetable and schedule of development, cost analysis, slope analysis and other related figures and estimates respecting our development of the Cypress Bowl area.

"On completion of the same I propose to provide the government of British Columbia with copies of the same."

The letter said copies would also be sent to Barrett.

Dowding said he would ask that West Vancouver send a full record of negotiations on Cypress Bowl to be tabled in the legislature.

DEAL WITH ALPINE

Resources Minister Ray Williston, asked about the Groves letter, said he had made himself clear to Alpine 26 letter.

"I have been dealing with Alpine, not Benguet," said the minister, adding that he has not written to Benguet.

"My letter speaks for itself," he said, adding that the apparent bankruptcy of a logger in the Cypress Bowl project seems to indicate that money isn't being made available through Alpine.

Alpine's takeover by Benguet was to provide financing for the recreational development.

Williston said there is nothing to prevent Benguet from submitting development plans to the government, to Barrett or to anyone else if it wanted.

ordered a directive to be sent to all department heads during the next two days ordering them to stop talking to the press.

"That's what council wanted," he said this morning. "That's a council decision. They asked me to send that directive out."

The request for the directive came from council members at a dinner meeting held at the Imperial Inn 10 days ago. No minutes were kept of the meeting.

Haddock said the directive would not cut the press off from technical information.

"Department heads can still talk to you about technical things," he said. "They can provide you with the answers you want. But council doesn't want them making policy statements."

The directive, over the signature of City Manager Dennis Young, orders department heads not to engage in discussions with the press on matters not yet decided by council.

Young declined comment on the directive this morning other than to confirm it would be going out shortly at council's request.

The first familiarization meeting of Haddock's management committee will be held Friday. All council members are expected to be present when department heads outline their duties, their department aims and their personal aims.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Cloud was general over the province through the night while rain occurred intermittently along the coast. Clear periods were quite extensive thought the southern Interior. Temperatures ranged from 33 at Vancouver to eight above at Fort Nelson and to a minimum at Cranbrook of zero.

The weather system now approaching the B.C. coast will weaken as it moves inland into the interior but will carry some snow inland. Behind this disturbance conditions will improve with some sunshine expected in the interior and only a few showers on the coast Friday.

The Weather and You

By CARL RIBLET JR.

It isn't often that we shiver in these days of adequate clothing, sufficient indoor heat and mostly good health. In fact, I can't remember the last time I shivered. Why do you shiver then when you do?

You shiver when the loss of heat in your body is greater than the production of heat. When you are cold enough to shiver, the act of shivering creates heat in your body by liberating energy from the contraction of its muscles.

If you are cold and you find that you don't shiver enough to get a little bit warmer, try this remedy proposed by a doctor: Do some of those isometric exercises, the ones in which you push against a wall with all your might or link your hands together and pull each away from the other. You should work up a little more body heat for more comfort.

Mail Code Ensures No Police State

By JOHN MIKA

The law against opening or tampering with mail before delivery is strictly observed here, postal and customs officials have told The Times.

So if anyone is receiving mail in that condition, they should inform the government agencies.

The officials outlined the statutory procedures followed to ensure the privacy of correspondence, one of the hallmarks in distinguishing between a free society and a police state where officials can open mail at will.

The question arose when the Times discovered two third-class long-overdue letters from England, containing cryptic crossword puzzles for publication, had been opened and then resealed with tape.

Resealed With Tape

Since then two more late-arriving letters have been received, the most recent being delivered Tuesday with a flap missing and the envelope bearing a Canada Customs clearance stamp.

In the interval, the Times learned and reported that an RCMP dog has been used occasionally to sniff foreign mail being examined by Customs in an effort to detect marijuana. The experiment was abandoned because it proved a failure, sources have said.

But the possible ramifications posed by the story have caused concern.

"Any suggestion of opening mail is viewed with a lot of alarm," director of Canada Customs port operations Don Smith said in an interview. "None of our officers has ever been accused of opening mail.

"I know my men and there is no doubt in my mind that they just wouldn't do that."

Section 39 of the Post Office Act says that all mail "becomes the property of the person to whom it is addressed" the moment it is posted by the sender and Section 41 makes it clear that Canada is no police state.

It says: "Notwithstanding anything in any other act or the law, nothing is liable to demand, seizure or detention while in the course of post, except as provided in this act or the regulations."

The main exceptions provided by the Post Office Act authorizes the specially-regulated undeliverable mail section to open letters for the sole purpose of a last attempt to discover how to forward or return mail; and permits the customs department to open parcel post matter from abroad if necessary to ascertain whether it contains dutiable or prohibited goods.

It is against the law for anyone — policeman, bureaucrat or citizen—to violate intentionally the privacy of correspondence between posting and delivery to the addressee, except for the undeliverable mail personnel.

The act sets a maximum penalty of a $3,000 fine and three years in jail for conviction of such an offence.

Strict observance of that decree is a cardinal principle of the postal regulations, Victoria Postmaster James Deans said.

When a first-class letter arrives at the postal sorting station in an open state—either as a result of damage in transit, ommission by the sender or inadvertent opening by a mistaken recipient—a special sticker is used to seal it and notify the addressee at the same time, Deans said.

Section 44 of the Post Office Act requires postal employees to submit to a Customs officer for examination "all mail from a country other than Canada containing or suspected to contain anything subject to customs" or prohibited.

And "a customs officer may open any mail, other than letters, submitted to him under this section, and may cause letters to be opened in his presence by the addressee."

Parcels Checked

Deans said customs maintains a section in the main post office building for this purpose and postal sorters routinely send it all foreign parcel post and some foreign mail which has not been processed in transit.

In practice, he said, the sorters handle ordinary looking letters from abroad in a routine fashion but turn over to the customs section any that are oversize or bulky which, to all appearances, could contain something else besides correspondence.

Smith said parcel post is opened by Customs routinely under the act to check for proper duty payments and the parcel then is stamped to notify the addressee of that fact.

Third-class letters, which must be mailed unsealed so they can be inspected, also are examined directly by customs as they see fit but sometimes the notifying stamp is not put on the envelope "because we don't want to deface the postal stamp as a courtesy to philatelists," he said.

First Class Never Opened

Suspect first-class letters, which are sealed, are never opened by the department, Smith emphasized.

In accordance with the law, a form is sent to addressee asking him to come to the customs section to pick up his mail, and open it in the officials' presence.

If the addressee cannot be found or refuses to accept the mail, it must be returned unopened to the sender or, if the sender's identity is not on the envelope, it must be handled as undeliverable mail

If the letter is opened and proves to contain dutiable or prohibited goods, the consequent procedures come into play—penalty assessment, seizure, destruction or prosecution as the case may be.

Both Deans and Smith said that the lawful customs scrutiny of incoming foreign mail is conducted with dispatch and causes no untoward delay in mail delivery.

As for the unmarked cryptic crossword letters in question, they could have been processed in one of three other arrival points besides Victoria and because they had no customs clearance stamps on them "no one will ever know whether they actually were opened or by whom," Smith said.

And a postal official pointed out that the sealing tape may have been wrongly applied by the sender—or by some considerate postal employee who thought the contents were in danger of spilling out.

Czech Reform Era Purge Complete

PRAGUE (Reuters) — Lubomir Strougal, a conservative former interior minister, today headed Czechoslovakia's new federal government as premier after an extensive Communist party shakeup swept away the last remnants of the Dubcek era of reform.

Strougal, 45, replaced Oldrich Cernik, a middle-of-the road politician who remained following the removal five months ago of reformers who backed former party first secretary Alexander Dubcek's dream of "communism with a human face."

The party shuffle also involved three new appointments to the 11-man ruling presidium of the party and the naming of a new federal cabinet.

Cernik, 49, was appointed premier at the height of the Dubcek reform campaign in April 1968. He kept his post after the Soviet-led Warsaw pact invasion of August, 1968, but switched allegiance to Dubcek's conservative successor, Gustav Husak. He remains in the cabinet as minister's chairman of the committee for technical and investment development.

Strougal has been a staunch backer of the Soviet Union since the invasion and, as head of the party's Czech bureau, he carried out a swift purge of the liberal press and reformist elements in the party apparatus shortly after the downfall of Dubcek in April, 1969.

MODERATES WEAKENED

Observers said the appointment of Strougal and the election of the three new party presidium members has weakened Husak's position, but the 57-year-old former first secretary of the Slovak Communist party has not lost his struggle to prevent the current purge turning into revenge-seeking.

The new men in the presidium—Prague party secretary Antonin Kapek, new Czech Premier Josef Korcak and Jozef Lenart, a premier during the hard-line Novotny era—now present Husak with less certain backing inside the 11-man presidium.

The resignations of Cernik, Slovak party leader Stefan Sadovsky, and Labor union boss Karel Polack eliminated three who all held office during the Dubcek liberalization period.

Who Should Go to College?

WHEN HE PUBLISHED "HIGHer Eduction in British Columbia and a Plan for the Future" in 1962, Dr. John B. Macdonald, then president of UBC, noted that "clearly the task and cost of meeting the requirements for higher education in the years ahead are of a new dimension." He outlined sources, public and private, from which a required $111 millions a year might be obtained for the estimated 37,000 British Columbia students demanding higher education in 1970-71.

Last September, Dr. S. N. F. Chant, in a discussion in Victoria of the future of higher education in British Columbia, addressed himself to the question of finance.

"Can the cost of higher education continue to escalate at its present rate?" he asked. "Not according to Dr. R. B. Bryce, deputy minister of national revenue and one of the country's most highly regarded experts in government finance." Dr. Bryce, said Dr. Chant, "recently informed the Senate Committee on National Revenue in Ottawa that the cost of university and college education in Canada will equal the country's total productive capacity by 1994 if current trends continue." Dr. Bryce had pointed out that while post-secondary education has been increasing at the rate of 20 to 25 per cent each year, the gross national product has been increasing by only 8 or 9 per cent.

The statements of Dr. Macdonald and Dr. Chant form significant background for an address delivered in Vancouver this week by Dr. Bruce Partridge, president of the University of Victoria. He found that university enrolment in British Columbia has increased at a fractionally lower rate than Dr. Macdonald expected—32,000 actual students against the projected 37,000. But, he added:

"I can only come to the discouraging conclusion that university budgets will continue to increase. Despite some efficiencies and cost savings we will find continued budget increases are virtually inevitable."

Quite obviously, in the last decade, British Columbians have been dealing in new dimensions with the costs of providing higher education. And if Dr. Bryce's forecast is correct, sooner or later there will come a limit beyond which post-secondary financing cannot go—if anything is to be left for other services required by the public.

No one familiar with the factors cited by Dr. Partridge as contributing to rising costs—population growth, the need for more complicated and sophisticated equipment, and higher charges for personnel and materials — will question his conclusion that bigger university budgets are in prospect if this province is to provide higher education for all who desire it, or can benefit from it.

More exacting entrance qualifications may be in the offing. Sooner or later the public, which ultimately pays the bill directly or indirectly, will have to consider what the qualifications should be, and what suitable alternatives can be provided for young people unable to gain entry to university.

One thing is clear: we cannot turn back the clock; education to higher and higher levels and skills is an integral part of life in our era and in the eras to come. Both for his own good and that of society, every person should have the opportunity—not necessarily given to him gratis—to attain the highest level within his capacity. Financing should be a means, not a determining factor.

Improving the Indian's Cake

MUNICIPAL AFFAIRS MINISter Dan Campbell's proposal that Cape Mudge Indians on Quadra Island incorporate as a municipality could become a model that might remove the handicaps of the reservation and give all Canadian Indians a chance to compete more effectively with the rest of their countrymen. Under the new arrangement any sewerage, water or housing developments would be financed by funds over and above those available through the federal Indian Affairs Department. Provincial services available under the Municipal Act would include such things as home-owner grants and home-purchase grants.

Ottawa supports the plan but the Indians are still hesitant lest adding provincial services would mean losing present federal aid. Even considering the new federal white paper on Indian policy, Mr. Campbell foresees no clash that would endanger historic Indian rights. Former federal justice minister Davie Fulton, who has been retained by the Indians to interpret the white paper, is also enthusiastic about the new concept.

As Mr. Fulton says, "Reserves have generally remained static and have not been developed to the complete benefit of the Indians." Municipal government would give Indians more control over local affairs. No longer would every proposal have to travel the circuitous route to Ottawa and back. In a sense the new plan would make Indians privileged citizens. They would still have their historic rights federally and more than a little provincial aid. If that sounds like having your cake and eating it, it should be remembered that the cake the white man has patronizingly handed out to the Indians has never tasted very good.

A Way of Life or Death

THE AUTOMOBILE MAY BE the life-blood of North American mobility but there is growing evidence that our worst polluter is poisoning the life-blood of human beings. In the United States 87 million cars pour more than 90 million tons of pollutants into the air every year. This accounts for more than 60 per cent of the sources befouling United States air, according to one study.

Carbon monoxide is the main culprit in automobile exhaust. It combines with the hemoglobin in the blood to form a substance which cannot carry oxygen from the lungs to the rest of the body. The average city's air is said to contain 100 times the amount of carbon monoxide in fresh air, if that scarce commodity can be found anywhere on the continent in 1970. Traces of the toxic gas, according to United States findings have turned up in the Colorado rockies and on the Alaskan tundra.

Victorians can be thankful for persistent winds and relatively low automobile density which makes the problem less severe here. A five-year Los Angeles study claims 20 million pounds of carbon monoxide are loosed on Los Angeles daily, killing trees, plants and lawns along freeways and doing an estimated 25 millions in crop damage each year. A University of California report on air pollution concludes. "The possibility exists that the concentrations in the California atmosphere by 1985 will have reached highly toxic, if not lethal, levels."

Even the exhaust control devices which were made mandatory on all 1968 cars sold in the United States are not the whole answer. University of California experts say the anti-pollution mufflers may reduce harmful emissions during the 1970s to 40 to 60 per cent of existing levels but in a decade or so pollutants will increase again with the population.

There is a complete solution: eliminate the gasoline engine. But North Americans have literally built an economy and a way of life on this technology. The cure might be as disruptive as the disease.

FROM QUEBEC

By RICHARD PURSER

Caouette Scrambles the Election Picture

EVERYONE can stand by for action. The general election in Quebec later this year is going to be a whopper, a classic, a barometer of the future; the most important ever held in the province. This was assured last weekend when Real Caouette's Ralliement des Creditistes, which has 14 members from Quebec in the federal parliament at Ottawa, decided to expand from the federal to the provincial field of politics.

Purser

The move means that the provincial election will be contested by four parties, a conglomeration reflecting Quebec's confused and conflicting trends. The result of such a battle is utterly unpredictable, but the most obvious possibility is the failure of any party to win a majority. The ruling National Union party is only slightly ahead of the opposition Liberals as it is, and the Liberals had predicated their expected victory on the swing of only a few seats.

But the addition of the Creditistes to the race as a fourth party alters the range of possibilites much more than did the earlier entry of the separatist Parti Quebecois as third party. Only slight inroads by either or both of the new entrants could result in a minority or coalition government and in bizarre balance of power combinations. And the splitting of the anti-separatist vote three ways could be a boon to the Parti Quebecois, which the two major parties had been hoping to relieve of the two seats it already has.

Seats by Conversion

These seats it has only by the conversion of members elected under other banners, including party leader and one-time Liberal cabinet minister Rene Levesque. The other is Jerome Proulx, who quit the National Union when the government insisted on preserving the right of parents to have their children educated in English if they choose. Mr. Proulx is about to be, or may already have been when this appears in print, chosen as Parti Quebecois candidate for the partly industrial, partly rural riding of St.-Jean, 25 miles east of Montreal. Mr. Levesque is still looking for a safe refuge. His present riding of Laurier, in Liberal-oriented Montreal, is questionable since he changed colors.

Assuming that Mr. Proulx manages to get elected on his strength as a locally well-known sitting member and that Mr. Levesque also wins a seat as the closest thing Quebec has to a charismatic political leader, the new four-way split opens up possiblities for at least three other actual, or possible, Parti Quebecois condidates: Antonio Flamand, who also quit the NU over its position on education, did not join the PQ, but said he would run again in his northeast Quebec riding only as a candidate for that party; Jacques Parizeau, the PQ's resident economist; and possibly Pierre Bourgault.

Special Case

Here is a special case, Mr. Bourgault, formerly one of Quebec's most extreme left-separatist firebrands as head of the Rassemblement pour l'Independence Nationale, which now is merged into the PQ, has become the party's candidate in the Montreal riding of Mercier.

Mercier is the riding of the new Liberal leader, Robert Bourassa.

This will be quite a contest. Mr. Bourassa, when he entered politics there in 1966, squeaked through to a seat in the National Assembly by 7,500 votes, only a few hundred more than the NU candidate. But the RIN, which ran for show in Mercier, gained more than 3,000 votes — an impressive figure considering that Mr. Bourgault's old group was much more radical than the present PQ.

Furthermore, Mercier is the most solidly French-speaking of any riding in Montreal — more than 95 per cent — and has a distinctly working class population to whom the wealthy, intellectual Bourassa with his arid platform style might be made to appear quite austere in comparison with a passionate, populist orator like Mr. Bourgault.

A Bourgault upset over Mr. Bourassa would be spectacular even if the PQ won no other seat and the Liberals won the election hands down.

So the PQ can at least think about winning up to five seats. This isn't much in a 108-seat house, but it could prove important in a four-party numbers game.

Now, what of the Creditistes themselves? Mr. Caouette predicted that his party would win 25 seats and the balance of power, effectively demolishing the NU in the process. Such predictions are of course meaningless at this stage, but the Creditistes do draw their strength from much the same sources as the NU — rural, conservative and traditional. The party is in a sense even more conservative than the NU, genuinely fearing the separatism that the NU disavows while always appearing to hold it out as an ultimate threat against Ottawa, and particularly concerned with such things the continued domination of education by the Roman Catholic church, now under heavy sniping from other quarters.

The Creditistes will in due course be holding a convention to choose their provincial leader. Here is the big question. Everyone from Mr. Caouette on down wants Claude Wagner, defeated earlier by Mr. Bourassa for the Liberal leadership.

Mr. Caouette predicted that with Mr. Wagner as his provincial chief, the Creditistes could even capture power in the next election, expected about October. This may be a bit far-fetched, but Mr. Wagner's possible defection from the Liberals and accession to the Creditistes would be bound to have a powerful effect. It would certainly aid the Creditistes in soaking up the expected protest vote against both "old parties" which other wise might go by default to the PQ.

The authoritarian-minded Mr. Wagner, who displayed somewhat messianic tendencies at the Liberal convention, considers himself the man of the people and that the people were robbed at a Liberal convention rigged by the establishment. The Creditistes consider themselves the party of the people.

The alliance would be natural, and it may yet happen. Mr. Wagner is expected to maintain his post-convention silence on his future until after Mr. Bourassa returns from his southern vacation for further discussions at the end of the week. Mr. Caouette may have gotten there first.

Letters

Harmful to Labor

The White Paper proposals are most harmful to labor. Taxes will increase for anyone in the $8,000 to $14,000 bracket, and many are in this bracket as fringe benefits are included in income.

The heavy inheritance tax threatens all old employees in small business, as these are the first to go in a business takeover, and takeovers will be necessary as heirs must sell to Americans or other strangers to pay this tax.

The removal of $600,000,000 from savings in the form of extra taxes per year (Mr. Benson's own estimate) for unstated and dubious government purposes will be a severe blow to new production and jobs in Canada. Labor has much to fear in these proposals.

The saving in taxes in the lower brackets is illusory as the proposals are inflationary and will soon cancel out the small reduction in taxes.—M. P. Paine, 3620 Quadra.

Canada Should Protest

The Victoria Voice of Women welcomed President' Nixon's declaration in December to renounce any germ warfare, and his promise to destroy existing U.S. stockpiles of bacteriological weapons.

However, we soon will have four shiploads of deadly nerve gas travelling along our shores en route from Okinawa to Oregon. To what destiny? And what of our destiny?

A panel of experts recruited by the World Health Organization reports that public health and medical authorities would find themselves virtually helpless to protect civilians from the horrors of chemical and biological weapons. Yet these same deadly gases will pass through our waters soon—capable of unleashing the most horrendous sickness and death.

Canada, in co-operation with the U.S. continues to conduct chemical and biological research at Suffield, Alta. and Shorley Bay, Ont., and yet surely we are in a unique position to stop this research into death and press for life research if we are a country dedicated to the preservation of humanity. Canada must protest the proposed shipment of gas, but must also end the hypocrisy of researching this material in our own country. The professional knowledge of the personnel carrying on this research is pertinent to some of Canada's and the world's most pressing problems in environmental pollution and public health, so that the incident of this shipment must be seen in a much larger perspective.

The economic and social betterment—even survival—of mankind demands the careful application of all our resources; we cannot afford to squander them for destructive purposes. Our government must, for us, protest this deadly shipment, and must cease all research into death, not only for us, but for the unborn generations of the future.—Mavis DeGirolamo, Victoria V.O.W. President.

Britain Gains, France Loses in Nigeria

AMONG non-African powers the only clear-cut winner in the Nigerian civil war was Britain and the only clear-cut loser was France. Russia gained while the fighting was on and its prestige is currently very high but this will probably diminish as construction succeeds destruction. The United States, by playing it cool, maintained a good diplomatic position in Lagos without incurring the anger of pro-Biafran former French colonies like Gabon and Ivory Coast.

Sulzberger

China wasn't directly involved. It lost in the sense that chaos and anarchy benefit Peking's extreme racist and revolutionary concepts but China has been recently inactive in most of Africa.

Portugal, which aims at Chinese goals from the far right instead of the far left, did all in its limited power to keep Biafra going. It also sacrificed position but this is not of much importance. Israel praised Biafra and is going to pay for it in UN votes. The rest of the world didn't end up plus or minus. The Swedes got moral satisfaction from their dashing pilots with Biafra. South Africa and Rhodesia played both ends against the middle.

Moscow showed in Nigeria that it had learned from its Congo experience. It pursued a cautious policy of selling arms to Lagos for cash and backing law, order and the majority will as expressed through the Organization for African Unity. Pro-Soviet feelings consequently grew in Nigeria and in the O.A.U. but now that the fighting is over it is logical to anticipate a decline in Russian influence. The far more experienced British can play the African game better — above all with American support.

Angry as they were at Portuguese meddling and the use of Sao Tome as Biafra's supply line, the loss of face to Africa's lost colonial power is unimportant. Nigerians concentrate their fury on France.

French policy in Nigeria, laid down by de Gualle, paralleled French policy in the Congo. In each case it sought to pry loose from an "Anglo-Saxon" zone of influence huge and prosperous chunks—Katanga, with its copper and uranium, from a pro-American Congo, and Biafra, with its oil, from a pro-British Nigeria.

This wan't based on anticipation of gain in mineral wealth so much as on hope of a realignment in West Africa to strengthen the shaky position of former French colonies. Such an effort could only be made with provinces that were self-supporting, like Katanga and Biafra.

While France slipped arms into Biafra from its West African satellites, its most important activity was political. French propaganda and French diplomacy encouraged the Biafrans to adopt a hard line and refuse compromise.

In the summer of 1968 a French Cabinet statement came near to recognizing Biafra. De Gualle expanded the pledge just before the abortive cease-fire conference in Addis Ababa. Biafra's Gen. Odumegwu Ojukwu was deliberately encouraged to think he had a good hand and should play it tough.

French Scapegoats

The results are what might be expected. Lagos radio has been hammering Paris and announces: "History will never pardon France." The French are being made official scapegoats for Ojukwu's last-ditch stand. Nigerian broadcasts proclaim that France has "every reason to go into mourning and cover its head in ashes."

As a matter of fact the Pompidou regime, which succeeded de Gaulle, had already begun to tone down its interest in Biafra just as it started to soften the degree of French concern in other distant areas from French Canada to Southeast Asia. More modest, less pretentious and more realistic than its predecessor, the present Government focuses foreign policy attentions closer to home — on Europe and the Mediterranean.

The Nigerian victory ends French hopes of getting into that fast-developing petroleum pool. This in turn heightens French interest in gaining a bigger share of Mediterranean oil, particularly Libya's. France is uncomfortably aware of its dependence on accessible fuel — a dependence made plain in 1956 after the Suez campaign. Libya's oil, like Biafra's, is largely sulphur free and doesn't pollute the atmosphere.

Now that the civil war is over, the status quo of West Africa has been reaffirmed. With this comes a gain in British prestige and a clear loss for France, whose diplomatic interest had already started to retreat.

Looking Back

From the Times of Jan 29, 1910.

James J. Hill, one of the first to issue a warning against national extravagance, said today that half the problem of the high cost of living lies in the direction of the housewife.

"If a housekeeper," said Mr. Hill, "instead of standing in front of a telephone to order the family supplies, would go to the market and learn what foods are cheapest and what are dear, there would be less of this kind of talk."

Those Swedes Have Taken Us Again

By MARTIN O'MALLEY

TORONTO — The film I Am Curious (Yellow) left Norman Mailer with a feeling of awe. When I walked out of Loew's Theatre yesterday afternoon I felt like I did one night 15 years ago when I went to the Red River Exhibition in Winnipeg with $5 and blew it all in half an hour at the crown and anchor booth.

Empty. Humiliated. Of course that's the difference between me and Norman Mailer. He could blow his $5 at the crown and anchor booth and walk away and describe the experience as existential. "The film has a moral authority," he said. Good grief, that man has a keen mind.

It was 11:30 a.m. when I arrived at the box office. There were four people standing in front of the theatre, looking at the pictures, reading the New York Times review on a placard ("... deeply disturb the emotionally right-wing moviegoer who has grown up in the comforting tradition of movie houses in whose ceilings little stars twinkled and clouds did everything but rain"). When the box office opened at 11:45 a.m. about 40 people were in line.

Across the street, in front of Eaton's of all places, a photographer, a radio reporter and an old man with a cane were looking our way and chuckling. "The wife?" asks a man. "I don't care about my wife; I just don't want the boss to see me in any picture." People walked by giggling and smirking. "What are they doing?" asked a well-dressed young man employed at Heintzman Pianos and Organs. "Handing out dollar bills?"

Ahem. To the box office, $2.50, through the door—hurry up!—tear the ticket, front and centre. The red-trimmed, 1,635-seat theatre is nearly half-filled by the time I Am Curious (Yellow) starts, after a rather engaging Canadian film about two pairs of feet.

Okay, okay—they do it on the floor, at the palace, in a tree and in the water. (It reminded me of the joke about three boys, English, American and French. "But he is biting her," said the English boy. "No, they are making love," said the American. "And zey are doing it varry bad-lee," said the French boy.) And you see all of her and all of him and you wonder what the mystery was all about.

A little girl with a portable tape recorder (just like in the movie) was doing on the spot interviews in the lobby after the show. A loud young man with a beard shouted, "The Swedes have taken us again. It's a put-up job, a come-on." He looked solemnly at a new line of customers streaming in and shook his head and muttered, "I really feel sorry for those people . . ."

"Phoney."

"Lousy."

"Stinks."

"Boring."

"Awful."

"She was fat!"

"He didn't even have . . ."

And so it went. I walked a few doors down the street, to the Honey Dew, and had a coffee and a doughnut and felt clean again. They didn't have any Honey Dews at the Red River Exhibition 15 years ago.

Robert Stanfield Goes Mod

By IAN MacDONALD

OTTAWA — Who is that in the bright colored shirt and the smartly-cut coat with the 1970 flair?

The man with an unfulled desire to meet No. 1 Beatle John Lennon, the firm conviction that pot is not a narcotic and needs understanding, and the possessor of an ambivalent view on the use of government airplanes?

Why, it's Robert L. Stanfield, also known at times to the irreverent as "big thunder," official leader of the opposition, man of frozen mien but warm interior, and the scourge of the dinosaurs in his party ranks.

Now, this is not to say that Stanfield could be easily mistaken for Dustin Hoffman even in his new look—the work of several of his aides to get him to create an outward impression other than that of a squall over Halifax harbor—but there's no doubt that the Tory top man is adopting a more mod mode of life, and apparently enjoying it.

Annoys Some

While Stanfield still has a long way to go until he becomes a household word across Canada, if ever, he is proving more and more that he will not bow to pressure to garner popularity, or try to make short term political gains by lending himself to a view with which he does not fully agree.

And this is annoying and baffling some of his supporters, the parliamentary jugular-vein group—the same breed is in all parties—who prefer the claw-and-tear approach to any other.

It's a change from the days of John George Diefenbaker, and one that makes life easier for Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau than it was for his predecessor Lester Pearson, who wound up time after time wounded and scarred from Diefenbaker's attacks.

When Trudeau recently occupied a quiet spell before Christmas with a visit from Chief Beatle Lennon, and wife Yoko Ono, some of the Tory dinosaurs saw this as a front of attack.

Trudeau was intrigued by Lennon, the influence that today's pop artists have over youth, and the Beatle's views on youth and its problems in general. However, the dinosaurs thought it disgraceful that the prime minister should receive his hippie-type individual, and saw it as an issue.

But Stanfield, possibly prompted to some extent by some of his staffers, killed the question by noting that he too would like to have met Lennon.

During his Christmas holiday in Switzerland, a French paper quoted Trudeau as saying that if the committee found marijuana no more harmful than tobacco, it should be legalized.

However, his press spokesman maintained later that all he had said to a reporter was that the government would have to study and consider the committee's recommendations when they are produced.

But, some of the Tory backbenchers jumped on the first story and made the expected noises.

And Stanfield now has pretty well killed this avenue of attack by noting on a recent trip to Vancouver that he doesn't believe pot is a narcotic. He also went on to say that the health department and the Commons should await the committee's report before making decisions.

Wanted Red Baron

Then there was the storm-in-a-cumulus-cloud about the use of government aircraft by the prime minister. It was raised by a Toronto paper, maintaining that Trudeau was using the transport department Jetstar for other than official purposes.

The opposition backbenchers again saw this as a front for assault, and were prepared to swarm in behind Stanfield in a Red Baron role as he flew into the attack.

But again he perplexed them by noting that the prime minister is in a special position. It is a fuzzy area—although he noted that purely personal trips were something else again—and that he did not intend to raise it in Parliament.

Which shot down his followers, but kept Trudeau flying.

His office keeps maintaining that any day now a new Stanfield is going to burst forth, meaning more than his snappy new threads.

But time will tell. Stanfield is obviously more at home in the Commons, although his delivery and timing still leave a lot to be desired. And yet, strangely enough, at the annual press gallery dinner, a frothy and somewhat frivolous affair, his speech was stolen the limelight in his two appearances from Pearson and Trudeau.

Be this as it may, in Parliament, so far, he has shown a sense of responsibility and a broad perspective, and in this, both Trudeau and the country are fortunate.

Darwin's Evolution Theory Still Suspect in California

By CHARLES FOLEY

LOS ANGELES—The century-old controversy over the theory of evolution and the Biblical version of creation is alive and well in California. Conservative members of the State's Board of Education recently complained that "evolution appears to be stated as a fact" in guidelines for science teaching in elementary schools.

Equal time, they said, should be given to other theories of man's origins — meaning the account given in the Book of Genesis — in teaching science.

Ignoring the ghost of the 1925 "monkey trial", California's Public Instruction Superintendent, Max Rafferty, lent his support to the fundamentalists' view. But educators, reported the Los Angeles Times, were left "speechless."

Well, not quite. A University of California biologist, Dr. Ralph Gerard, who hoped to formulate the state's new science curriculum, asked: "If both views of man's origin are to be presented, and the children allowed to decide for themselves, should we not also mention the stork theory in science courses on reproduction?"

This sort of remark was poorly taken by such board members as Dr. Thomas Harward, a physician who affirmed his belief in the Biblical version and added: "You people should try to find out more of a scientific background of creation . . ."

Dr. Gerard, who is also a world-famous physiologist, then told the Board: "I know of no responsible person who has examined the evidence who questions that species arose by a series of changes from ancestral ones."

For weeks the battle raged. College professors said that times had changed since the day 44 years ago when John Scopes, a biology teacher, was fined $100 for violating a Tennessee law that barred the teaching of Darwin's theory, first published in 1859.

They pointed out that last year the U.S. Supreme Court had thrown out a similar, 40-year-old Arkansas law, and that Tennessee itself had repealed its anti-Darwin legislation in 1967. In California, the Attorney-General's office declared in 1963 that evolution could be taught in schools, as long as the young were not "indoctrinated" with the idea.

There was nothing intrinsically atheistic, in teaching the theory of evolution, said educators; Darwin himself was a firm believer in the Christian faith. And the concept expressed in Genesis was taught elsewhere in the school curriculum.

One local school board, at Palo Alto, went so far as to pledge itself to seek court action to prevent "the teaching of religious beliefs or their presentation on an equal basis with scientific knowledge."

The conservatives struck back at this "misleading and intemperate" proposal. And, since they dominate the Board of Education, a new statement was issued saying that scientists relied on "speculation and conjecture" about the origin of the universe, matter and man, for "no-one was there to record these events."

The statement added that the board did not want to downgrade anyone's theories, but to "expand the horizons of scientific inquiry."

But support for the fundamentalist viewpoint in some Californian schools runs deep. Mrs. Ollie Cotterell directs evangelical Protestant classes attended by some 5,000 children in Los Angeles.

If someone raises the question of evolution, she says: "Boys and girls sometimes act like monkeys, but I can prove from the Bible that we didn't start as monkeys." She then tells them the creation story as it is in the Bible, with no further reference to evolution. "Children in elementary grades," Mrs. Cotterell explains, "simply accept what we teach."

It is usually the Protestant churches, evangelical or fundamentalist, that come out most strongly against evolution. The Roman Catholic Church, the Methodists and other main bodies generally find it easier to reconcile Darwin's theory with Genesis.

Interestingly, it is the most determinedly anti-Darwin churches, such as the Southern Baptists and the Mormons, which show the fastest rate of growth in membership. A recent survey of all denominations, conducted by the Los Angeles Times, indicates that around 1,500,000 believers in this state are "creationists."

As a movement, they are well-organized and often have representation at education board meetings. One such group is the Creation Research Society. Members are scientists who believe in the creationist idea. They claim that their influence was at work when the state of Texas recently "pulled out evolutionary books in schools and replaced them with less evolutionary ones."

The Society's 1,000 voting members range from the aerospace industry to the life sciences. Their efforts are publicized over some 40 radio stations in daily and weekly programs put out by the Bible Science Association.

Among their allies is the only clergyman on the board, the Rev. Don Moomaw, whose Presbyterian congregation includes Governor Ronald Reagan and his family. Mr. Moomaw has often made his commitment clear, complaining of "efforts to leave out some areas of religious concern" from text books and curriculum.

So far Governor Reagan himself has kept a safe distance from the dispute. After all, it is election year.

Skeleton Shrimp a Deadly Hunter

By DR. CLIFFORD CARL

Among the amphipods, the group to which the sand hoppers and their relatives belong, here are a number of highly modified forms designed for living in special habitats. Some of these differ so much in appearance they are hardly recognizable as amphipods; it takes a close look to determine their true nature.

A good example are the skeleton shrimps, a group of curiously shaped crustaceans commonly found clinging to sea weed and other marine growths attached to rocks and piles. In shape, posture and color these creatures look for all the world like a short branch of the growth they are sitting on.

The thorax, head, feelers and front pair of legs are much elongated and each animal clings to its support by hind legs which allow the body to sway in the current like another piece of seaweed.

In actuality skeleton shrimps are voracious predators; small creatures coming within range are captured by a quick thrust of the grasping arms at the front end and then eagerly devoured.

When disturbed they creep to more secure positions in a series of bowings and scrapings which may account for the name Aunt Fannys given them by some observers. The more usual term, skeleton shrimp, of course, refers to their general appearance and is indeed most suitable for such a bizarre creature. Technically they are known as Caprellids; many species are known throughout the world and they are often locally abundant.

A less well-known type of amphipod might be called a "glass shrimp" because it is so transparent that it is well-nigh invisible in life. When dead it becomes milky white and somewhat opaque revealing the characters which distinguish it as a relative of the sand hopper.

When alive this creature swims actively in the open sea presumably at great depths. This assumption is based on the fact that the few specimens that have been collected in the open have been caught in nets lowered as deep as several hundred fathoms and also on the fact that the eyes of this amphipod are tremendously enlarged—a feature characteristic of animals living in subdued light. In fact the eyes are the most conspicuous part of the animal covering the entire front of the head like huge multi-lensed head lamps.

Surprisingly this deep-water amphipod has turned up on Victoria beaches on at least two occasions in the past. In both instances the animal was found cast up on the shore and still alive. Surprisingly, too, each was a different species and neither was previously reported from Canadian waters.

The larger of the two was about three inches long, which is gigantic for the group as a whole since most members are well under an inch in length. Presumably they had been brought to the surface by upwelling currents and carried into the straits by tidal movement.

The outstanding adaptation of these open water amphipods is their transparency which makes them practically invisible no matter from what direction they are viewed. They are thus able to drift or swim at any depth in the sea with little danger of being spotted by a predator and because they are fully supported by the water they attain a much larger size than their relatives.

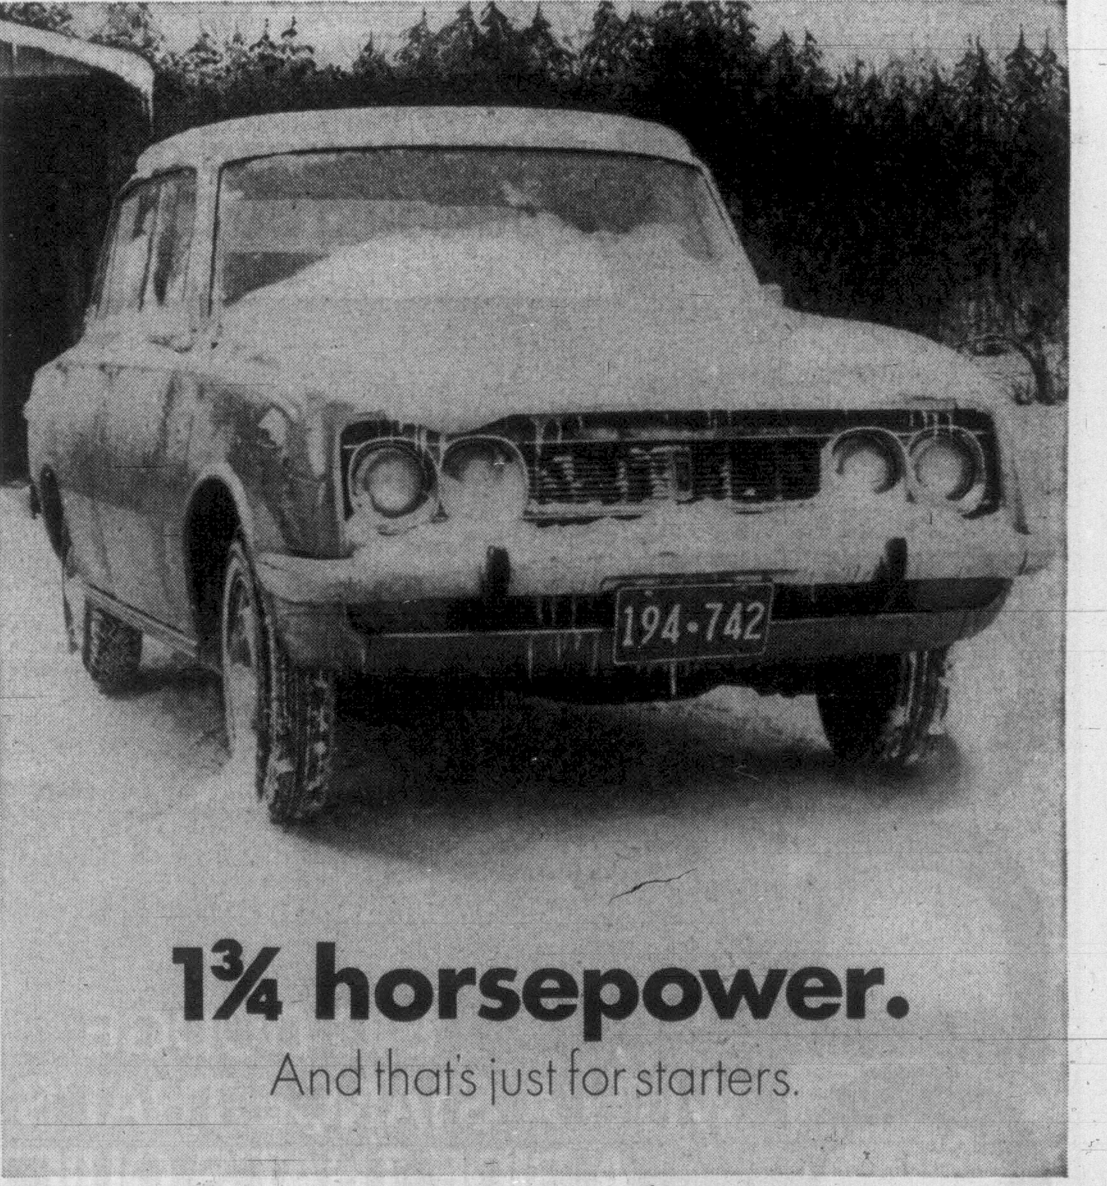
Another example of remarkable adaptability found in this group is provided by the so-called "whale louse"—an amphipod that is found nowhere but on the skin of whales, notably the gray that migrates along our coast.

Again this creature is scarcely recognized as an amphipod because it departs from the conventional shape, as seen in the sand hopper, to become flattened as if squeezed from above. Moreover the legs spread out sideways and are provided with hooks to enable the creature to cling securely to its host.

Whale lice normally stick to their own particular kind of whale and occasionally three species are found on one whale. However, since there is no free-swimming larval stage it is difficult to explain how these parasites infect other whales.



Unlike most cars, the Corona has more starting power.

The result: Faster starts without power drain and engine wear. A starter motor that delivers a power kick that takes the whine out of Arctic cold starts and turns the Corona oversquare engine into a hot, roaring 90 hp powerplant.

Even when conditions are reversed. It cruises with ease at a sleek 80 mph. Backed by a full-synchro 4-on-the-floor and big double barrelled carb.

And forget about pussy-footing around. The Corona's rugged unit construction takes potholes, bumps, dust and salt in its stride. It's been pre-conditioned.

So get started with Corona.
It's never been easier.

SCHOOL BUDGET PASSES

DUNCAN — North Cowichan Municipal council Thursday afternoon unanimously approved Cowichan School District's 1970 budget.

The budget calls for expenditures of $3,724,830, which is $64,827 over the cost of the basic education program shareable with the province.

The night before, Duncan city council gave its approval after subjecting the budget to two hours' scrutiny.

North Cowichan councillor Lars Fowler said that while he would not vote against the budget, he wished he had known earlier that a member of the maintenance staff had been given notice after what he believed was 14 years' service.

"I don't know him personally, but I have had quite a number of phone calls about this gentleman," Fowler said.

He was referring to janitor foreman Fred Mills, one of two employees let go by the board, a decision which gave rise to trustee Mrs. Margaret Whittaker publicly dissociating herself from the board's action.

Fowler continued: "I would be just about to vote against this (budget) on principle." He suggested the board could have "cut down on an extra teacher they haven't even got a classroom for" or could have offered Mills another job.

Ald. Margaret Robertson said that while for "humanitarian reasons" the move seemed "very wrong," she felt employee matters rightfully were the school board's business and not that of council.

To this Fowler added: "I don't know what good a motion of inquiry would do. It really doesn't come within our jurisdiction."

Acting mayor Ald. Dennis Hogan put in the final word to Fowler: "At least you have made your feelings known."

The board chairman has stated the board hopes to find either salaried or hourly employment for both employees affected. Mills is a year from retirement.

HOVERCRAFT SERVICE FACES LICENCE LOSS

NANAIMO (CP) — The federal air transport committee has told Pacific Hovercraft Ltd. of Vancouver to resume Nanaimo-Vancouver service by May 1 or face loss of its licence.

The company suspended the service last October, citing licensing problems and later mechanical trouble. The service operated at only about 25 per cent of capacity.

Dispute Swirls Around Peak

Mount Arrowsmith, Vancouver Island's best known and most climbed snow peak, has become the subject of a logging controversy.

A Port Alberni group is seeking to stop logging on the slopes and approaches to the mountain 10 miles to the east.

Miles Porter, a spokesman for the group, said more than 1,000 persons have signed a petition so far to have the foreslopes set aside as parkland.

"A local logging company plans to move in this spring," he said. "Unless we stop them, the beautiful mountain will be ravaged."

The foreslopes and approaches to the mountain are not crown property and the B.C. government has no jurisdiction over the land. The areas in question are owned by MacMillan Bloedel Ltd., Pacific Logging Co. and B.C. Forest Products.

'UNREASONABLE'

Gerry Burch, chief forester for B.C. Forest Products, said his company had contracted out an area to be logged off in the vicinity of the mountain.

He described the petition as unreasonable because it in effect asks for the loss of hundred of acres of marketable timber.

"You can't start parcelling off land for every user of forest lands," he said. "There just isn't enough land to go around."

He pointed out a logger only logs an area every 70 years and the remaining 69 years the land was available for other users, providing they didn't damage the forest.

"We also restock the land immediately after logging," he said.

Burch also pointed out that the logging would not deface the immediate approach to Arrowsmith along the Port Alberni route.

Licences for Boats Proposed by Council

CAMPBELL RIVER — All B.C. boat owners will have to buy and carry licence plates if Campbell River council's bid is approved.

The council agreed Tuesday to ask the federal department of transport to initiate the move, saying the licence plates should permit any boat to tie up, free of charge, at any wharf on the coast.

Ald. Kenneth Forde said, "With one car licence you can travel all over the province, all over the Dominion, in fact so why not a similar licence plate on a boat?"

Mayor Kenneth McDonald said that Dr. G. T. How had made the licensing suggestion in his 1967 report on small boat harbors.

Addressing the meeting from the gallery, Norman Lysne, secretary of Local 17, United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union, said union members object to paying wharfage to a private individual. He said wharfage should be collected by the transport department and the wharfinger paid a salary.

He was referring to the Campbell River wharf which is leased to Denis Shipping Ltd. by the department of transport.

Socred Urges Tourism Development Campaign

Social Credit backbencher H. J. Merilees Wednesday called upon the government to put greater effort into the development of the tourist trade in B.C.

Merilees, one of two MLAs for Vancouver-Burrard, suggested a co-operative program be worked out with high schools, technical schools, colleges and universities, and all facets of the tourist industry, to turn out experts to help B.C. compete for tourist dollars.

He said there is a need for market research to find out what can be done to promote the trade.

Merilees added that now the tourist trade rates as the third industry in B.C., generating total spending in the province of $400 million last year.

AVIATION BRANCH

He predicted in the near future the industry will surpass mining and the forest industry.

Merilees urged the government to set up a department of aviation to encourage the development of more small plane landing strips so that tourists could have better access to certain areas of the province.

He also suggested a campaign to beautify B.C. The MLA said that there is a need for development of more camping facilities, parks, and places to stay.

The main challenge to the tourist business today, said Merilees, is to develop an off-season trade, particularly the establishment of ski and winter sports facilities. "One dollar in February is worth three in July," he added.

The MLA also urged greater financial aid to municipalities from provincial and federal government. The problems in the urban areas are just too much for residential and industrial land taxes to bear, he said.

STUDENTS ENTHUSIASTIC

Youth Poetry Interest Up

By HUMPHRY DAVY

A vein of poetry exists in the hearts of all men — so wrote historian-philosopher Thomas Carlyle.

And without doubt he would have agreed that many young people seek to express themselves through the medium of poetry.

Certainly teachers today are becoming more aware of this — especially in Victoria where a poetry movement among the young is growing by leaps and bounds.

This was evident when nearly 200 students from Greater Victoria schools, including Sooke, turned up this week at a Central Junior High School Lunch Time Arts Club.

The meeting, the first of its kind, was called to discuss poets and poetry — Canadians in particular.

INFORMAL

It was an informal affair. Pupils sat on rubber mats in the gym, listened and discussed poetry as they ate their lunches.

In this relaxed atmosphere, they exchanged opinions with a panel of well-known Canadian poets, student poets, teachers and one folk singer.

The panel included:

Susan Musgrave, 18, who won a $1,500 Canada Council grant to go and write in Ireland and England. She plans to publish a book of her poetry in March.

Susan Mayse, 21, a University of Victoria student and poet.

Mike Doyle, English professor at the University of Victoria. He has published several books of poetry.

Mrs. Arthur Irwin, who writes poetry under the name P. K. Page.

Pam Cousins, a Central Junior Grade 10 student.

GOOD IDEA

Murray McAlpine of Glenlyon School, an ex-professional guitarist and folk singer.

May Jane Sterling, a first year Indian student at the University of Victoria, and poet.

But it wasn't so much what was said or discussed that was important as the requests of pupils for more poetry meetings.

Here are a few samples of their answers to a questionnaire asking for their reactions:

"A good idea . . . I like it very much . . . Should do it more often . . . I would like to come back . . . A great thing, don't stop . . . I would like to meet more Victoria poets."

The enthusiasm surprised Peter Seale, chairman of the English department at Central Junior, organizer of the poetry session.

FIRST EFFORT

"There's a tremendous interest in poetry," he said. "It is evident they want more poetry meetings."

He said he would seek to establish a "poetry workshop" in the near future.

But actually, the young people's poetry movement had its beginnings in 1968 when three Central Junior High School pupils, Kathe Guthrie, Marjory Bancroft and Barbara Pennock, produced a mimeographed collection of their poetry.

The quality of the work so impressed Mrs. Irwin that she suggested a poetry contest.

Seale agreed and the contest was opened to all students in Grades 8, 9 and 10 attending school in Greater Victoria, the North Saanich Peninsula and in the Sooke School district.

VARIED THEMES

The response dumfounded the organizers. About 250 contestants submitted 700 poems of all types — ballads, sonnets, pops dealing with all sorts of subjects.

There were poems of social protest, high adventure, satire and about animals and nature.

Some of these poems have now been published in a booklet entitled "A Landscape of Serifs" taken from a poem "Bark Drawing" by P. K. Page.

The poems are worth reading — some of extremely high standard. Some could be set to music.

It also includes some good lines from poems not included.

Here are a few samples:

"The last time I said goodbye to you,
I cried lemon tears."

"There is a new girl in our neighbourhood.
And I envy her because she is Pleasant and considerate, and smart, and intelligent.
And I love her because she is Black."

"(Martin Luther King) He was going home,
But he was not afraid.
For God
In all his glory
Was waiting."

There are many more like this. But of course, this talent isn't new. The vein of poetry has always existed in the hearts of the young. They only needed encouragement. And now it looks as if they got it.

Nature 'Must Get Attention' From Christians: Church Expert

Christian churches should pay more attention to the problem of environmental decay, 'the depletion of wildlife and the lack of respect for all living things, Dr. W. A. Visser 't Hooft, first general secretary of the World Council of Churches, said today.

The distinguished churchman, now retired, arrived in Victoria Wednesday and addressed a luncheon meeting of the Greater Victoria Council of Churches at the Empress Hotel.

He also spoke at a public meeting today in the Elliott Building, University of Victoria.

Visser 't Hooft said Christianity is sometimes held responsible for Western man's attitude of regarding nature as any enemy — as something he could do what he liked with.

NEGLECTED

"I agree that man's relation to nature is an area we have neglected," he said. "but it is erroneous to believe that Christianity is partly to blame for man's disregard for nature which has led to environmental decay."

He pointed out that Dr. Albert Schweitzer and Karl Barth, two outstanding theologians, taught that man should respect all forms of life.

A third was the Jesuit priest, Teilhard de Chardin, whose works are widely read today.

"The Psalms are full of passages which clearly shows that nature is a gift of God," he said. "Respect for life is a central element of the Christian faith."

He said man's relation to nature was that of a steward, but unfortunately this had not seeped down to the level of the ordinary Christian.

"I'm pleased to see young people today champion the cause of environmental control," he added. "I'm glad they are exposing the damage done to nature by the older generation."

CHURCH NOT ALONE

Speaking on the future of the Christian Church, he said, it was unfair to say that it alone was facing a crisis.

"The crisis facing the church is only part of a much wider crisis facing the whole of our civilization," he said.

He admitted the church tended to be conservative and to support older traditions.

"But if it is to survive it must adapt itself to change," he said. "The days when you could live in a stable world over long periods are gone. Technology is continually transforming the world and we must keep up with it."

He was specific as to the future role of the church.

The sole reason for its existence was the Gospel and without this the church wasn't necessary he said.

GREAT STRIDES

"There's talk of it becoming more of a social welfare agency," he said. "We already have social welfare agencies. This is no reason for the church to exist."

A key man in the world-wide ecumenical movement, Visser 't Hooft said it had made great strides towards church unity in the past 10 years.

He recalled that before 1960 communications between the Roman Catholic Church and other Christian churches were practically nil.

Today Catholics were a member of the ecumenical movement.

"Another major development was the decision of the Eastern Orthodox Church to join the movement.

"Thus a contact for the first time in a 1,000 years has been established between the western and eastern Christian church," he said.

Churches in Africa also joined the World Council of Churches and greatly expanded the movement, he added.

"Some people question the necessity for church unity. It is important in that we can serve the world better, but our structures must be flexible."

Visser 't Hooft was born in Haarlem, Holland, and was elected general secretary of the World Council of Churches when it was formally constituted in 1947. He held this office until he retired in 1966.

COURT DENIES APPEAL IN RIFLE SLAYING

A 67-year-old Victoria man, William Clifford, has lost his B.C. Court of Appeal case against his 1969 conviction for the rifle slaying of his wife, Edna.

In a unanimous decision Wednesday the judges rejected a defence of drunkenness by Clifford, who was convicted of non-capital murder and sentenced to life imprisonment.

The Cliffords had lived at 1001 North Park. Mrs. Clifford was killed by a single bullet and found lying face down on the front room floor last March 15. Clifford was a landlord and retired painter.

Kuper Fund Trustees Set Meet for Monday

The third annual meeting of the trustees of the Kuper Island Indian School fund will be held Feb. 2 at 8 p.m. in S. J. Willis Junior Secondary School.

The fund was formed from public subscriptions in Centennial year to send the Kuper Island boys band to perform at Expo.

It was so successfully supported that surplus proceeds are being administered by a trustee board to provide annual medals and cash prizes for Indian students in the five school districts of southern Vancouver Island.

Trustees include H. R. Dawson, principal of S. J. Willis Junior Secondary School, chairman; K. R. Grant, Bank of Nova Scotia; B.A. Tobin, Victoria Daily Times. Advisers are Rev. J. MacDonell, principal, Kuper Island School, and Brother G. Doughty; and V. Janzen, district superintendent of Indian Schools, Nanaimo.

The public is invited to attend the meeting.

3 Groups Share Disaster Relief

Only ten cents out of every dollar raised for the Canadian Red Cross in the B.C.-Yukon area goes out of the district, said re-elected Victoria president, T. L. McMaster, Wednesday.

He told the group's annual meeting that 10 per cent goes to meet national and international commitments and the society's administration costs were low — 6¼ cents out of each dollar.

Also re-eelected were treasurer S. S. Peers; first vice-president Rear Admiral E. W. Finch-Noyes and second vice-president Brigadier S. E. E. Morres.

McMaster said he hoped to have a publicity committee that would keep the public informed of Red Cross activities and work more closely with United Appeal officials.

To avoid duplication of services, McMaster said that the water safety program was working closely with the Royal Life Saving Society, and the emergency disaster service was co-operating with the Salvation Army and the St. Vincent de Paul Society.

The homemakers service had been enlarged.

Peers said the society had raised $105,659.70 compared with the 1968 total of $107,730. Branch operating expenses were up, $42,739 compared to $41,777 for 1968.

Seattle Synagogue Dynamited

SEATTLE (AP) — A dynamite blast early Wednesday splintered the doors of a synagogue here, and shattered windows in nearby residences.

The explosion, at the Temple de Hirsch in the city's central district, also toppled a $1,000 organ inside the building. Windows were smashed in some private homes and in a three-storey apartment house one block away. No one was injured.

The synagogue is a block away from a Pacific Northwest Bell Telephone Co. building, the scene of an earlier unsuccessful dynamiting attempt, and near Seattle University, where a dynamite blast caused damage last week.

Firm Had Valid Reason Says Lawyer

The lawyer for a Vancouver company accused of intimidation in the firing of employees retroactively to a strike said Wednesday afternoon there are no grounds for complaint.

B. W. F. McLaughlin, spokesman for Cadillac Plastic (Canada) Ltd., was replying to an allegation by John Squire, international representative of Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Union, who said two persons were discharged retroactive to Jan. 9, three days before a strike of plant employees.

McLaughlin said the two employees were fired because they had been seen doing damage to the plant the afternoon of Jan. 9. The discharge was "the result of acts of violence the night of the ninth of January," he said.

"The union has been carrying on in irresponsible fashion," said McLaughlin.

Besides damage to the premises, the union is accused of preventing other employees from going to work, the lawyer said.

An injunction against the union was obtained Jan. 14.

CABLE CUT

Another act, which occurred Jan. 12, was the cutting of a main telephone cable at the plant, McLaughlin said.

Six employees are involved in the strike, said McLaughlin. Unresolved issues in negotiations, which broke down after one meeting, include wages, union security, fringe benefits and the position of office employees.

Swedish Ferry Talk Criticized

An opposition MLA told the legislature Wednesday he objected to any purchase of a ferry from Sweden while Canadian shipyards are lying idle.

James Lorimer, (NDP-Burnaby - Willingdon), referred to newspaper reports that B.C. Ferries had bought a ferry from Sweden. The premier was quoted later as saying that negotiations were not complete, but the government might buy the boat.

"I object to the purchasing of ferries from Sweden or anywhere else," Lorimer said," when our shipyards are practically non-existent. Let's get our shipyards working, the increase in employment would be of great benefit to our workers."

Fire Destroys Duncan House

DUNCAN — No one was injured when a fire gutted the new home of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Schockenmaier outside the North Cowichan, South End fire protection district Thursday.

The family, including four children, is staying with relatives.

Prefab Schools?

VANCOUVER (CP) — A UBC research professor says schools of the future could be built for 10 per cent less if their components were prefabricated. Dr. Robin A. Clarke made the suggestion Tuesday following a three-year study.

MAZDA 1200
Get one.
They're going fast!

And no wonder: the Mazda 1200 out-performs every car in its size and price range, and does it elegantly, even luxuriously. Mazda 1200's 73 horsepower engine is the most powerful in its class; and combined with the 1200's light weight and easy-shifting four-speed all-synchro transmission, takes it 'way ahead of the competition.

And you can take your choice of body styles, too, including the Sedan and Station Wagon shown here. Both cars are luxuriously equipped, including reclining seats, easy-to-clean all-vinyl interiors, all-weather fresh-air system; lots of head, leg and shoulder room.

Also standard is the full complement of safety features, including adjustable head restraints, disc front brakes, and seat belts.

So choose either model, the 1200 Sedan with lots of room for four, or the versatile 1200 Station Wagon, with even more carrying capacity.

Either way, it's a beautiful choice. Mazda 1200 Sedan or Station Wagon. Get one . . . they're going fast!

MARKET SUMMARIES

Prices Suffer Beating

Prices continued to suffer a beating today in trading on the major stock markets.

The Toronto market turned sharply lower in light trading after holding with a small loss for the first half of the session. The market was influenced by the steep decline on Wall Street.

The New York market continued its week-long pattern of erosion with the big and small investors still on the sidelines. Analysts said they apparently are awaiting President Nixon's budget message on Monday.

The Dow Jones average now is the lowest since Oct. 11, 1966. At noon declines led advances by better than 450 issues.

AT TORONTO, Maclarin B dropped 2½ to 20½, Trans-Canada 1¾ to 26¼, Falconbridge 1¾ to 16¼, Cominco 1½ to 32⅞ and Maple Leaf Mills 1 to 15.

Steetley was up 3 to 28, Bow Valley 1 to 25¾ and Alcan ⅝ to 27⅛

McIntyre dropped 13⅛ to 150, Conwest ⅞ to 12⅝. Denison was up 2 to 39.

Alberta Eastern Gas slipped 70 cents to $6.35 and Chieftain ½ to 11, Asamera jumped 4¼ to to 18¼ and Ranger 1⅛ to 13.

AT NEW YORK, metals were stronger in midday trading, while steels, motors, rubber issues, farm implements, aircrafts, utilities, rails, airlines, tobaccos and drugs were weaker, and oils and building materials mixed.

Gulf Oil, off ⅞ to 25¾ paced the active issues on a volume of 91,600 shares.

Among the actives, American Telephone, trading this week at a nine-year low, gained ¼ to 46⅞.

Chrysler, which lost several points this week, bucked other losing auto issues and was up ⅝ to 27⅞ in mid-day trading.

AT MONTREAL a broken water main in Place Victoria forced an early closing of the stock market today but not before industrials moved up .16 to 187.57 during very light trading.

Officials of the Montreal and Canadian Stock Exchanges decided to close the market at 12 noon when fumes from diesel pumps used by firemen to reduce the flooding caused several employees to become ill.

In market action, Famous Players gained 1⅛ to 15⅝ and Massey Ferguson ⅜ to 15⅜. Canada Dominion Sugar was off one point to 34 and Price Corp. ⅝ to 14⅛.

In senior mines and oils, Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Union Oil ½ to 44½. Falcon- was up one point to 85 and Canada PipeLines ⅝ to 27⅜ and Union Oil ¼ to 44¼. Falconbridge fell 3¼ to 166¾, Trans-Shell Canada ⅝ to 30⅜.

AT LONDON Australian issues rallied after a weak opening today but most British issues declined in quiet trading on the stock exchange. Losses were generally small.

Beechams, Unilever, Glaxo, ICI and Rand dropped but Reyrolle Parsons firmed. Hawker and Bowater also fell.

British funds firmed under the lead of the new treasury 8½ per cent loan.

Dollar stocks continued to decline, reflecting the Wall Street fall and a drop in the dollar premium.

Among Canadians, Dome was 6 points down, Hudson's Bay Mining, Pacific Pete, Inco, Hiram Walker, Noranda, Trans-Canada Pipelines and Hollinger were also down.

Jersey Standard, 8 points off, was a weak spot among lower U.S. issues. Shell Oil, Chrysler, General Motors, Ford, Woolworth's and Bethlehem were others to drop to move downside.

AT VANCOUVER, the three sections of the stock exchange vied with each other to noon today to see which one could produce the biggest loser.

Mining's leading contender was Casino, down .30 to $4.65. Oils put forward United Bata, which fell .25 to $3.70, and industrials also managed .25 loss for Block Brothers, lowering the stock to $6.25.

Adanac didn't go along with the losing trend and added .10 at $3.10.

The mining section had the biggest number of declines — 53 compared with 23 advances. Ten industrial stocks went down while six gained, but oils took the honors for the largest number of declines related to gains —11 to 4.

Volume was 925,197 shares.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — All deferred rapeseed futures made gains of two to three cents in light trade at the close of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today.

January rapeseed remained well below previous close levels.

Flax was marginally easier due to light offers and commission house and exporter buying.

Lakehead prices for Class Two and IGA wheat all were unchanged.

RESEARCH CITES VIRTUE OF CASH

A current research study citing the virtue of paying cash claims Canadians could be enjoying 1959 prices today if the country as a whole had done as well as Bell Canada.

The study by A. E. Ames and Co. investment dealer said Bell in recent years has been able to finance an increasing proportion of its capital needs from its own funds.

"The significance of such achievements may perhaps be best appreciated by noting that had the country as a whole done as well, Canadians would be enjoying not only a considerably higher standard of living than they do at the present time, but virtually at 1959 prices," Ames said.

BUSINESS and FINANCE

Editor: G. S. Kent

Shell Canada

A drop in earnings for 1969 is reported by Shell Canada Ltd., a result of lower sulphur prices and "continuing inflationary cost pressures in the economy."

Higher debt charges for capital spending programs also were a factor, the company said in an interim report.

Net was given as $47.1 million or $1.42 per class A share compared with $54 million or $1.62, although sales of refined products were up 5 per cent.

IBM

International Business Machines Corp. Tuesday raised its quarterly dividend to $1.20 from $1.

The new rate on common stock is payable March 10 to holders of record Feb. 11.

Announcement of the increase was followed by a turnaround in IBM prices on the New York Stock Exchange.

IBM closed at 345¼ off 3¼ for the day. But it had been trading earlier, after a delayed opening, off 7½ at 341.

Hudson's Bay

Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas Ltd. earned $27 million in 1969, compared with $26.79 million the previous year.

After allowance for preferred dividends earnings amounted to $1.40 a common share, up two cents from 1968.

Earnings were reported after provision for income tax of $2.36 million which was previously not needed because of accumulated deductions from drilling and exploration expenses.

Southern Pacific

Southern Pacific Petroleum Ltd., of Vancouver, reports an oil discovery at a well in northern Alberta, in which it has 10 per cent interest.

The strike was at the 4,150 foot level of a well in the northeast Rainbow Lake area being drilled by Spooner Mines and Oils Ltd. A service rig is being moved in to complete the well.

Top U.S. Brokerage In Surprise Merger

NEW YORK (WP) — Blyth and Co., Inc., one of the country's largest and most prestigious investment banking firms, resigned from the New York Stock Exchange Wednesday to merge with INA Corp., an insurance holding company.

The firm also tendered its resignation to the American Stock Exchange, but the AMEX, in a special governors' meeting, deferred action and suspended Blyth's membership.

The announcement by Blyth chairman Paul Devlin and INA chairman John T. Gurash said the insurance company will pay approximately $55 million in stock for the brokerage firm.

Wall Street observers saw the move as adding fuel to the growing restiveness over the slow progress in changing NYSE rules to all public ownership of brokerage firms. The exchange submitted proposed rule changes to the Securities and Exchange Commission in September, but the SEC has not yet commented on them.

Earlier this month, the Midwest Stock Exchange also proposed changes in its rules to permit members to be publicly owned.

"The pressure is beginning to build," one observer said after the Blyth announcement, "and it's going to get stronger very soon."

Devlin, asked by his firm took the step now instead of waiting for the exchange to permit public ownership, answered, "nobody's gone public yet. This is a deal we can make now and we think it's very advantageous."

NYSE officials had no comment on the Blyth move, although the step caught them by surprise. The Big Board had no hint of the plans before the firm's resignation.

After a two and a half hour board meeting, the AMEX issued a statement which said, "the exchange noted it has been studying its membership structure for some time and its boards of governors determines to defer action on Blyth's offered resignation at this time in view of the importance of the issues involved and in light of the fact that the exchange will, during the period, in accordance with the provision of its constitution, withdraw the firm's rights of membership. Blyth and Co. will execute its business through another member organization at non-member rates."

THE ACCOUNTANT'S ADVICE

Tax Saving Indication Misleading

By Edgar A. Downey, CA

(This is a service of The Times and of the Institue of Chartered Accountants of British Columbia).

As is usuall about this time of year some financial organizations put extra effort into promoting their savings fund programs and they emphasize the tax deferment which can be obtained by using a "registered retirement savings plan."

Unfortunately, most of the promotion material refers to the tax effect as a "tax saving", as if it were an absolute saving from paying taxes. This is misleading.

The real effect is the deferment of tax payment to a later year and the primary tax advantage arises from the income which can be earned in the intervening years upon the investment of those tax dollars which are deferred.

The result of registration of a savings plan is that all of the fund will be subject to income tax as and when it is paid out in the future years. The tax is deferred upon the contributions when paid in and imposed upon all money taken out in future years.

REQUIRE MORE INCOME

The presumption is that in those future years when the individual taxpayer retires his income will be lower and, consequently, his tax rate will be lower. However, this rarely occurs in fact.

With the historical fact of inflation projected as a probability into the future it is reasonable to expect that upon retirement in, say, twenty years a man will require more income, not less, to maintain even a modest standard of living in retirement. Thus, his tax rate in that future year would be higher not lower.

Then, there is the other historical fact that the general level of tax rates always seems to rise, except of course in the year just preceding an election. And even in those rare years when a tax rate reduction is announced the eventual effect is normally that most people pay more tax in the following year, more than offsetting the earlier reduction.

Then, again, there is the further disadvantage that all gains earned in a tax registered fund will be subject to tax, including capital gains, which under present regulations are not subject to tax if the fund is not registered for income tax purposes.

And all dividends earned by the fund will be subject to full tax upon withdrawal without the twenty per cent dividend tax credit which applies to Canadian dividends earned upon investments which are not in a tax registered plan.

DISADVANTAGES

It is important to recognize that these disadvantages arise because of the registration of the plan to obtain the advantage of the extra earnings on the deferment of current year income tax.

The use of a savings fund might be very wise to provide income for retirement years, but the registration of such a fund to obtain the temporary tax benefit is not necessarily so advantageous as it might first appear.

Generally, for a taxpayer whose top tax rate in the current year exceeds thirty five per cent the advantages of registration may outweigh the disadvantages, but he should review the facts very carefully and particularly try to estimate what his future position would be in his retirement years. For a low rate taxpayer the temporary saving of current tax will seldom offset the eventual consequences of higher tax on the income when it is paid out.

And overall there lies the uncertainty of the possible effect of the changes set out in the recent White Paper for tax reform.

Reynolds Proposes New Firm

NEW YORK (CP) — Reynolds Metals Co. announced Wednesday it proposes to form a new company through the amalgamation of Canadian British Aluminum Co. Ltd. and a recently-chartered Canadian affiliate of Reynolds.

Reynolds, which through a subsidiary holds an 83.5-per-cent equity interest in Canadian British Aluminium, said it will offer to exchange shares of its common stock for shares of the new company to be formed as a result of the amalgamation.

In effect, the proposal paves the way for Class A shareowners of Canadian British Aluminium to become shareowners in Reynolds Metals Co.

The deal is subject to approval by 75 per cent of the holders of Class A stock of Canadian British Aluminium at a meeting Feb. 27.

WILL CHANGE NAME

As a result of the amalgamation, Canadian British Aluminium's business will be carried out by the new company under the name of Canadian Reynolds Metals Co. Ltd.

When the amalgamation becomes effective, each share of Canadian British Aluminium class A stock will be exchanged for one share of 40-cent cumulative redeemable preferred stock of the new company, and each share of Canadian British Aluminium class B stock will be exchanged for one share of common stock of the new company.

The new preferred stock will be redeemable at the option of the company at $25 Canadian a share before 1975, at $22.50 a share thereafter and before 1980, and $20 a share thereafter.

If the amalgamation is completed, the Reynolds offer will entitle holders of the new preferred stock to exhange their shares on the basis of three shares of the preferred stock for two shares of Reynolds Metals common stock so long as any shares of the preferred stock remains outstanding.

Canadian British Aluminium, based in Baie Comeau, Que., is a producer of primary aluminum ingots.

Jury Hits Unconcern at Indians' Rights

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — A County Court jury at this central British Columbia community Wednesday criticized government agencies for their lack of concern for Indians' rights.

The jury made the comment when it acquitted August Joseph, 29, of possession of an offensive weapon.

The charge was laid a year ago after the man confronted a Pacific Great Eastern Railway crew near the Tachie Reserve, 40 miles north of Fort St. James.

The jury said it felt "that if all the agencies of the government and the authorities in charge had shown more concern for the rights of the Tachie Indians the charge against the accused would never have been brought."

A lower court trial was told Mr. Joseph fired a shot over the head of a four-man railway gang to keep them away from reserve land long enough for him to erect no-trespassing signes.

Mr. Joseph first pleaded guilty and was sentenced to nine months in jail. However, he was granted a new trial after lawyers said he did not know what the charge involved when he entered his plea.

The Tachie Indians have since negotiated a settlement with the PGE in which they received 58 acres of lakeside land in return for the 52 acres needed for right-of-way through the reserve.

Target Passed

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia-Yukon division of the Red Cross exceeded its 1969 fund-raising objective, chairman Walter McCann said Tuesday. The campaign collected $725,517, he said, $517 ahead of its goal.

Medical Group Said Stifling Free Speech

The medical profession was accused in the legislature Wednesday of stifling the free speech rights of doctors.

Liberal Barrie Clark said doctors are being prohibited from discussing their professional points of view with the press by the medical association.

"Such action is in direct conflict with the right of the public to know the facts," said Clark, a Vancouver open-line radio moderator.

He said there are legitimate subjects of discussion, particularly with doctors who are in the forefront of medical research and development, which the public should be allowed to hear.

Clark said he wasn't fond of the role of referring women to doctors who will perform abortion operations as a hot-line moderator but he has been forced into the role as a result of the inability of pro-abortion doctors to make their views known.

TOO MUCH POWER?

Clark said he was concerned that self-regulating professions such as the medical profession have "taken upon themselves powers that are inappropriate."

In other remarks during the throne speech debate he criticized the provincial government for failure to help elderly persons faced with loss of homes because of rising taxes.

Clark said maintenance of older people in their own homes was a stabilizing force in the community.

"Where have all the senior citizens gone?" he asked. "They've gone to nursing homes, cold, one-room flats and neat, tidy cubicles."

Clark criticized the government for failing to ease the problem which finds elderly persons being asked to pay $400 to $500 a month for chronic care.

He also called for aid to innocent victims of crime.

DANES' PORNOGRAPHY LAW 'COULD BE ADOPTED BY B.C.'

The B.C. legislature was advised Wednesday to keep an eye on Denmark's experience with pornography laws.

Barrie Clark (L—North Vancouver-Seymour) said that on a recent visit to Denmark he was interested to learn the number of sexual criminal offences had dropped by 50 per cent since all references to pornography were removed from the laws of that country.

Attacks on girls under 15 declined by almost two-thirds, he said, adding justice ministry officials had been careful not to link the statistics directly to the lack of restrictions on pornography.

But he was told the law changes had "affected the whole sociological environment" in the country.

"As legislators, all countries should be taking a serious look at what is happening in Denmark," Clark said.

Rules Study Urged

Formation of a legislative committee to study rules and procedures of the B.C. legislature was proposed Wednesday by Barrie Clark (L—North Vancouver-Seymour).

The committee should have "the broadest terms of reference possible," Clark told the legislature during the throne speech debate.

The British House of Commons has improved many of its rules which have been left unreformed in this country, he said.

He drew a laugh when he told the MLAs that on a recent visit to Denmark he discovered the Danish parliament has a time-clock which automatically turns off an MLA's microphone when he talks too long.

LISTS DEFECTS

Clark warned the government against depending on its tape recording of debates as a useful record. Among defects of the tape system he listed the following:

- Difficulty of finding a particular passage on an hour-long tape.
- Inability of playing the legislative tapes on anything but expensive special equipment.
- Danger of erasing tapes by magnetic field coming into contact with them.
- Danger of the tapes becoming unintelligible as the tapes age, making them of little value as archives material.

Clark said criticism of a Hansard is often made on the basis that a written record would have a bad effect on the MLAs, but the important thing should be the beneficial effect it would have on the public, he said.

The tape system would be useless unless tapes were subsequently transcribed he said."

Efficiency Task-Force Proposed

The government should appoint an efficiency task-force to make a study of procedures and costs in all government departments, Socred backbencher Evan Wolfe suggested Wednesday.

The MLA for Vancouver Centre said that with payrolls consuming over 50 per cent of the budget for all departments, a careful watch should be made of all procedures. "I'm talking about procedures, not people," he added.

Wolfe said the task-force could be a specially appointed committee of three including the chairman of the Civil Service Commission, an economist, and a chartered accountant.

"The Civil service chairman will provide the in-service knowledge of present staff functions, and the economists and accountant from outside our government service will provide impartiality, and qualified opinions from a broad based business background," he stated.

Wolfe said the committee should do an organizational survey of each department with the object of streamlining procedures. The committee could report to the minister of finance or to the Treasury Board, he said.

Inflation is the most pressing problem in Canada today, Wolfe said, and the government is being asked to cut down on spending.

"Our payroll represents the biggest part of our expenditures. We should make sure that the productivity is there and the most efficient procedures are being used," he said.

MLA Lists Jericho Hill Shortcomings

James Lorimer (NDP—Burnaby-Willingdon) Wednesday urged the provincial government to do something about what he called the shortcomings of the Jericho Hill school for the deaf and blind in Vancouver.

Lorimer quoted from a report on the school prepared for the government by Dr. Demeza of Ontario, and Dr. Clark of UBC.

He said basic problems at the school included the failure to provide a suitable environment that could substitute for a home, a lack of communication between the supervisors and the children, little after-school activity for children, a lack of appropriate vocational and academic training, and shortcomings in the health services.

Lorimer pointed out that the senior psychologist at Vancouver said of the school "This is a situation that promotes not mental health, but mental illness.

The MLA suggested the ministers of health and education had two hangups: that the school was a model of its kind, and that it is a boarding school and not a treatment centre.

Ottawa 'Too Far Away'

Premier Bennett said Wednesday it's a good thing the federal government is sampling grassroots opinion on the constitution because "they're completely out of touch."

"Ottawa is too far away from the people," Bennett said, suggesting the federal cabinet hold meetings in different parts of the country to help overcome the problem.

Asked what he thought grassroots opinion would be on the constitional question, Bennett said:

"The thing is that other matters have a much higher priority than the constitution, important as it is."

Asked where the first meeting of the cabinet should be outside Ottawa, Bennett paused and said: "Quebec City."

He said even in Quebec there is a growing sense of awareness that other matters are more important than the constitution.

Bennett was commenting on Ottawa's plan to set up a parliamentary committee to do a grass-roots survey of opinions on the constitution.

Housing Consultant

Appointment of J. Everett Brown as special consultant on housing policy for the province is expected to be made following his retirement as deputy minister of municipal affairs in February.

A special office, believed to be for the new position, is currently being built beside Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell's office.

Campbell refused to confirm the appointment, but government sources said co-ordination of housing policy will be the role of the new job.

Brown is a member of the B.C. housing management commission set up in 1967 to coordinate low-cost housing plans.

He became deputy minister in 1954 and a member of the Civil Service Commission in 1961.

There had been rumors that Grace McCarthy, minister without portfolio, would be named to full cabinet rank with the responsibility for housing but the appointment of Brown would apparently rule that out.

Bill WALKER

The ballots have been cast, the votes have been tabulated, but the debates are certain to linger on.

Bobby Hull has been selected as the greatest hockey player of the decade. Gordie Howe ran second, and Bobby Orr third.

Hull was an excellent choice, probably much the best, as the selectors duly noted.

Howe, in his second decade, having dominated the first, was not that far behind either.

Orr is the upstart of the party. He has only really belonged for three of the 10 years. Thus there may be some cause for dissent.

Hull has done just about everything expected of him since he joined the Hawks at age 19. The image of his era, the Golden Jet has averaged 44 goals a season in the last 10, topped by last year's record total of 58. Nobody has a harder shot, and he has speed, color and stamina to match.

Probe his record and the array of data is staggering.

For example, when Hull started the current season his 12th, he had scored 472 goals, and ranked third in the matter of goals per game with a .573 percentage. Only Howe, with 732, and Rocket Richard, with 544 had scored more. They rated 10th and fourth, respectively, in goals per game.

As a measure of greatness in this regard, there is the record of Babe Dye to consider. The former Toronto, Chicago and New York player scored 202 goals in just 253 games. That works out to a per-game production mark of .798., which pales all present shooters.

Still, Hull is the best of the moderns.

Howe! What else can be said of him? To insist that he may be better than Hull is not completely absurd. For he has been superior to most for all of his 22 years in the NHL. And if he has not matched Hull, in goals, in that particular period of the last decade, neither is it likely that Hull will come close to Howe's final overall record of goals scored, points amassed or durability.

All of which is well, and perhaps not too surprising.

But what about Orr? The third best? Maybe. But the Stan Mikita fans should be up in arms. And it isn't likely the vote will go unnoticed in Montreal, either, where there is some doubt that Jean Beliveau should be rated no better than in a three-way tie for fifth.

It will be argued, with little dispute to be sure, that Orr is the most exciting figure of the age, and at age 21, going on 22, is the super-star of all hockey super-beings. Strong words, but not to Orr fans. For he has been shattering all sorts of scoring records for defenceman ever since he was a junior; he has been doing the same in the NHL: he has helped to lift the Bruins into prominence; he has twice been selected to all-star status and twice named hockey's best defenceman, in only three seasons.

This is no idle youngster. His rink-length dashes are a joy to behold, while his other rare talents cannot be tabulated in any record book. There is no category for some things Orr.

And that includes the possibility (did I hear probability) that he will lead the NHL in scoring this season. This, of course, would be the ultimate. For he would be only 22 and a defenceman at that! But before he does, and closes off all avenues on areas of greatness, the generation gap deserves to hear that word on behalf of Mikita.

For if some of the other scoring feats in the NHL may become legendary, Mikita would deserve to have his contribution considered.

When he hasn't led the league, in scoring it has been surprising.

In the past six years, it has happened only twice. Once was last season when Phil Esposito went on his 126-point binge. Mikita was fourth behind Hull and Howe. The other occasion was in 1965-66 when Hull reigned supreme. Mikita was second.

So Mikita may be a better centre than anybody even if he didn't play in this year's all-star game. Six times in the past eight seasons he has been all-star. And he did win the win the Hart, the Ross, and the Lady Byng trophies during that last decade. Nobody else ever did that.

The arguments about comparative abilities can be endless, and usually are.

But during the past decade there was one team which did more than any other. Montreal Canadiens won more games, more league championships, and more Stanley Cups than any other club.

They must have had a leader, a great one. They did.

That man was Jean Beliveau.

And certainly his record of achievement is just as commendable as that of the others, and the list of his accomplishments will never suffer by comparison.

For, after all, only three players have scored more goals than he has.

They are Howe, Richard and Hull. Select company, as noted earlier.

Olympic Runners Bid For Football Jackpot

NEW YORK (AP) — Sprinter John Carlos, the world's fastest human, will seek a whopping four-year professional football contract totalling between $600,000 and $1,000,000 although he has never played organized football, his adviser says.

"He's going to be some drawing card; his drawing power is fabulous," Robert (Pappy) Gault said Wednesday night after the 24-year-old Carlos became a 15th-round draft pick of Philadelphia Eagles, who will try him as a wide receiver.

"His reaction to being drafted was that it's the greatest thing in the world," Gault said. "He wanted to play on the East Coast. And we're going for $600,000 to $1,000,000."

Carlos was one of two track stars chosen Wednesday as the 26 professional football teams selected 260 more players, bringing the two-day total to 442.

The other was Willie Davenport, who won the 110-metre high hurdles at the 1968 Olympics in Mexico City. Davenport, who has played some cornerback for Southern University, was taken on the 12th round by New Orleans Saints.

"I'm serious about pro football," said the 26-year-old Davenport, who has run 100 yards in 9.4 seconds to Carlos' 9.1.

Uvic Hoop Teams Face Busy Schedule

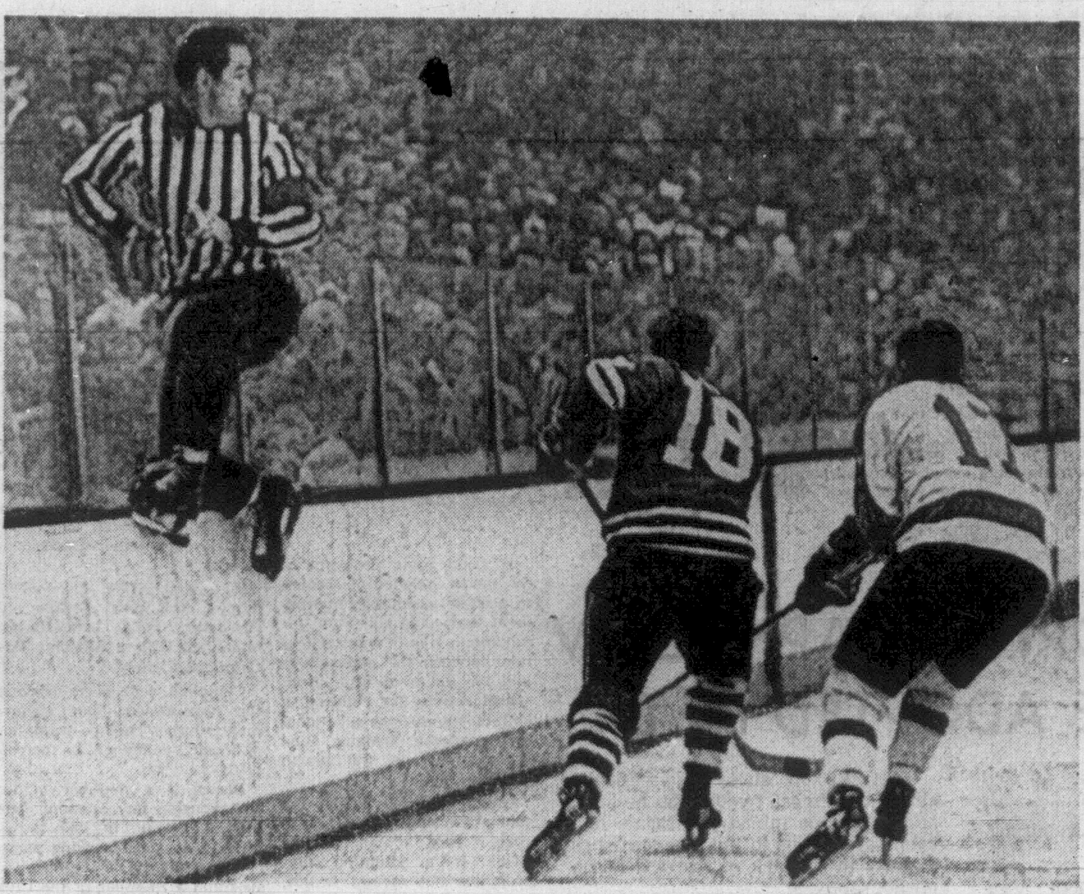
Both men's and women's senior basketball squads of the University of Victoria face crucial tests in Western Canada Intercollegiate Athletic Association action this weekend.

Uvic Vikings, currently deadlocked in third place with Alberta in the men's league, host University of Saskatchewan teams from Saskatoon on Friday, and Regina on Saturday, before tackling league-leading UBC Thunderbirds on Monday.

Vikettes take on undefeated Saskatoon Friday and Saturday and Regina on Monday and Tuesday.

Vikettes play at 6 p.m. and Vikings at 8 p.m. in every game at Uvic gymnasium but the Tuesday women's game which is scheduled for 7 p.m.

Defending-champion Vikettes have to win their remaining eight games in order to have a chance of repeating the feat.



THE BETTER TO SEE YOU, appears to be the basis of this manoeuvre by referee Ron Wicks in Wednesday night's NHL game in Chicago. Dueling for the puck are Chicago's Gerry Pinder (18) and Philadelphia's Simon Nolet. Game was tied 2-2. (AP wirephoto).

Goalie Chases Referee; Coach Chases Goalie

By The Canadian Press

Two National Hockey League goaltenders looked back in anger at the result of Wednesday night games, but not before one of them had chased a referee across the ice.

Ed Giacomin exhibited the most anger after a disputed goal against New York Rangers gave Los Angeles Kings a 5-4 victory before 7,662 fans, although Rogatien Vachon of Montreal Canadiens was no picture of happiness after allowing two quick goals and being replaced by coach Claude Ruel early in the second period.

"I'm mad all right," Vachon said later. "But the guy I'm mad at is me."

The Canadiens fared better than the Rangers, however, and wound up with a 5-4 victory over Minnesota North Stars to move into sole possession of second place in the East Division just two points behind New York.

In the other scheduled games, Toronto Maple Leafs played to a 4-4 tie with the Penguins at Pittsburgh, St. Louis Blues defeated the Seals 6-1 at Oakland and Philadelphia Flyers tied the Black Hawks 2-2 at Chicago.

Jim Peters led the Kings with two goals, while Butch Goring, Bill Flett and Ross Lonsberry added the others. Lonsberry scored the winner from a scramble just as the buzzer sounded to end the game in Los Angeles.

A 15-minute argument resulted among referee Bob Sloan, timekeeper Bill Mueris and members of both clubs.

It was during this period that Giacomin was restrained by team-mates as he brushed the referee and chased him across the ice.

Vic Hadfield, Rod Gilbert, Walt Tkaczuk and Bob Nevin scored against Los Angeles goaltender Wayne Rutledge.

POWER-PLAY HELPS

The 16,463 fans at Montreal saw the Canadiens win with a deadly power-play that accounted for three of the five goals.

Bobby Rousseau scored twice for Montreal, while John Ferguson got the winner after goals by Serge Savard and Ralph Backstrom. The Canadiens bombarded Minnesota goaltender Cesare Maniago with 45 shots.

Danny Grant, Bill Goldsworthy, Ray Cullen and Bob Barlow scored for the North Stars.

Vachon, who said he "wasn't ready" for the two goals that were scored in the first 56 seconds of the second period, was replaced by rookie Phil Myre, who allowed only one goal in the final 38 minutes and 29 seconds.

A small crowd of 4,290 at Pittsburgh saw the Penguins score two goals 64 seconds apart late in the final period to gain the tie with the Leafs.

Gary Dornhoefer's goal with his team short at 6:16 of the third period gave Philadelphia the tie before 16,666 fans at Chicago. Andre Lacroix scored the other Philadelphia goal, while Cliff Koroll and Chico Maki replied for Chicago.

HAWKS INCH UP

The tie moved the Black Hawks to within a single point of the fourth-place Detroit Red Wings, who hold down the last playoff berth in the East.

Wayne Maki scored two goals for St. Louis against goaltender Gary Smith, while Red Berenson, Jim Roberts, Phil Goyette and Andre Boudrias got the others.

Carol Vadnais scored the lone Oakland goal before a hometown crowd of 6,120.

Complete Sports Isolation Threatens South Africans

CAPE TOWN (Reuters) — South Africa today faces a rapidly growing threat of complete isolation in world sport following a government decision not to grant a visa to American Negro tennis star Arthur Ashe.

Already feeling the pinch of South Africa's official policy of no-sport-across-the-color-line, a number of South African sportsmen were dismayed when Sports Minister Frank Waring Wednesday announced rejection of Ashe's application for a visa.

White tennis star Cliff Drysdale, who had supported Ashe's entry for the South African national championships in March, said:

"We are going to be kicked out of the Davis Cup. This will only be the immediate consequence."

Waring said in his statement that Ashe would only be allowed in to the country as a member of the U.S. Davis Cup squad.

But the likelihood of South Africa's meeting the U.S. in the Davis Cup in the near future is remote. The soonest they could clash would be if South Africa won the cup this year and if the U.S. reached the challenge round in 1971.

MEETING PLANNED

In London, the Davis Cup Nations Committee is holding a special meeting March 23, to consider "the exclusion of any country whose presence is likely to endanger the competition."

Observers in London, believe the Ashe visa decision almost certainly will lead to new concerted moves to ban both South Africa and Rhodesia.

But while South African tennis players look to a gloomy future, athletes in other spheres also are pessimistic about the repercussions the government move could have on South African athletics in general.

All South Africa's major sports have been adversely affected by government policy in one way or another, and no one can see the situation improving.

Dave Marais, opposition United party legislator, and the party's spokesman on sport, said:

"There is little doubt that this petty racialistic action will be the last straw, and that we are moving fast now towards total isolation in world sport competitions."

Bearing the brunt of the government's decision is the South African Lawn Tennis Union.

CHALMERS SHOCKED

Alf Chalmers, the union president, said he was deeply shocked by the news. "We still have faith in Ashe," he said in stating that he did not think the Negro star had intended to stir up any trouble if allowed to visit South Africa.

The anti-government newspaper, the Rand Daily Mail, said in an editorial that the nationalist government had reacted in "a predictably obtuse way" over the Ashe affair.

"By refusing the Negro tennis player right of entry to South Africa it has delivered a grave blow to sport and served notice on the country that the fight on the far right is on," it said.

"The world is unlikely to share the delusion that this is a 'policy' let alone a just one. The remark will be seen as naked racialism, a remarkable compound of opportunism and prejudice.

The pro-government Afrikaans newspaper, Die Transvaler, said: "The government's decision not to allow Ashe to take part in the South African tennis championships will have wide international reaction and it will definitely lead to renewed efforts to keep South Africa out of the Davis Cup and out of other international sports meetings.

The newspaper added that Ashe's presence would have served to undermine the country's internal policies.

"The decision has been taken in the interests of South Africa," it said.

REPRIEVE GRANTED . . . . . . FOR TROUBLED FRANCHISE

New Plan Revives Pilot Hopes

BERKELEY, Calif (AP) — A Seattle group has told American League officials that it expects to raise the $9,000,000 needed to keep the Pilots baseball team in Seattle, league president Joe Cronin said Wednesday.

"Eddie Carlson has indicated he is preparing a financial structure for the continuance of major league baseball in Seattle, Cronin said in announcing recess of the current meeting until no later than Feb. 6.

Carlson is chairman of the board of Western International Hotels and a prime mover in attempting to keep the troubled franchise in Seattle.

Washington Governor Dan Evans, Carlson and others, including Fred Danz, Seattle theatre owner who has been the major spokesman for the group attempting to buy the year-old expansion team, have, suggested public operation of the club, with proceeds to go to charity.

Cleveland businessman William Daley lowered the price from $10,300,00 during a 10½-hour American League owners meeting on Tuesday.

Daley said that the Seattle group "seemed to be very happy about" the new offer.

A group headed by Danz had failed to meet a $3,500,000 bank loan that was payable if the club was sold.

Presumably the loan would still be due.

Cougars Go Plowe-ing To Victory

Victoria Cougars' offence is Plowe-ing along nicely but its defence requires mending attention.

That's how it looked Wednesday night in New Westminster as Cougars built up an early 6-2 lead then held on for an 8-6 British Columbia Junior Hockey League victory over the last-place Royals.

Victory pushed Cougars four points ahead of Vernon Essos in the run for first place. Essos, holding four games in hand over Victoria, moved into second place Wednesday by breezing to a 10-3 victory over Penticton Broncos.

In another game, Kelowna Buckaroos kept alive their playoff hopes by upsetting Kamloops Rockets 5-3. The game was originally scheduled for Feb. 28 but moved ahead to avoid conflict with an ice carnival at Kelowna.

Wednesday's result assured Cougars of at least a tie for a playoff berth. By losing, Penticton fell 22 points behind Victoria and the fifth-place Broncos have only 11 games remaining.

ANDERSON DISTURBED

Cougars' performance brought mixed reaction from coach Doug Anderson. He was delighted at the Cats' continued scoring surge, but was upset by a third-period letdown that enabled the Royals to make it close.

Cougars have counted 28 goals while winning two and tying two of their last four games. In the same stretch, however, Cougars have given up 17 goals.

"I shouldn't complain," said Anderson, "but giving up an average of four goals a game is not something to boast about especially with the playoffs just around the corner. The players simply stopped doing anything in the third period."

ROYALS REDUCE LEAD

That was when Royals rammed in four straight goals to reduce Victoria's lead to 7-6.

Ted Plowe's third goal of the night, and his 25th of the season, provided the insurance edge in the final minute of play.

The goal was Plowe's ninth in his last eight games. He also has counted 10 assists for a total of 19 points, a surge that has taken him to within one point of Bruce Cowick, the team's scoring leader with 55 points.

EASY VICTORY

Cowick scored once — his 22nd goal — and set up two. Murray Kennett, Shayne Webster, John Kwasney and Laurie Moore were Victoria's other marksmen.

Moore also picked up three assists for a four-point night, along with Plowe.

The Cougars out-shot Royals 43-21 in the first two periods to take a 6-2 lead. When Kwasney scored to make it 7-2 early in the third period, there appeared little doubt the Cougars were heading for an easy victory.

They enjoyed domination by skating, passing and forechecking. The Cats neglected all aspects of the game in the third period.

FAMILY NIGHT

The Dalzell brothers, John and Jim, sparked the New Westminster attack. John had three goals and an assist and Jim three assists — each time helping John to score.

Mike Andruff scored two for Royals and Regus Jellima one.

There were more family marksmen at Vernon.

Brothers Jack and Jim Marsh counted four points in all for Vernon.

There was a lot of family but there were few fans: only 150 in New Westminster, 269 in Kelowna, 900 in Vernon.

Viking Players Draw Invitations

Eight players from the Victoria Rugby Union's first division squad, Uvic Vikings, have been selected to play on a combined universities side in an exhibition match at the University of British Columbia on Saturday.

The opposing XV will be selected by the presidents of various B.C. unions.

Vikings chosen to the Universities' team were Jim Wenman, Dave Leonard, Dave Hutchings, Ted Hardy, Mick Eckhardt, Lee Doney, Al Foster and Ken Wilke.

The balance of the universities' side will come from UBC and Simon Fraser.

Swimmers Sought

Boys and girls 12 years of age or under are needed in the Victoria Amateur Swim Club. Coach Gary Blondin will be conducting tryouts at Crystal Garden this weekend from 8:30 to 9:30 a.m. on Saturday and from 8 to 9 a.m. on Sunday. Further information is available from Blondin (477-4735) or Jim Ranson (479-5910).

No Reruns Please, City Pair Pleads

EDMONTON — It's a little early in the year for reruns and Victoria's Kevin Cottam and Linda Roe must be hoping the circumstances of last spring will not be repeated at the 1970 Canadian figure skating championships.

But events seem to be taking on a familiar pattern.

The Racquet Club pair captured top honors Wednesday in the compulsory routines of the junior dance competition with 121.8 points. Keith Caughell and Judy Currah of St. Thomas, Ont., are less than a point behind at 121 while third-place Richard Dowding and Beth Ralbosky of Toronto scored 109.7.

Last year the Victoria twosome led the novice dance event after the compulsory figures by two-tenths of a point ahead of the same second-place Ontario couple. But Miss Currah and Caughell came back in the free dance competition to take the title, 136.4-134.3, with five first-place votes from the judges as against two for the Victorians.

The free-dance portion of the competition is scheduled for Friday night.

Daria Pryschun of Toronto manoeuvered into contention for a second crown at the championships when she finished a close second to Arlene Hall of Toronto in the compulsory figures of the junior women's competition, 416.1-415.5.

Miss Pryschun and clubmate Roger Uuemae won the novice pairs title on Tuesday.

The senior events which will determine Canada's representatives to the world championships slated for Yugoslavia in March, were scheduled to begin this morning with compulsory women's figures.

Finals are Sunday.

Bucks, San Diego Cruise to Victory

By The Canadian Press

San Diego Gulls and Portland Buckaroos went on scoring splurges in the Western Hockey League Wednesday night.

The Gulls ran roughshod over Salt Lake City for a 10-3 victory, administering the worst whipping the Golden Eagles have absorbed this season.

In Portland, the Buckaroos sent 4,113 fans home happy by erupting for four unanswered goals in the final period to whip Denver Spurs 5-1.

Portland's win allowed the second-place Buckaroos to gain two points on idle Vancouver Canucks.

Ken Campbell put Portland ahead 1-0 but Brian McDonald came back to score for Denver before the first period ended. Then in the final period, Rich Van scored what proved to be the winner on a power play at 7:29. Jerry Korab, Cliff Schmautz and Art Jones added the frosting.

In Salt Lake City, the Gulls went in front 2-1 in the first on goals by Len Ronson. Irv Spencer also got a pair for the winners with Fred Hilts, Gerry Odrowski, Warren Hynes, Al Lebrun, Al Nicholson and Alex Faulkner adding one apiece.

Ernie Hicke accounted for all three Salt Lake goals.

Fleet School Reaches Final

Fleet School downed Police Forces 9-3 Wednesday in one sudden-death semi-final of the Armed Forces Hockey League at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

Bennie Weber, George Vacheresse and Ralph Gover each counted two goals to help put league-champion Fleet School in the yet-to-be-scheduled playoff finals.

Second-place Queen's Own Rifles (junior ranks) meet fourth-place Ships in the other semi-final next Wednesday at 8:15 p.m. at the Sports Centre.

Flat out.

The trouble with flats is that they always happen at the wrong time.

BOWLER OF WEEK

Returning to Times Bowler-of-the-Week honor roll after one-year absence is Fred Nelson (above) who has captured men's tenpin award in 14th week of annual contest. Fred topped division this time with second highest total in six-year history of competition. He cracked maples for searing first game of 265 and followed with tallies of 213 and 227 for 705 series in Sunday Men's Commercial League at Mayfair Lanes. Top tenpin total ever recorded in Times contest was 723 rolled by Bill Burke in 1966-67 season.

Claremont's Girls Record Sixth Straight

Claremont won its sixth straight Inter-High School Girls' Basketball League game Wednesday by downing host Mount View, 65-21.

Lorraine Benn paced Claremont with 31 points while Sandy Porter topped Mount View with nine points.

Esquimalt collected a share of third place with a 38-32 overtime victory over visiting Mount Douglas as Nicci Webb showed the way with 13 points. Val McLeod paced Mount Douglas with 15 points.

At Reynolds, Victoria cruised to its second victory in as many days, 43-22 behind the second straight 18-point showing of Sue Holland.

'SECRET WEAPON'

Baron Batting For Vancouver

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland (AP)—Canada has hired a Liechtenstein baron as its "secret weapon" in a bid to win the 1976 Winter Olympic Games for Vancouver-Garibaldi.

Competition is heating up between Vancouver and the other three official candidates, Denver, Colo., Tampere, Finland, and Sion, Switzerland. Delegations are busily lobbying functionaries currently attending the world bobsled championships here in preparation for the choice of a site by the International Olympic Committee at its next congress in Amsterdam May 13.

Russian-born Baron Edward von Falz-Fein, known to friends as Eddi, has been given the job of promoting Vancouver in Eastern Europe, and particularly in Moscow. The Communist countries usually vote en bloc and Soviet support is vital.

Moscow is a candidate for the 1976 summer games. "Neither the Soviet Union nor Canada has ever staged on Olympic Games and we think this the main factor in our favor," says Gordon Sid Young, vice-president of the Vancouver-Garibaldi Olympic committee.

PLAN NO DEAL

"But we don't intend making a deal with the Russians, such as promising to vote for each other."

The baron, a well-known figure in the winter sports world, speaks virtually every major European tongue.

"It will be exciting to see my native country for the first time since 1917," he says. "I'm particularly pleased at the opportunity to help the Canadians with whom I have been associated for many years. It was me who taught them the sport of lugeing (tobogganing)."

An experienced bob-rider and tobogganer, he was personally responsible for getting the luge accepted as an Olympic event for the first time in Innsbruck in 1964 and is currently treasurer of the International Luge Federation.

A compact site, with all facilities within a space of two miles, and a moderate climate similar to Central Europe are advantages being pushed by the Canadians.

DENVER PUSHES HARD

Strong competition comes from Denver, represented here by Clifford Buck, vice-president of the U.S. Olympic Committee.

The possibility of extreme temperatures in February is a handicap for Finland and the Swiss showed only lukewarm enthusiasm before selecting the town of Sion over the favored resort of St. Moritz.

But the IOC, headed by chairman Avery Brundage who does not conceal his dislike of such winter sports as Alpine skiing and bobsledding, may well be favorably disposed to small countries like Finland and Switzerland with their amateur traditions.

Claremont Snaps Lock On First

Defending-champion Claremont clinched the Inter-High School Rugby League title again Wednesday with a 35-0 trouncing of Oak Bay at Beaver Lake Park.

Claremont is undefeated in six matches and advances to the Howard Russell Cup final scheduled in Royal Athletic Park for Feb. 27. The second berth remains a matter for speculation with only two points separating the other four teams.

Mount Douglas Mountainmen moved into a second-place tie with Victoria and Oak Bay with a come-from-behind 11-6 victory at Victoria.

Victoria and Oak Bay have three matches left, Mountainmen have two, and Mount View, two points behind, has four tussles remaining.

SHERGOLD SPARKLES

Doug Shergold paced Claremont with two tries while Mike Kirby and Reg Underwood scored one each. Casey Walt and Dave Kyle each added a convert to give Claremont a 16-0 half-time lead.

A try and covert by Kyle, a convert by Walt and tries by Al Thomson (two), Mac Snobelen and Don McLaren completed the victory.

Doug Archibald paced Mountainmen with a try and convert while single tries were added by Ron Lampe and Paul Connolly.

Mandatory Exhaust Controls On New Cars Urged by MLA

Evan Wolfe (S.C.-Vancouver Centre) Wednesday called for legislation to make exhaust control devices mandatory on all new automobiles sold in B.C.

Wolfe, a Vancouver car dealer, said during debate on the Throne Speech, that equipment to prevent air pollution from cars is available now and now is the time to start enforcing a clean-air policy.

Referring to air pollution caused by the exhaust from motor vehicles as a "major problem," the MLA added that if legislation was passed now "we would make a major step toward improving our air pollution problem."

Wolfe pointed out that in California owners of cars that show evidence of excessive exhaust pollution are required to have their engines tuned up or emission devices repaired.

The Socred backbencher said conditions in Vancouver and the lower mainland were similar to those in the Los Angeles basin. He added though no one would like to see B.C. become another Los Angeles, the American city has made "considerable improvements" in the last few years through tough regulations.

Wolfe said the province should go ahead with legislation because "I don't think B.C. can afford to wait any longer for a national code."

Wolfe also referred to efforts to get a detoxication centre in Vancouver. The responsibility for financing should be shared by all three levels of government, he said.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

Liquor Theft Nets 30 Months

A man who was found in a hotel room Jan. 12 with bottles of liquor much like those stolen from a downtown supper club earlier the same day was sentenced to two and a half years in prison for breaking and entering and theft Wednesday.

Ernest R. Falconer, 1021 Government, was found with 28 full bottles and two partiallly consumed bottles of liquor similar to the number of bottles taken from the Barbary Banjo Restaurant, 31 Bastion Square, when it was broken into several hours earlier.

Judge William Ostler said although evidence against the accused was circumstantial, the link between Falconer and the break-in was clearer.

BARE COINCIDENCE

Ostler noted one bottle left in the storeroom had a serial number that was bracketed by the numbers of two bottles found with Falconer.

"This could be coincidence but this would be a rare coincidence," he said.

He also pointed out there had not been a liquor store open within 24 hours of the time Falconer was found with the stolen property.

Falconer had a considerable record of convictions over the past nine years including two previous breaking and entering and theft sentences.

Ostler pointed out "alcohol caused all this trouble" and had produced a "steady procession (of convictions) in the last few years."

Walter E. Hamilton, 26, 844 Broughton, was committed for trial on the charge of possessing hashish for the purposes of trafficking.

Bail is $2,500.

Richard M. Pegg, 18, 341 Simcoe, received a suspended sentence and placed on an 18-month probation for theft over $50.

He also was fined $500 for possession of hashish.

Pegg stole a car and crashed into a tree on Rockland.

The narcotic was found in his possession when he was searched following the accident.

Gordon D. DeGroot, 22, of 1708 Newton, was sentenced to one month in jail when he pleaded guilty to shoplifting.

He was observed Jan. 20 in a basement department of The Bay when he took an acquarium water pump, valued at $29.98, put it in a bag and left without paying.

DeGroot had a similar conviction last December and was sentenced to 10 days.

Douglas Murray, of the Canadian Forces base at Esquimalt, was fined $300 for driving with a blood-alcohol content over .08 per cent.

He had a breathalyzer reading of .16 when stopped by police Jan. 9.

Gerald A. Ostopchuk, 325 Walter, and Terry Hanford, 650 Linnet Lane, each were fined $300 for driving with a blood-alcohol content over .08 per cent.

Ostopchuk had a reading of .15 Jan. 11 and it was recommended his licence be suspended for four months.

Hanford's reading was .14 Jan. 10 and he was prohibited from driving for four months except on business.

Admiral's Pot Sold

LONDON (Reuters) — A rare treasure recovered from the sea bed was sold by Sotheby's Wednesday for $648—an admiral's chamber pot from the sunken 18th-century warship Association. The pot apparently was made especially for Admiral Sir Cloudesely Shovell, commander-in-chief of the British Mediterranean Fleet, who was drowned in 1717 when the Association and three other ships foundered in a storm off southwest England.

4th MURDER THIS MONTH IN VANCOUVER

VANCOUVER (CP) — The fourth slaying this month was recorded in Vancouver Wednesday.

The body of a man aged about 45, shot through the heart, was found outside a Powell Street rooming house. Police withheld his name.

Three elderly men were held for questioning and police seized a .303-calibre rifle.

In earlier killings, two young men were killed by a single bullet Jan. 1 and a woman was found strangled Jan. 12—also at a Powell Street rooming house.

Two men were charged with murder in these earlier slayings.

Extension Considered

WINNIPEG (CP) — Manitoba Labor Minister A. R. Paulley said Tuesday the Manitoba government is considering extending the minimum vacation entitlement to three weeks after five years employment.

Fourth Man Questioned In Union Man's Murder

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — James Charles Phillips, reported to be the mysterious "fourth man" questioned in the Joseph Yablonski family slayings, appeared Wednesday before a federal grand jury investigating the case.

Phillips, 22, of Cleveland, father of three children, was taken from the Federal Building by FBI agents after he testified.

Officials refused to comment on a Cleveland Plain Dealer story that Phillips backed out of an alleged plot to kill Yablonski, 59, a United Mine Workers union official; his wife, Margaret, 57, and daughter, Charlotte Joanne, 25.

Phillips' parents confirmed, however, that their son knew the three men, all from Cleveland, who are charged with first-degree murder in the gunshot slaying last Dec. 31 at Yablonski's Clarksville, Pa., home.

In West Brownsville, Pa., about 15 miles from Yablonski's home, a hotel owner said Wednesday that two of the accused, Paul E. Gilly, 36, and Aubran Martin, 21, registered for an overnight stay in the hotel Dec. 27. The third man charged is Claude E. Vealey, 26.

The hotel owner, Edward Bakewell, said the FBI ordered him to lock the two rooms where the men stayed and "not to let anybody in."

Phillips, the last to testify Wednesday at the hearing expected to run into next week, was arrested last year in Youngstown with Vealey and charged with two counts of housebreaking.

His mother, Mrs. Floyd Byrge, said her son had never mentioned Yablonski but knew the three men accused.

Others testifying Wednesday included Martin's wife, who invoked the Fifth Amendment "on all questions except for a few on matters unrelated to the incident," reported her lawyer, Harry Starkoff. The amendment protects individual rights against self-incrimination.

Mrs. Martin, said by Starkoff to be ill and under medication, fell to the floor in a doorway as she left the jury room. She was helped to her feet and escorted out.

NO GAS STATIONS IN THE SKY

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Air Force planes have been running out of gas and crashing and the top air force general says it looks to him like "a lack of professionalism and discipline."

As a result, Gen. John D. Ryan, air force chief of staff, has cracked down with orders to tighten up on supervision. The orders came two weeks after his son, Capt. John D. Ryan Jr., 29, was killed when his Phantom jet crashed in California.

The air force said 10 planes were lost last year due to "fuel depletion."

Federal Union Centralization Bid Rejected

TORONTO (CP) — Advocates of a strong, central union for federal government employees were turned down Wednesday at the national convention of the 124,000-member Public Service Alliance of Canada.

After a day of bickering, convention delegates refused to give the necessary two-thirds majority of constitutional amendments that would have clipped power from the alliance's 14 component unions.

Rejected were proposals to hand over to the alliance's central executive sole responsibility for research translation and information functions and for discipline of member groups.

Even a plea by the alliance's president, Claude Edwards, that the legal position of the PSAC has been open to question failed to overcome resistence of the "independence" components. Principal oppositon came from the largest component in the alliance, the 28,000-member Union of National Defence Employees.

CAUGHT ON PROCEDURE

Many resolutions which would have changed the federal balance within the union originated in a committee report prepared by the national vice-president, Trevor Gough.

Mr. Gough was caught while acting as chairman with his hand in the procedural cookie-jar midway through the afternoon session of the constitutional debate.

A resolution which would have affirmed the direct membership in the alliance of individual public employees received in an open ballot 144 votes to 77 — a majority but fewer than the required two-thirds of the delegates voting.

Mr. Gough, however, announced the motion had carried. The 77 votes against it, he said, were only one-third of the 231 voting delegates who had presented their credentials at the door when the session began. Some, apparently, had departed.

In the angry dispute that followed, another national vice-president, James Wyllie, blasted Mr. Gough:

"I should not have to point out incorrect parliamentary procdure to you sir, not at procedure to you sir, not at your age."

Mr. Gough is to retire from the PSAC executive this week after close to 40 years of public service union activity.

The motion failed to win a two-thirds majority in a secret ballot which followed.

Citizen Fight On Pollution?

GALT, Ont. (CP) — Ordinary citizens should have the right to take their battle against pollution to the courts, Justice Minister John Turner told the annual meeting of the Galt Chamber of Commerce Wednesday night.

He noted that recent air-pollution readings in Canada's major cities have approached a critical health hazard.

Pollution was not only a problem of ecology but a problem of the law as well.

He recommended creating new regulatory institutions with alternative controls—penal, taxing and injunctive. Vested economic and community interests and the pressure they generate must be dealt with.

U.S. House To Resubmit Vetoed Bill

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — The House of Representatives appropriations committee is expected to resubmit the vetoed $19,700,000,000 money bill for the departments of labor and health, education and welfare, but with a clause granting President Nixon discretionary powers over spending, informed sources said today.

However, the committee probably will stick by the same basic bill when it meets either today or Friday to decide its course of action, the sources said.

The committee meeting follows an unsuccessful House attempt Wednesday to override a presidential veto of the bill.

Although 226 congressmen voted to reverse the veto, this was not the necessary two-thirds majority.

After the vote was counted, Nixon invited the 191 congressmen who supported him to a party at the White House. His guests included 35 Democrats.

White House spokesman Ronald Ziegler said: "The president was pleased that a substantial number in the House of Representatives were willing to stand up and be counted in a national priority—that priority was to get prices under control."

Nixon vetoed the appropriations bill on the grounds it was inflationary because Congress added $1,100,000,000 to his budget request.

The Democrats have a 245-188 majority in the lower chamber.

When their names were called, 35 Democrats and 156 Republicans supported the veto. Only 27 Republicans joined the 199 Democrats in opposing it.

Plan Turned Down

VANCOUVER (CP) — City council has rejected a suggestion by the director of planning to allow the projection of advertisements from the roof of the Vancouver Art Gallery on a six-month trial basis. In a brief to council, American Visual Projection Ltd. said slide projection advertising would help ease the billboard blight in the city.

Clear Separation of News, Advertising Proposed to Mass Media Committee

OTTAWA (CP) — Daily operation of a newspaper could be insulated from the owner's financial interests by leaving decisions to a democracy of the working journalists, the special Senate committee on mass media was told Wednesday night.

Earle J. Beattie, professor of journalism at the University of Western Ontario in London, agreed under questioning that it would be a good idea to keep ownership and operational functions separate and introduce "democratization of newspapers."

In a wide-ranging submission to the committee, Prof. Beattie also advocated a cleaner separation of news and advertising in a revised newspaper format, extended foreign news coverage in a co-operative effort and establishment of press councils to deal with grievances both by and against newspapers.

He catalogued a series of alleged abuses in London, Ont., by the "quasi-monopoly" of The Free Press newspaper and its broadcasting outlets.

In an 80-page prepared presentation and about 90 minutes of testimony, Prof. Beattie also said there is evidence of biased election coverage in the Toronto Telegram and use of advertising features in all Toronto newspapers which a reader might confuse with news articles.

CHARGES REVENGE

Specifically, Prof. Beattie charged that the London Free Press firm put open-line broadcaster John Dickins off the air last October because he had attacked "some sacred cows of The Free Press."

Then, he said, the various units of the company closed ranks to manipulate their reports and comments on the situation. He presented pages of documentation.

He also accused The Free Press newspaper of "negative bias" in reporting examples of social dissent in London.

The John Dickins case had been aired a week earlier when Walter Blackburn, who has majority control of Free Press newspaper and broadcasting interests, appeared before the committee with company executives.

Testimony then was that the free-lance contract of Mr. Dickins had been terminated because of dissatisfaction with his performance. Manipulation of subsequent coverage of the situation was denied.

Prof. Beattie said he believes the morning and evening editions of The Free Press newspaper have improved news coverage recently and "even its editorial page shows evidence that it is struggling manfully to get into the 20th century."

However, he added, The Free Press "can be counted on to verbally 'put down' any demonstration" in the streets of London, both on the editorial page and the news pages.

He presented examples of recent news stories about demonstrations urging a boycott of California grapes in support of workers there and against the Vietnam war.

Prof. Beattie underlined the use of what he termed "snarl words" in the reports which he said tended to discredit the demonstrators. By contrast, he said, when a protest meeting of businessmen was organized against the federal government's proposed tax reforms it received both straight coverage and advance promotion.

When he wrote a letter to Free Press Editor William Heine to complain about coverage of a demonstration, he received no reply.

"Any criticism of media sins brings one of two responses—self-righteous anger or silence," Prof. Beattie said. "It seems many editors suffer from some ancient guilt. . . . They seem to consider themselves knights of the holy grail who have suddenly been charged with rape." Saying that he did not wish to leave the impression that The Free Press stands alone in biased news coverage, Prof. Beattie presented a study conducted by one of his senior students which showed "biased election coverage" by the Toronto Telegram in the Ontario provincial election of 1967.

GIVES SPECIFICS

In one October week that year, news space devoted to each party in column inches of The Telegram measured 809 for the Conservatives, 585 for the New Democratic Party and 446 for the Liberals.

Scoring the coverage subjectively for position of the reports in the newspaper and whether the headlines and content were favorable, unfavorable or neutral, the study worked out to 1,873 points for the Conserva-

Prof. Beattie, arguing for a more distinct separation of news and advertising in newspapers, cited evidence that The Telegram, the Montreal Star and Le Devoir were offering to sell space to advertisers for promotional stories "calculated to deceive" the reader into believing they were news products of the newspapers.

For many years, the Toronto Globe and Mail published Mary Walpole's dining and shopping column as if it were an editorial product until it recently added the line "a regular advertising feature." The same was true of the Toronto Star column, Dining with Liz, Prof. Beattie said.

"In short, both Liz and Mary would tell you about the culinary joys of any restaurant that paid for the space, even if it resulted in indigestion.

Prof. Beattie calculated that The Toronto Star, for example, could eliminate advertising completely and maintain revenue of more than $50,000,000—the income last fiscal year—if readers would pay 30 cents a copy.

However, he said, the reader really wants advertising, especially the classified and department-store ads.

He proposed instead that newspapers should confine all advertising to a distinctively separate, indexed section.

PREFERS CANADIAN

Referring to foreign news coverage in Canadian newspapers, Prof. Beattie said Canadian dailies are better than most of their counterparts in the United States and Britain but he decried the dependence mainly on reports from U.S., British and French news services.

The Canadian Press, the national, co-operative news-gathering agency, had desks in London and New York in 1938—when there were 83 member newspapers—selecting and editing news from foreign agencies.

Today, when CP has more than 100 member newspapers and its subsidiary Broadcast News services almost 350 radio and TV stations, its foreign coverage is only slightly expanded.

"The same plea—lack of money—is made by publishers, but when they pass away they seem to leave substantial fortunes."

Prof. Beattie proposed that the big metropolitan newspapers and the groups, instead of maintaining a few foreign correspondents each, should pool their money and set up wider, co-operative foreign coverage through CP.

Asked about the charge that The Free Press organization had manipulated news in the John Dickins case, Prof. Beattie said the danger is that the reader would not know how often the organization might do the same on other occasions.

HAS SIMILAR SHOW

He told Senator J. Harper Prowse (L—Alberta) that Mr. Dickins is manager of, radio CJOE, a rival of the Free Press firm's CFPL, and has a show similar to the one he had on CFPL.

Senator Prowse said that indicates the story has a happy ending for the people of London, because they can still hear him.

Questioning Prof. Beattie about the London newspaper reports of demonstrations and the language used, he asked if anything in the stories was untrue.

Prof. Beattie said repeated use of the word "straggle" to describe the demonstration, for example, was "a put-down word." The word would not have been used to describe the way businessmen entered the tax-protest meeting.

Use of such words was common in Time magazine, he said: A favored person would "stride" into a room, someone out of favor "shuffled" into a room.

NOT BIG TURNOUT

"Referring to a report and picture about 23 persons demonstrating for a grape boycott, Senator Prowse said 23 did not amount to much out of London's population of more than 200,000. He said that he would not expect much coverage or a picture if he drew only 23 persons to a political meeting.

Prof. Beattie said sometimes it is better to have no coverage at all than coverage that is negative. He cited the study that showed the NDP ended up with a minus score in the Toronto Telegram's election coverage.

Senator Prowse questioned the validity of the study's methods. Prof. Beattie said the scoring system involved some subjective judgment, but it was valid as long as the same scoring method was applied to coverage of all parties.

Prof. Beattie also proposed establishment of a national newspaper financed by the government indirectly, on the pattern of the CBC. Senator Prowse suggested the result would be a Canadian Pravda or Izvestia.

Etna Awakens

CATANIA, Sicily (AP) — Mount Etna, Europe's tallest and most active volcano, shot molten rock high into the air today following a four-month lull. Experts said the eruption was part of the volcano's normal cycle of activity.

Jury Rules Negligence In Drug Death

By NEILL GADDES

A coroner's jury ruled Wednesday night that the death of Douglas Hampton, 18, could have been prevented except for the ordinary negligence of Timothy Thornley, 19, who supplied him with a drink of Asthmador and water at a party Jan. 10.

The jury said Hampton met his death the night of the party at a Cordova Bay cottage through the use of the medication, usually used as an inhalant, which caused him to wander, dazed, into a Saanich irrigation pond where he drowned.

The decision, after a half-hour deliberation, ended the inquest that had 24 witnesses and more than 10 hours testimony and legal argument during four sittings.

Saanich police said this morning they intended further investigation of circumstances surrounding the death of, Hampton.

Inspector John Post asked Thornley if he felt by supplying the Asthmador, he was acting in "wanton and reckless disregard for the lives of the people."

Thornley said he didn't think so.

Post, with Det.-Sgt. Robin Stewart, represented the Saanich police department throughout the inquest.

Earlier cross-examination by Post revealed that the witness had been in the army medical corps and had been instructed in the "extreme care" needed in administering drugs to patients.

Thornley, protected by the court by the Canada Evidence Act and the British Columbia Protection Act, agreed he had purchased the medication Jan. 9, the day before the party, but disagreed that he showed a wanton and reckless disregard.

Asked to Mix Asthmador

Thornley, on Post's instructions, mixed one full teaspoon of Asthmador powder in a glass of water and told the jury the resulting olive-green solution was similar to what he was drinking Jan. 10 when Hampton arrived at the cottage about 8 p.m.

He said Hampton asked him what he was drinking, he told him Asthmador, and then Hampton asked if he could try some.

Thornley asked if he could handle it and Hampton replied he could.

The two then split the glass and Thornley stated Hampton got less than half the mixture.

Post pointed out that within three minutes of Thornley mixing the drink in the courtroom, there was a layer of sediment on the bottom of the glass.

Thornley had testified he drank out of the glass first and Hampton drank after him, which meant the deceased drank from the concentrated half of the solution.

Thornley said he had some Asthmador in water the day he bought it and "became quite tired and fell asleep for a few hours."

Paul Malkin, 4895 Cordova Bay, testified he came home from work Jan. 9 and found the can of Asthmador on a shelf.

He read the label which stated the contents included belladonna and from previous experience he knew it should not be taken internally.

"You don't realize what you are doing" was the warning Malkin gave the youths at the cottage at the time, pointing out the thirst and the hallucinations involved.

'I Didn't Want Any of It'

"I was going to throw it out, I just didn't want any part of it," he said but was talked out of it by the others.

Malkin later disposed of the Asthmador on the morning of Jan. 11 before he knew of the disappearance of Hampton.

Richard Rogers, 4627 Cordova Bay, told the jury he went to the party Jan. 10 and saw Hampton.

He said he asked "are you guys stoned?" of the youths gathered there and most said they were.

Rogers said he asked if the can of Asthmador he saw was what they had taken, someone replied it was and then he asked how to mix his own drink.

"I was feeling pretty tired," Rogers said after he drank the drug and shortly afterward he decided to go home and sleep.

He said Hampton indicated he wanted to go too and they both left together to hitch-hike for home.

They got a ride to the intersection of Royal Oak and Cordova Bay, got out of the car, and Rogers saw Hampton start walking along Royal Oak with his guitar over his shoulder as he went in the opposite direction.

Another youth who was at the party testified he saw Hampton and he "looked pretty stoned."

The youth said he had seen several other youths under the influence of Asthmador earlier Jan. 10 and he did not want to take it himself.

Hampton's body was found Jan. 13 in an irrigation pond near the intersection where he was last seen by Rogers.

Coroner Edmond St. Jorre instructed the jury they could return a verdict of accidental death, if no neglience was apparent, criminal negligence, if someone showed a flagrant disregard for the lives of others, or ordinary negligence, if inadventence on the part of someone was shown.

1,900 Phones Drowned Out

Heavy rains last week were responsible for between 1,800 and 1,900 Greater Victoria residents being without phones Wednesday.

B.C. Telephone officials located the break shortly after 8 a.m.

It occurred in a 1,200-pair underground cable at the corner of Roy and Carey.

Company spokesman Glynn Jones explained:

"The sleeve around the main cable broke away where the cable runs two feet under a culvert. The ground was pretty soggy from last week's rains and some of the moisture seeped in."

Jones said that two splicers worked all day, hooking up the lines gradually. The job was completed by 4:15 p.m.

The cable runs out of the company's Colquitz office.

BLOSSOMS adorn this tree in Beacon Hill Park, but being the first Japanese plum tree to flower in Victoria doesn't guarantee its immunity from a little pruning today by city gardener Dan Luyk.

Average price of Victoria houses sold through multiple listing in 1969 was $4,954 higher than the previous year, or more than five times the increase in national average.

According to figures supplied by the Canadian Association of Real Estate Boards, the increase in Victoria's average sale price was the greatest of 12 representative cities across the country.

During 1969, the average multiple listing price in Victoria was $22,606, compared with $17,652 in 1968, ranking the city with Calgary, where the average price last year was $22,510. Edmonton, Regina, Saskatoon and Winnipeg all were lower, but the remaining six cities were all higher, up to $29,931 in Toronto.

The national average last year rose $979 to $23,281; the B.C. average $2,364 to $20,839; the Vancouver average $3,344 to $23,939.

Resale value of houses accross Canada continued to climb last year, despite a decline in sales volume in most areas.

Total dollar volume of ML sales in Canada last year was $1.7 billion against $1.47 billion in 1968, up 16 per cent, but in the last half the national increase was only 7 per cent.

The number of ML sales fell in the final half, compared with a 12 per cent gain in the first half of 1969.

J. T. Blair Jackson, research director for CAREB in Toronto, said there is no lack of demand for reasonable priced housing, where adequate financing is available.

"High interest rates, scarcity of mortgage funds and unrealistic prices that are being asked by some vendors have no doubt contributed to the decline in sales activity," Jackson said.

REPORTER EJECTED

Red Power Talks Tough

By PAT DUFOUR

Red Power has come out into the open in Victoria through two militant Wednesday meetings attended by Indians determined to make their cause known through public disturbances.

Both meetings were organized by Indian students—the first at the Institute of Adult Studies, the second at James Bay.

The first meeting was to organize a Native Student Association. It was attended by about 150 students.

Anti-white militancy was to the fore, beginning with ejection of the Times reporter by Larry Seymour, one of the leaders and a student at the institute.

Several of the students' teachers were at the meeting and were almost ejected as well.

Today a student told what happened:

"They took a vote after we were told that a reporter was thrown out and was uptight when she left. We all voted no white people could attend.

"Then it was pointed out that three or four of our teachers were there. They started to move toward the door. They were told to 'sit down, shut up and not speak unless they were spoken to.' "

The student said one male teacher, who normally takes publicity pictures, arrived with his camera and "ten big guys crowded around him, ready to get him out, until they found out he was a teacher."

The student also said the group repudiated all the local chiefs and their elders with the exception of Chief Philip Paul, who was at the meeting.

The emphasis throughout the meeting, the student added, was on militancy and the need for "direct confrontation" with the whites.

Uvic student Bill Wilson was elected president.

The evening meeting was to map out aggressive tactics, such as "kicking out windows."

Asked why every one at the institute meeting voted against whites being present, the student said "I guess we were intimidated."

Victoria Constable Peter Lund, who works with the Thunderbird People, a group dedicated to creating a transient and crisis centre for Indians, confirmed that the Native Student Association was Red Power-oriented.

"They're real trouble and the older Indians want nothing to do with it."

He said that the emergence of Red Power in the city threatened every step of progress made by his group.

"We're going to have an emergency meeting and lay it right on the line. Anyone who joins the association will have to get out. We can't afford to be connected with the militants."

Metro Health Board Seeks To Plead Cause to Bennett

Five Greater Victoria MLAs will be asked to plead the Metropolitan Board's cause to Premier Bennett.

The decision to call for assistance from the MLAs was made reluctantly by members of an ad hoc intermunicipal group Wednesday.

Council members from Victoria, Esquimalt and Oak Bay, plus school districts representatives and officials from the metro health board, had gathered to discuss Victoria's Feb. 23 deadline for a city pull-out.

Only a full meeting of city council and a reversal of a decision last Friday can change that date.

But Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread suggested the group call on the members of the legislature in one last attempt to persuade Health Minister Ralph Loffmark and Bennett that the situation is critical in the health services field.

Victoria Mayor Courtney Haddock seized on the suggestion that further municipal-provincial talks be held and later announced that the district's five MLAs would meet health, school and municipal officials next Wednesday at 9 a.m.

While Haddock was optimistic that a further round of talks might break the financial log-jam, Oak Bay Mayor Frances Elford gloomily noted "it's just a fact, in the past diplomacy has gotten us nowhere."

Haddock said he was sure that once the MLAs saw what a strong stand was being taken they would insist on some action.

Victoria, Esquimalt and Oak Bay are threatening to withdraw from the public health organization unless per capita costs are equalized and the entire service regionalized.

This year marks the third year of negotiations with the provincial government.

Rubymay Parrott, chairman of both Saanich School Board and the metro health board, said she would prefer tougher action.

"What we want is a strong delegation to the premier," she said. "He's the man who holds the purse string. With all due respect to his abilities I don't think he's aware of what is going on. A strong delegation could tell him."

Haddock said he still preferred a conference with the MLAs.

"After all, he is the premier," he said. "He'd just call in the minister and the MLAs anyway."

While the three core municipalities are threatening to pull out at the municipal level the Greater Victoria School Board is threatening to do its own breakaway and establish a special health service for schools.

Dr. Donald Shorting, deputy chairman of the Greater Victoria board, admitted cost structure had not yet been discussed but he told the group that the mechanics of such a move had been studied in detail.

Both he and Mrs. Parrott claimed that schools did not receive service commensurate with the funds paid into the metro establishment.

Attending yesterday's meeting were Mayor Haddock, Victoria; Mayor Frances Elford, Oak Bay; Ald. Ken Hill, Esquimalt; Mrs. Parrott, schools and the health board; Ald. Tom Christie, Victoria's representative on the health board; Dr. Whitbread, city manager Dennis Young and treasurer Jim Bramley.

POOL COSTS SINK

All eight bids to build the new swimming pool in Saanich were below estimated construction costs.

The bids were officially opened Wednesday and were considered by the Gordon Head Community Centre Committee late today.

It was expected that the committee would make a recommendation to Monday night's council meeting. Construction could start in a few weeks and be finished in about six months.

Low bidder for the job was E. J. Hunter and Sons Ltd., at $401,384.

Other bids were Farmer Construction, $405,117; Bird Construction, $417,849; G. H. Wheaton, $419,617; Patterson Construction, $423,190; H. E. Fowler and Sons, $425,386; C. J. Oliver, $427,927; Allied Developments, $434,498.

Peterson and Lester, architects for the minicipal pool and community centre which will be built on the Lambrick Estate in Gordon Head, had estimated construction costs at $435,000.

A total of $470,000 is available from the 1967 recreation referendum for the project. In addition to construction costs, there are professional fees, some site work and a driveway.

The 25-metre pool will have four lanes and the building will also house a 64-by-40 community hall, a small stage and kitchen. It will be built at the Torquay-Feltham end of the 44-acre Lambrick Estate, which Saanich purchased in 1965.

Arthur Mayse . . .

AS A LOYAL TIMESMAN, I make it my business to read such gleanings as the opposition has managed to scrabble from the fields we reap by day. This check includes a coffee visit with our neighbor's syndicated trouble-shooter, Ann Landers, who the other morning gave a wrong answer to a questioning child.

The kid's sense of fair play was outraged by a principal who punished a whole schoolful of students because a few had transgressed.

Faster than thought, Mrs. Landers issued the opinion that mass punishment is an effective technique, and that the innocent who are required to suffer for the sins of the guilty will bring these into line by applying moral persuasion.

This reply — and I'm confident that our Abigail Van Buren would agree — is so wrong morally and every other way that it shocks me.

What it implies is that the means justifies the end, that the kangaroo court and lynch law are to be condoned, and that for the sake of expediency, a basic tenet of law may be reversed.

This is that the burden of proof of guilt rests with the state, and that even at risk of letting a miscreant go free, the innocent mustn't be clobbered.

I don't suggest that the principal who applied so abhorrent a device must be a tyrant by nature. It's more likely that he's a harried, overworked executive afflicted by too much paperwork, too many extra-curricular demands on his time, and perhaps some such tension-induced ill as an ulcer or a pain in the neck.

But, extenuating circumstances or no, the tactic is a damaging one, especially when applied to children.

The child's sense of what's just and what isn't is very keen, and he is endowed with a memory like an elephant's for unjust acts committed against him. In adult life, when he has acquired a few injustices of his own to his discredit, he may preserve a hostile recollection of the old bat who kept the whole class in.

Even today, I haven't forgotten the teacher who decided that a well-strapped class would apply moral persuasion to its cutups. She bade us line ourselves around the hollow square of blackboards, then began in a methodical manner to deal out correction.

She started from up front, where most of the mild, well-behaved and short-sighted had been imprudent enough to position themselves. By the time she had licked these, her strap-arm was growing weary. It failed her completely before she had worked her way around to the other side where the culprits had gathered.

All she got out of her pogrom was a disaffected class and a touch of bursitis.

It should be noted, too, that indiscriminate punishment can't be depended on as a means of forcing the unjustly dealt with to apply 'moral' persuasion.

Hitler, this century's blackest monster to date, exerted just such pressure on the captive peoples of Europe, and thereby helped hasten his Third Reich's end as well as his own.

Devilled by guerrillas and saboteurs, his agents hung hostages in job lots. They butchered an entire village population.

The results were as history records them. Resistance movements strengthened rather than diminished. Saboteurs found more hidey-holes made available to them.

The very name of Lidice, where all were slaughtered, became a symbol of retribution.

This is a far cry from the classroom, but the principle applies to that hasty principal, and I trust his quite unworkable scheme for getting at the few through the many is not widely employed.

If minor injustices must be applied — and not one of us chugs along through life without bumping our noses on a few — let them at least be administered on an individual basis. That way, they leave fewer scars and may even have a certain value.

They induce stubborness, which is not necessarily a bad quality, and they may strengthen an interest that might have failed from lack of opposition.

A keen and exceptionally well-informed reader once told me that she was punished for venturing ahead of her grade. She had borrowed a next-grade English textbook, and was apprehended on school property with her nose in the forbidden volume.

"What struck me as completely unjust," she said, "wasn't that I should get into trouble for reading ahead, but for reading on my own time."

Injustice in that case presented a challenge, but sharing a mass rap for sins one hasn't had the pleasure of committing offers no such benefit, in school or out.

Men's Clothes Steal the Show

Although there is a distinct ho-hum attitude in reports on women's fashions from Paris and Rome, the incredible outfits designed for men are, as one writer put it, a giggle.

Paper Suits Predicted

MONTREAL (UPI) — Throwaway $25 suits might be the thing of the 1980's, paperman J. Jodlowski told members of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association.

Paper dresses for women are already a reality and a counterpart for males must surely materialize, Jodlowski said.

After wearing the paper suit for a few months, the well-dressed man of the 80's will simply burn the old suit and purchase a new one.

"Few ever dreamed that baby diapers would one day be a forestry product, but they are, and disposable." Jodlowski said.

Shoulder Bare, Caveman Style

PARIS (UPI) — Designer Jacques Estrel, an avowed advocate of the unisex look, cornered the best giggle of the week with his offerings for men in the Paris fashion collections for spring and summer.

The audience wolf-whistled during his show when a male model with shoulder-length blond hair walked down the runway in a purple, calf-length gown (Esterel calls it a tunic) that left one shoulder bare, caveman-style.

But that was only the beginning. The designer, an iconoclastic Spaniard, showed men's versions of almost every woman's outfit he made. And the giggles and whistles left him undaunted.

"Virility," he scoffed, "is in act, not in dress."

Spiro Named Best-Dressed

NEW YORK (AP) — Vice-President Spiro T. Agnew, evangelist Billy Graham and entertainer Liberace were among those listed Sunday by a fashion institute as 15 best-dressed men in the United States.

Also on the list, although he has never been in the United States and is not an American, was Prince Charles who topped the society category.

The choices were made by the Fashion Foundation of America, made up of designers, artists and stylists.

Agnew was the best-dressed statesman, succeeding President Nixon, because Agnew's "dress quietly expresses forceful integrity and sincerity." Graham was called best-dressed evangelist because of "dramatic subtleness" in attire.

Liberace represented the entertainment field, the foundation saying: His "gleaming sequinned ensembles are the key to fashion leadership."

No reason was given for listing Prince Charles first in society.

Ladies' Day in Britain

LONDON (AP) — It was a good day for the ladies in Britain Sunday.

The Royal Shakespeare Company named its first woman director, 23-year-old Buzz Goodbody. She will direct the company's production of King John this season.

Valerie Hodgson, a 15 year-old schoolgirl from Dover, made her debut as a sportscaster, doing the play-by-play of a soccer game for a Dover hospital.

Lesley Pearman of Yardley got what she wanted for her 21st birthday—a white wedding. Her husband arranged the church wedding and champagne reception they couldn't afford when they were married in a registry office three years ago.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Carry-All Solves Text-Book Juggle

By PENNY SAVER

As I stepped to the rear of the crowded bus, a young schoolgirl jumped to her feet and waved me into her seat.

I accepted the offer and eased a twinge of guilt over my packageless state by offering to hold the books she was juggling from arm to arm.

"I really should get a bag or something," she commented as she flexed her arm with a grateful smile. "But I don't think I'd want one as large as yours."

I patted the straw carry-all which, due to an unsuccessful shopping trip, held nothing but my purse.

"This bag serves me well," I said, "and with luck should last long enough to carry beach gear this summer. But it wan't the smallest of its kind by any means.

"These bags begin at $2.25 for ones little larger than a large size purse; smaller, if my memory serves me well, in dimension than a brief case.

"Some have woven handles and bright trims of various kinds while others have leather handles and buckles to hold them shut. Most I remember have this handy outer pocket for car keys, house keys or other things one needs in a hurry.

"Then, of course, you could always get one of those brightly woven Greek bags like that girl over there is carrying. But if this pile is an example of the books you take home each night, that would be a bit too small."

The girl giggled.

"I need purses that size, but are those Greek? I've seen so many of them but never knew where they come from."

The bags we were discussing are found at the same place I found my straw carry-all and cost $3.95 each.

They are woven of a heavy thread and have bands of patterns in a wide variety of colors.

The bag is made from two flat pieces of material stitched together at the side. A twisted cord forms a shoulder strap and the ends are finished with tassels.

I found some woven wool ponchos the other day that I thought especially nice.

They are $20 each and have a small collar and laced front opening. The bottom edge is finished in a fringe.

What makes these ponchos a little different from the ones I mentioned a week or so ago is that they are hand-made and have the rough look of an honest-to-goodness Indian sweater. This is not to say that they aren't beautifully made and finished, however.

They come in various patters and colors.

If you would like to know where to find these items, please call 382-3131 between 9 a.m. and 12 noon.

SEW SIMPLE

By EUNICE FARMER

Dear Eunice Farmer,

I purchased a pleated skirt for my little girl who is 6 years old. The waistband seems to fit snugly at the waist but it keeps slipping down. Is there a way to remedy this little problem? — Mrs. A. S.

Dear Mrs. A. S.:

Your little girl is having the same problem that some of us wish we had, namely: no hips! The only solution I can think of is to add shoulder straps made of decorative braid, ribbon or whatever. Usually children of this age look much better in jumpers than they do in skirts.

Dear Eunice Farmer,

What is the matter with a pattern when it seems perfect if I use the sleeveless version but when I apply sleeves it seems to be too wide at the shoulders? Can I correct this before I cut the pattern? I never know just what to cut off the dress later. — Mrs. C. S.

Dear Mrs. C. S.:

Patterns vary so much for sleeveless dresses that it is difficult to say that they must end in one particular spot of the shoulder. Some dresses definitely have a higher cut than others.

If the pattern you are using is too wide at the shoulders, it is much safer to adjust before you cut the pattern. Take a fold in the pattern itself, at the center of the shoulder. Usually about one-fourth inch fold is all that is needed; taper this fold to nothing about 5 to 6 inches below the shoulder.

This will keep the armhole exactly the same size that was intended to fit the sleeve. I would try to avoid changing the armhole itself because it is so easy to lose the correct shape.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Bothered by BYOB

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: We recently moved to Virginia, and like living here very much, but there is a custom here which baffles and disturbs us. It's giving parties and asking the guests to bring their own liquid refreshments!

We live in a neighborhood where the incomes range from $8,000 to $30,000 a year, and from time to time we have received invitations to cocktail parties, New Year's parties, etc., with the initials, B.Y.O.B. printed on the invitation. This, we were told, means "bring your own bottle."

My wife and I have always felt that the host and hostess should provide all the refreshments, so consequently, we have refused all such invitations, and when we have told some of our friends why, we are met with a shrug of the shoulders and silence.

We recently received an invitation with B.Y.O.F. (Bring your own food.) Abby, we aren't college kids in a housing project. Are we wrong to feel as we do about this custom? — Happy in Richmond.

DEAR HAPPY: Not in my book. Next it will be B.Y.O.W. (Bring your own wife.)

DEAR ABBY: Three years ago Larry (not his name) and I were married. The plan was that I would work one year and then quit and start a family. Well, I've worked three years and Larry won't let me quit. He keeps buying things we can't afford and I have to work to keep up the payments.

Larry now says he doesn't want to be a father as kids get on his nerves. He does have an awful temper. Our dog got loose the other day and when Larry finally caught him, he threw him against the basement wall several times with all his might. It nearly broke my heart.

I'm an only child, Abby, and Larry takes me to visit my folks once a week for only one hour, and he keeps looking at his watch all the time we're there. I know my parents are hurt, but they don't say anything. My parents have a little money, and Larry curses them because they won't give us part of the money now that I will one day inherit.

I feel trapped. I know this marriage was a mistake, but I married Larry against the advice of so many people I feel determined to make a go of it. What advice can you give me?—Trapped.

DEAR TRAPPED: What's trapping you? If you spend the rest of your life trying to prove that you are right and everyone else was wrong, knowing that you were wrong, you are foolish. Take the dog (the four-legged one) and clear out.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a very fine person and I love him very much, but there is something that upsets me terribly, and I just can't seem to get him to listen to reason. His dentures!

He got them years ago when he couldn't afford anything better. Now his face has fallen in, and his dentures don't seem to fit his face. His teeth look so big and artificial, and they are grey and ugly. Also, there are two teeth missing on the side and it's very noticeable when he laughs and smiles.

Believe it or not, Abby, he is a professional man, who speaks before groups! We are very well off financially, now, and my husband could certainly afford the best in dentures, but for some unknown reason he is so sensitive about the subject, I don't dare bring it up for fear that he will fly off the handle.

Abby, he knows that I'm his best friend and I don't say anything to hurt him. If he only knew how much better looking he would be if he changed those dentures? Oh, dear, I feel so helpless. Sign me—Silent Partner.

DEAR PARTNER: One's best friend is often the worst one to offer criticism of a personal nature. Ask someone else, whose judgment your husband respects, to wise up your darling. (P.S. Ill-fitting dentures are not only unattractive, they can cause serious complications to one's health later on.)

CONFIDENTIAL TO THINK YOU'RE SQUARE IN BAYSIDE, N.Y.: I speak only for myself, but I cannot concentrate with music or any kind of noise in the background. And they can keep their canned music in shopping centres! Whenever I hear Herb Alpert, I forget what I'm shopping for and am tempted to ask the floorwalker to dance with me.

Women of India Rule in Home, Victoria Club Told

The narrow, insular British mind created the myth that women of India were considered inferior by their men, Bhabesh Das Gupta told the Women's Canadian Club of Victoria Wednesday.

"In actual fact, our women's world is as a partner in a domestic set-up," Mr. Das Gupta told an audience of more than 250.

Mr. Das Gupta is a local teacher and lecturer.

ALWAYS INSULAR

"The source of the inferiority myth comes from the early British missionaries and other Westerns, he said.

"The British have always been insular and narrow. They considered non-British people as foreign even in the foreigners' own country," Mr. Das Gupta commented.

"So these British missionaries were unable to understand other societies. They assumed that because they couldn't see our women, the women were in purdah, hidden away."

Mr. Das Gupta said that at that time in India's history it was not respectable for Indian women to be seen by common people.

"The less you were seen the more respectable you were."

Mr. Das Gupta, outlining the equalities Indian women enjoy, pointed to a comparison of Christian and Hindu scriptures.

"In the Hindu scripture a woman is described as 'half of yourself' or partner, or 'partner in religious rites.' If I were to hold a religious ceremony it would not be successful unless my wife was at my side."

Mr. Das Gupta then read from the Christian Bible, Genesis, chapter 3, verse 16 which states that woman shall conceive in sorrow and be ruled by her husband.

He said Indian women rule in the home while the men rule in the outside world.

WIFE DECIDES

"It is the wife's place to decide what is to be done for the home. It is the man's position to buy it or pay for it."

"Essentially, the role of the woman in India can be summed up in three words: mother, wife and housewife."

The Indian woman is very conscious that the well-being of family and household depend on her. She has little time to think of herself, giving all the time, "and surprisingly enough, she does not grumble," he said.

Comic Opera Guards Get Cold Reception

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's idea of European-style formal dress garb for White House police has received a cold reception from some critics.

The new $95 outfits ordered for about 100 policemen are described by the secret service as "a white cream tunic, made out of elastique, with a double-breasted cut, three buttons, a standup collar, gold nylon trim, and a vinyl cap."

Nixon had four of the police in their new outfits at the front door of the White House when Prime Minister Wilson arrived for a state dinner Tuesday night.

Some comments from bystanders: "Late Weimar Republic," "They look like extras from a Lithuanian movie" and "Nazi uniforms."

Nixon's suggestion for new uniforms came last summer after he noticed the palace guards and policemen during his European tour.

National Ballet School students Jennife Orr, 13, left, and Stephanie Earle, 10 spend at least eight hours a day divided between dancing, theatre arts and regular academic subjects. They have many years of hard work ahead of them before they earn starring roles like their favorites in the company.

Two 'Claras' Talk About Ballet

OTTAWA (CP) — For some people, the word ballet conjures up visions of beautiful people in lavish costumes, performing gracefully on a brightly-lit stage. But for Jennifer Orr, 13, of Toronto, and Stephanie Earle, 10, of Ottawa, it means extra hours of school every day, summer classes and limited outside activities. Ballet is their life.

Both students at the National Ballet School in Toronto, the girls play the role of Clara alternately in the ballet company's production of The Nutcracker, performed at the National Arts Centre recently.

Dressed in identical school uniforms — white blouses, plaid skirts, bottle-green V-necks and tights — and sipping ginger ale, they talked about their life at the school, where Jennifer has lived and breathed dancing for the last four years.

Her day starts at 8:10 a.m., with classes in character dancing and theatre arts intermingled with regular academic subjects. She finds there's a lot of freedom at the school and doesn't think it's as strict as some other private ones.

"They don't fuss, and that keeps us from getting so uptight," she said seriously.

Eight hours later she can go home to her parents and sister and take up her favorite hobby—cooking. So far she's only tried cakes and cookies, but she'd like to prepare a full-course meal sometime.

NO SKATING

Developing culinary talents is a good extra-curricular activity for an aspiring ballerina — sports like skiing and horse-back riding aren't allowed because of the risk of injury, and skating, which uses different muscles than dancing, is frowned upon by the instructors.

Stephanie boards at the school, takes classes from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m., and usually gets home for a long weekend every five or six weeks. She started taking ballet lessons when she was seven, "just for fun because some friends were taking them," but decided last year she'd try and make the art her career.

She admits it wasn't pleasant leaving home at the age of 9, but says she doesn't mind it as much now. There are chaperones at the school to take the younger students out on weekends, although Stephanie and her friends often find it "more fun" to stay in the residence.

The young dancer said she didn't really mind making her debut in front of her home-town audience but she'd prefer it "if no one I know came."

For Jennifer, dancing in front of an audience is pretty well old hat. She performed in Cinderella and The Nutcracker last year in Toronto and Montreal.

Both girls have their own special stars in the ballet company, the ones they choose for inspiration. Jennifer admires Nadia Potts and Veronica Tennant, While Stephanie's favorites are Mary Jago and Karen Bowes.

Almost half the present company members are graduates of the school, and students usually attend a summer class before they are accepted for a regular term. It helps to make the adjustment from once- or twice-a-week classes to everyday practice. Jennifer finds the summer sessions condition her for "the more rigorous life at the school," and she's attended them for four years.

FLUENT FRENCH

But Stephanie took last summer off and went to Paris. Her father, Tom Earle, CBC parliamentary bureau chief, once was stationed there, and she became fluent in French during her stay.

The highlight of the trip, of course, was a night at the Paris Opera — to see Swan Lake.

Choosy Secretaries Turn Down Jobs

TORONTO (CP) — Business men face a common dilemma every day in trying to hire secretaries—and the results are often unpredictable.

A city businessman, who asked to be anonymous, tells of trying to hire two secretaries who turned him down after complaining his male workers had no sex appeal.

It's the kind of whim girl jobseekers can satisfy in a market that goes begging every day for secretarial help.

"We have 50 jobs for every 10 secretaries we can supply," says L. H. Porter, general-manager of Shaw Colleges of Business.

A. A. Martin, personnel manager of Office Overload which provides emergency and part-time secretarial help to companies, says the demand has become so great that his firm is busy the year round, not just during the summer vacation period.

The shortage exists despite the fact that salaries are rising and the work week is getting shorter.

BENEFITS LURE GIRLS

Beginners without shorthand can earn $80 to $85 a week. Executive secretaries can draw $150 a week and the most efficient can reach $8,000 to $10,000 a year.

Many secretaries now work only a 37-hour week and companies, in order to attract competent girls, offer fringe benefits such as stock options and discounts on company products.

Average salary for Office Overload girls is $100 a week. Most of these are married women whose family has grown up and who want to earn extra money.

Pearl Leppington, placement officer with Shaw, which operates three secretary-producing colleges in the city, said firms that don't offer standard or better fringe benefits are shunned by job-hunting secretaries.

She said secretarial salaries are higher in the United States but that the cost of living there is higher "and a girl is likely to find that her take-home pay is no better than if she had stayed in Canada."

In New York, some beginners receive as much as $120 a week.

"I wouldn't say the situation is desperate," Miss Leppington said. "But there's no question that there are plenty of secretarial jobs with no one to fill them.

"All you need to do to prove it is look at your newspaper any day."

ANIMAL INFLUENCE

Lunar Calendar Runs In 12-Year Cycles

The Chinese New Year 4668 will arrive on February 6th as The Year of the Dog. The Oriental lunar calendar was established more than 2,000 years ago and runs in 12-year cycles. Each of the 12 years is named for a wild or domestic animal and after each 12 years is over, the animal cycle begins again.

Similar to zodiac-based predictions, the animal of the year in which a person is born is thought to influence the personality. (People born in "The Year of the Dog" are faithful and honest).

1924, 1936, 1948, 1960—Rat Years. Keen mind, clever, resourceful.

1925, 1937, 1949, 1961—Ox Years. Good, strong, tireless worker.

1926, 1938, 1950, 1962—Tiger Years. Brave, strong.

1927, 1939, 1951, 1963—Rabbit Years. Clever, successful.

1928, 1940, 1952, 1964—Dragon Years. Wise, generous, fortunate.

1929, 1941, 1953, 1965—Snake Years. Good business sense.

1930, 1942, 1954, 1966—Horse Years. Strong, willing to work hard.

1931, 1943, 1955, 1967—Sheep Years. Quiet, devoted.

1932, 1944, 1956, 1968—Monkey Years. Active, quick worker.

1933, 1945, 1957, 1969—Rooster Years. Diligent, independent.

1934, 1946, 1958, 1970—Dog Years. Faithful, honest.

1935, 1947, 1959, 1971—Pig Years. Healthy.

Hot shrimp chow mein and eggrolls combine with Yangchow fried rice bouquet for this festive oriental meal, appropriate for the beginning of the Chinese New Year on Feb. 6.

Chinese Meal Easy to Prepare

Suggestions for an easily prepared Chinese dinner include the use of frozen egg rolls, served with garlic mayonnaise dip, as well as other prepared frozen Chinese foods. Most recipes use pre-prepared convenience foods.

GARLIC-MAYONNAISE DIP

1 cup mayonnaise
½ cup cream cheese at room temperature
1 garlic clove, minced
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
¼ teaspoon celery salt
Dash of paprika
2 packages Chun King frozen hors d'oeuvre size egg rolls.

Blend all the dip ingredients together well. Chill. Serve with crisp hot egg rolls, prepared according to directions.

YANGCHOW FRIED RICE

2 cans fried rice
1 can (7 ounces) chunk-style tuna, drained
½ cup chopped scallions or green onions
¾ cup shredded iceberg lettuce
2 tsp. soya sauce

Heat fried rice. Put in a serving bowl and add all other ingredients. Toss together and serve immediately.

To make a "Bouquet," pack hot fried rice into lightly oiled coffee, tea or custard cups, pressing rice firmly down. Invert molds on a plain platter tapping to loosen the rice.

Surround each unmolded rice mound with halved cucumber slices and use various lengths of scallions or green onions as the stems of your fried rice flowers.

Six servings.

FRIED RICE-STUFFED TOMATOES

1 package chicken fried rice
6 unpeeled, medium-sized firm tomatoes
¼ cup finely chopped onions
¼ cup soft bread crumbs
1 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
½ tsp. oregano
¼ tsp. basil
½ cup grated cheddar cheese

Prepare fried rice according to directions.

Cut tops off unpeeled tomatoes. Carefully scoop out pulp and mix it with hot rice. Add onions, bread crumbs, salt, pepper, oregano, basil and ¼ cup of the grated cheese to fried rice mixture.

Fill the tomato cups with this mixture and top with remaining ¼ cup of grated cheese. Bake in greased muffin cups or baking dish in a preheated 350 degrees F. oven for 20 minutes. Serve immediately.

Farm-Girl Queen Says Drugs for Cowards

BROCKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Nancy McAllister says drugs are for cowards, student riots are a fad, and her mother is OK—even though mother is over 30.

Nancy is a 15-year-old Grade 10 student at Brockville collegiate, a farm girl from Mallorytown, and newly chosen Ontario queen of the National Farmers' Union.

The NFU queens must be farm girls, pretty, between the ages of 15 and 21 and daughters of members. When she won the Ontario title, Nancy won $100 and a responsibility to promote the farmers' union among young people and to appear at speaking engagements.

She will compete with girls from other provinces for the national title at the NFU convention in Winnipeg in the spring.

Nancy has firm opinions on the problems with which teen-agers must cope.

"We've discussed drugs in school and with other kids, and from all I've heard I can't understand why people would take them. I wouldn't want to use drugs myself—it's a coward's way to escape reality and cop out."

Brockville has been free of student uprisings, and Nancy says she's not convinced the riots that have plagued other areas have always had a purpose.

"The students started out to go after what they wanted. They had legitimate complaints. Now it's just a fad. You don't have to tear down the door to get what you want."

She says, too, that she's willing to get along with older people.

"There's always been a generation gap between the younger and older generations, only it's been more publicized and blown up in the '60s than before.

"Usually teen-agers think that anyone over 30 doesn't know what's happening, but speaking for myself, I haven't had any serious run-ins with the generation gap. My mom's over 30, and I get along perfectly with her."

Nancy takes her title's responsibility seriously. She says she loves farm life and thinks farmers are maligned.

"There's nothing like it. Something's happening on a farm all the time. There's never a dull moment.

"I'm going to work to educate people to realize what's happening on Canadian farms today. I want the public to know what the modern farmer is like, what he's doing."

She feels farmers have always been blamed for rising prices, "but actually, farmers are working constantly to try to lower consumer prices."

HOME GARDEN

Time to Study Seed Catalogues

By HILDA BEASTALL

Hilda

These late January evenings can be put to good use with the aid of plant and seed catalogue, and pencil and paper as tools. It can be fun too. The head gardener in the family will make lists a mile long; the family treasurer will take a firm blue pencil to bring things into line with the budget as it really is.

Gaining co-operation first is a smart plan. Make sure to include something of interest to each member of the family. Perhaps a favorite color of flower, a special rose, or a new shrub or a special vegetable, will work the miracle of starting another on the pleasant garden path.

Descriptive words in catalogues may seem to exaggerate, yet when experience sprinkles its pinch of salt, the basic descriptions are bound to be correct. Make allowance for varying types of soils and microclimates within your own garden.

With seeds one can afford to take a few chances; here is where beginners can really lash out and experiment.

When it comes to the larger cash outlay for nursery plants, common sense tells us to look around the many local growers to find what we want.

The pencil and paper tools are more easily wielded than the garden shovel and fork when it comes to moving plants around. Make a rough drawing of permanent features on the property, then with the use of an eraser, plants may be shifted around at will.

Most important in the long range view is prevention of overcrowding and incompatibility. The sun-loving brooms and heathers must not be crowded into vacant spaces under trees, nor will broadleaved Lily-of-the-Valley bushed (Pierises) and Aucubas enjoy blazing summer sun.

Errors of putting dwarf one-foot high rhododendrons behind their tall brethren can soon be corrected with the eraser.

Planning on paper allows inclusion of a pet feature, a small pool or a sitting area, in an area not thought large enough or suitable for the project. Perhaps by eliminating part of a rectangular lawn, space will be found for one or both of these to add charm and relaxation to the whole garden.

You may see where you can introduce a restful and more labor saving green area by means of wider shrub borders, and reducing the lawn to wide grass paths.

It becomes a fascinating hobby, this pencil gardening in January; guaranteed to increase interest and improve garden design.

FLASHBACK ON CANADA

Canadian Honored With Queen's Scarf

By BOB BOWMAN

The Victoria Cross is the British Commonwealth's highest award for bravery in military action. It was created by Queen Victoria on January 29, 1856, and has since been won by more than 100 Canadians in the army, navy and air force. The medal itself is made from the metal of guns captured during the Crimean War, and winners wear a deep red ribbon on their uniforms. No matter what their rank, they are always saluted, even by the highest of officers.

The first Canadian to win the Victoria Cross was Lieutenant A. R. Dunn of Toronto who served in the Crimean War. The second Canadian V.C. was Able Seaman William Hall of Avonport, Nova Scotia, for bravery in the relief of Lucknow during the Indian mutiny. Hall was he son of a Negro slave who had been brought from Virginia to Halifax during the War of 1812. He was the first Negro, and the first Canadian seaman to win the great honor.

Queen Victoria also presented another, highly unusual, award for valor. During the Boer War, when she was 80 years old, the Queen crocheted seven khaki scarves to be awarded only to men in the ranks, and chosen by other soldiers. One of the seven scarves was won by Private Rowland Thompson of Ottawa, who served in the Royal Canadian Regiment. During a battle he saved the life of a comrade by holding his thumb for seven hours against a severed jugular vein, which prevented him from bleeding to death.

Thompson's scarf is now in the New National Museum in Ottawa.

Other events on January 29:

1796—Yonge Street was said to be open from Lake Ontario to Lake Simcoe.

1820—Death of King George III.

1829—McGill University was founded with Archbishop Mountain, president.

1847—Lord Elgin arrived at Montreal as Governor.

1859—Parliament met at Toronto.

1921—Canada signed trade convention with France.

Americans Out-Talk Canadians

MONTREAL (CP) — After 17 years as the world's most talkative telephone users, Canadians have lost their title to the United States.

Canadians averaged 692.9 telephone conversations a person during 1968, a gain of 25.2 conversations a person over 1967.

But an increase of 33 conversations a person boosted the U.S. into top place with 701 conversations a person for the year.

The statistics are in the world's telephones, the annual compilation of telephone statistics. The figures are for 1968 because it takes about a year to compile them.

Leading the world in the number of telephones is the U.S. with 109,256,000. Japan has 20,525,000 and the United Kingdom 12,901,000.

Canada placed sixth with 8,820,770 telephones. Calgary has the highest ratio of phones per 100 population in Canada with 64.6.

SOLUTION FRIDAY

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED L. KARPIN

The late Chico Marx—one of the famous Marx brothers comedians—was one of the best bridge players in the theatrical world. It was Chico who, during a protracted losing streak, once wrote to a card-playing manufacturer, inquiring: "Gentlemen, are you still manufacturing aces and kings?"

An example of Chico's ability can be observed in the deal presented today. It arose in a rubber-bridge game in the late 1940s. He was sitting South.

Neither side vulnerable. South deals.

♣A 5

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♡	1♠	3♡	Pass
4♡	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Queen of ♠.

Superficially, it would appear as though there were nothing to the play. The opening spade lead was captured by dummy's king, after which a low trump was led, South's queen being taken by West's ace. West returned the jack of spades, and East captured the trick by trumping.

From here in, the sailing was smooth. At the end, South conceded a diamond trick, and chalked up the score for a game bid and made.

But look at what would have happened if declarer had chosen to win the opening spade lead with his own ace (instead of with dummy's king). Upon gaining the lead with the trump ace, West would have returned the jack of spades. Dummy's king would have been put up—and East would have trumped it (if the king were not put up, the jack would win, after which East would ruff a third spade lead). Declarer would now have incurred a one-trick set.

Chico's play of the spade king at trick one was not just a guess that turned out well. West had overcalled on a spade suit that was lacking both the ace and king and it was not at all unlikely that he possessed a six-card suit. In this case, East would have been dealt one spade. Thus, if the ace of spades won the opening lead, dummy's king of spades might well be ruffed on the second spade lead.

By capturing trick one with the board's king of spades, South rendered East's subsequent ruff harmless, since East was ruffing a spade trick that South would have lost anyway.

9 IN MEMORIAM

EATON—In fond and loving memory of a dear son and brother and dad, Richard Stephen Eaton, who passed away suddenly, on the Island of Rhodes, Jan. 28, 1968.
—Very sadly missed by all the family.

FRENCH—In loving memory of our dear Jack, passed away Jan. 29, 1969.
Lovingly remembered.
—Lou, Doris and Ernie.

FRENCH—In loving memory of my dear husband, Jack (John Andrew French), passed away Jan. 29, 1969.
There is a link death
cannot sever,
Love and remembrance
last forever.
—Gertie.

HAYWARD—In loving memory of our grandmother and great grandmother, Alice Maud Hayward, who passed away Jan. 29, 1969.
—Ever remembered by Heather, Mary, Verne and Leslie Ann.

HAYWARD—In loving memory of a dear sister and aunt, Alice Maud Hayward, who passed peacefully away Jan. 29, 1969.
Loving thoughts, silently kept
Of the sister we loved and will never forget.
—Ever remembered by Ann Haggart and Dorothy MacIvor.

HAYWARD — In loving memory of Mother and grandmother, Mrs. Alice M. Hayward, who passed away January 29, 1969.
And while she lies in peaceful sleep
Her memory we shall always keep.
—Sadly missed by Gene, Alf, Diane, and George.

SPAVEN — In loving memory of Mrs. Agnes Spaven, who passed away Jan. 29, 1965.
Dear mother, you are not forgotten,
Though on earth you are no
more,
Still in memory you are with us
As you always were before.
—Loving daughter, Agnes.

STEPHENS—In loving memory of dear Bill who passed away Jan. 29, 1960.
Not dead to me who loved him,
Not lost, but gone before;
He lives with me in memory
And will forever more.
Just until the day break.
—Sadly missed by Lillian.

Tonight's Top Television Shows

MOVIE TO WATCH this evening is on Channels 6 and 8 at midnight. The Outsider, it's a biographical exploration of Ira Hayes' tragedy, starring Tony Curtis. Ira Hayes, a Pima Indian who became an American hero in World War Two, shunned publicity, found his escape in alcohol and finally died, face down in a water-filled irrigation ditch, in an alcoholic stupor. The film was made in 1961.

THURSDAY NIGHT. 9:30, Channels 2 and 6. Tonight it's an examination of communications in Canada, primarily as a result of the Senate's Davey Hearings on mass media now in progress.

FAMILY AFFAIR. 7, ch. 8; 7:30, ch. 7. An episode with lovely faces and "heart." Buffy and a little Puerto Rican girl who is unable to speak make friends. When Uncle Bill sees a drawing by the silent child, he goes into action, hoping to convince the protective mother of the need for special schooling by introducing a deaf sign language teacher onto the scene. Audree Norton, from the National School for the Deaf, plays the instructor, and she's just as beguiling as the lovely sad little Puerto Rican child. Ladies will enjoy this one thoroughly.

SPECIAL. 7:30, ch. 5; "Lowell Thomas in New Guinea." Armchair adventurers will be intrigued by this documentary which records two separate expeditions into the uncharted, far-reaches of New Guinea. Lowell Thomas and his company have come up with rare footage of natives living as their ancestors did thousands of years ago. Watching these tribesmen and their women tending to their basic everyday needs, it's hard to believe they're completely dedicated to witchcraft and still engage in cannibalistic rites. Informative and interesting.

PAT PAULSEN'S HALF A COMEDY HOUR. 7:30, ch. 4. Paulsen has no qualms about portraying anybody with his bumbling and sad-faced character, even the Devil. Tonight, he's a Lucifer who fails to terrify anyone in a sketch on Children's Letters to the Devil. As Mr. Science, Pat lectures on the weather, and he holds a silly interview with a rat. Pat's guest star is Angie Dickinson, playing a lady who calls in repairman Paulsen and wishes she hadn't.

BEWITCHED. 8:30, ch. 4. "Tabitha's Very Own Samantha." Cute show. Like most children who have to share their mother's time with a new baby, Tabitha begins to feel slighted. Unlike most children, however, Tabitha can solve her dilemma by conjuring up a second Samantha whom she can keep all to herself. The situation gets out of hand and there are some truly funny scenes.

THIS IS TOM JONES. 7:30, ch. 8; 9, ch. 4. Paul Anka, Joni Mitchell and comedian George Kirby add sparkle to the show tonight. Some of the songs you'll hear are "Highway in the Wind" (Anka), "Let It Rock," "Funny, Familiar, Forgotten Feeling" (Jones), "Real Good For Free" and "Woodstock" (Joni Mitchell), and "When I Lay My Burden Down" (George Kirby).

DEAN MARTIN. 8:30, ch. 8; 10, ch. 5. Headliners tonight are "Bonanza's "Mike Landon, Shecky Greene, and Pat Crowley. After singing "Son of a Travelin' Man," Mike Landon and Dean become bike riders for "Gotta Travel On." Shecky Greene explains French trial methods, Charles Nelson Reilly appears as a charm-course salesman, and Pat Crowley sings a couple of Cole Porter tunes like "Let's Do It" to Dean.

DEAN'S GUESTS tonight on the Dean Martin Show (8:30, Channel 8; 10, Channel 5) are Patricia Crowley and Michael Landon, shown here in one of the comedy numbers they perform.

JIM NABORS. 8, ch. 7; 9:30, ch. 12. Usually Vikki Carr sings for about three minutes and exits, but with Nabors, it's different. Vikki and Jim start out with a Mexican medley; Vikki then sings two solos; and also plays a recording star attempting to cut a record when reporter Nabors steps in, causing producer Ronnie Schell to have a tantrum. In the finale, Vikki and Jim listen to famous band sounds of the past played by the Paul Weston group.

TONIGHT'S MOVIES

5:30: Channel 12: Torpedo Bay (1962 English Adventure), James Mason, Lilli Palmer, Gabriele Ferzetti.

7:30: Channel 12: The Secret Partner (1961 English Drama), Stewart Granger, Haya Harareet.

9:00: Channel 7: Betrayed (1954 Drama), Clark Gable, Lana Turner, Victor Mature.

11:40: Channel 2: Desert Attack (1960 English Drama), John Mills.

1:05: Channel 5: Miss Sadie Thompson (1954 Drama), Rita Hayworth, Jose Ferrer, Aldo Ray.

SEGOVIA'S GUITAR DRAWS THE YOUNG

Music Spans Generation Gap

NEW YORK (AP) — Half a century separates concert guitarist Andres Segovia from the "now generation," but the gap in years is bridged by the language of music.

Segovia, who will celebrate his 77th birthday anniversary next month during his current tour of 24 U.S. and Canadian cities, says at least one-third of his audiences is composed of young people.

"I am very proud of this because I steal those youngsters from the Beatles," Segovia says.

Then, with a chuckle, he admits that he might be sharing his youthful admirers with the Beatles and other groups which play electric guitars, musical siblings to the classical instrument Segovia has spent 61 years resurrecting as a serious concert hall fixture.

ONE WITH HIS GUITAR

A study in concentration on the concert stage, where he becomes one with the instrument he calls a "symphony of the forest," Segovia offstage is relaxed, dignified and gracious.

Despite his advancing years, he is alert, his eyes shining behind thick-lensed glasses, his voice lyrical.

At the outset of his career, the guitar was little more than a flamenco instrument in his native Spain and little more than an accompaniment device elsewhere. Today, it is known and respected worldwide, a living monument to his dedication.

His success is demonstrated by sellout audiences and the fact that a number of classical guitarists now are able to make careers in an art field Segovia effectively established.

FINAL 3 DAYS FOR REGISTRATION
(Classes Start Next Week)
EVENING CLASSES IN INTERIOR DECORATING
JOSEPH EGOYAN

The fascinating study of Interior Decoration will be introduced to you by theoretical and practical analysis of form, color, texture, dimension and values. These lectures will be held above the store and also supplemented by on-location studies, in selected homes, concluding the final class by a visit at the residence of Mr. Egoyan to discuss the problems arising in furniture arrangement, color schemes, lighting effects, drapery and carpet selection, and proper use of pictures and accessories.

For the past five years this course has been given by Mr. Egoyan on the basis twice yearly in two separate classes weekly. At an average of 25 students in each class a total of approximately 500 students have taken the course to date.

Classes will be held on Monday or Wednesday evenings from 7:30 to 9, starting on Feb. 2nd and 4th, at Ego Interiors. Total cost of eight lectures, once a week, $20.00.

Mr. Joseph Egoyan, B.A.Ed., your instructor, is well qualified, with extensive theoretical and practical knowledge. He is a graduate of the Art Institute of Chicago and the California College of Arts and Crafts; has taught at Oakland Tech High., Calif.; the American College in Cairo and at the Evening Adult Education program in Victoria. In addition, he has a wealth of practical experience in the retail field as proprietor of Ego Arts Gallery in Cairo for five years, and Ego Interiors in Victoria for eight years.

You think we're exaggerating, don't you?

When we say that the soloist at the Symphony Concert on Feb. 1st, and 2nd is one of the world's greatest violinists, we don't expect you to take our word for it. Let's consider a few other opinions. Time Magazine rates him as "the most loudly acclaimed [French] violinist since the late Ginette Neveu" . . . the Detroit News calls him a first-rate performer, one of the "important violinists" . . . Herbert von Karajan chose him for Bach programs at Salzburg and at Carnegie Hall . . . for four years in a row he was awarded the Grand Prix du Disque . . . the Toronto Telegram declared him an "internationally acknowledged virtuoso and a peer of the top few."

Have we said enough to indicate that Christian Ferras' performance next Sunday and Monday should be a highlight, even in this season of highlights? When you combine such artistry in a soloist with the proven musicianship of conductor Laszlo Gati and the support of the finest symphony orchestra Victoria has ever heard, you can be sure of a performance to remember.

Indeed, it will be a performance you'll remember — but only if you don't forget to book your ticket! Now is the time to call the Symphony Box Office at Eaton's (382-7141 local 313). A memorable musical experience can be yours for

Staff Muzzled By Directive

By JIM HUME

Mayor Courtney Haddock today announced plans to reorganize Victoria city administration and at the same time sharply curb the flow of information to the public.

Interviewed this morning Haddock said he thought he would publicly announce his streamlining plans to the Victoria Rotary Club early this afternoon.

The mayor will propose that the city have a three-tier government comprised of a board of management, an executive committee and a board of governors.

The board of management, says Haddock, would be formed from all city department heads plus one or two elected officials.

The executive committee would consist of the city manager, the city comptroller "and possibly others."

Both board of management and the executive committee would be closed to the press, Haddock said.

Only at the board of governor level — Haddock's new name for city council — would the press be permitted to attend meetings.

"What I'm trying to do is reconcile my business training with effective administration at city hall," the mayor said. "Maybe it won't work. If it doesn't we can always try something else.

"What I'm striving for is total involvement of all departments so that one department knows what the other department is doing. It may take two or three meetings to make it work."

Haddock said the new administrative structure would not curb the traditional and statutory powers of city council.

"They will still be the policy makers," he said. "All the management team and the executive team will do is bring forward ideas. The board of governors will still decide whether or not to go ahead with those ideas."

Asked whether he thought the tax paying public had a right to know what debate led to decisions, Haddock said he thought the public would have ample opportunity to hear the facts when the matter came before the board of governors.

In addition to keeping from the public early debate on civic issues Haddock said that he had

HAPPY PASSENGERS disembark from P. & O. liner Oronsay today following two weeks of voluntary quarantine in Vancouver harbor after outbreak of typhoid fever made them virtual prisoners on board. Welfare End Forecast Again

Social Welfare Minister Phil Gaglardi promised Wednesday to "get rid of the whole basis of welfare" in an overhaul of his department's role.

Welfare recipients can look forward to being "useful," he told reporters in an interview after addressing the legislature in the throne speech debate.

In the four minutes devoted to welfare department matters during his 43 minute address, Gaglardi said "we want to challenge and utilize the talents and abilities of people."

Noting that the social welfare department would be renamed the department of rehabilitation, Gaglardi said:

"This rehabilitation business should be one of the biggest things ever to happen in the 1970s."

"The whole philosophy will be changed," he said, adding it wouldn't cost "a dime more."

DIGNITY

Outside the house, Gaglardi said it is important welfare recipients have "dignity and status" and added:

"The way to do that is to make them useful. That's all I want to say at this time."

Gaglardi told the legislature that 1,150 jobs have been found so far by the Provincial Alliance of Businessmen, an agency he has headed since mid-1969.

Given jobs were 350 people who were taken off welfare, said Gaglardi, adding that the others were probably "heading straight for the welfare department," if they remained unemployed.

In other remarks, Gaglardi stressed that the 1970s should be a "human era" in which people get together and solve their problems.

WHERE WERE YOU?

In a joking vein he said he wasn't worried about Prime Minister Trudeau "rattling around in a jet plane" and noted that some newspapers had defended Trudeau against use of a plane for personal purposes.

Looking up at the press gallery, Gaglardi asked: "Where in the name of common sense were you fellows when I needed you?"

One of the issues leading to Gaglardi's resignation as highways minister in 1968 was use of a government jet by family members.

Gaglardi said he doesn't care who Trudeau dates, either.

"If he gets to go out with Brigitte Bardot I'm just jealous," he said, adding Mrs. Gaglardi knows him well enough "for me to say that."

"If he wants to go out with Barbra Streisand, then more power to him," he added.

HITS TAX PAPER

The minister attacked the federal white paper on taxation as a threat to small business and the fabric of society and taunted the Liberal party for failing to defeat him in Kamloops in the August election.

"If you ever need a job," he said, looking across at Liberal leader Pat McGeer, "you could get a job with the circus."

He said a giant parade put on by the Liberals in Kamloops had some large gaps in it which were caused by cars leaving the parade, driving around a block and re-joining the end of the line.

SONIC RAID ON HAIFA

By United Press International

Syria said its warplanes streaked over Haifa today touching off sonic booms that caused "huge damage" in the Israeli port city.

It was the first time since the 1967 war that an Arab plane had penetrated Israel's air space and flown over one of its cities.

An Israeli military spokesman acknowledged the bombless raid but said it involved only one Arab jet fighter.

Israeli Jets Hit Jordan

By The Associated Press

Israeli jets struck Arab guerrilla positions at three places in Jordan today, and the Israeli command said all the planes returned safely.

One 15-minute raid north of the Dead Sea hit near the village of Shunat Nimrin.

Two raids took place south of the Sea of Galilee in the Beisan Valley after an Israeli border guard and a solider were wounded in exchanges with Arab guerrillas across the ceasefire line.

Witnesses said that moments later the jets dived out of the cloudless skies and hit guerrilla positions near a deserted Arab village.

Another Israeli patrol drew fire about five miles farther south and the planes went in again to bomb the guerrillas, the witnesses said.

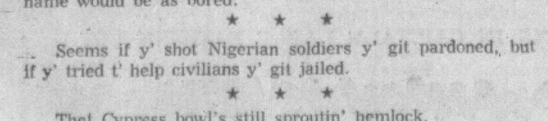
$1 Billion in Trade With Japan by '73

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada's exports to Japan may exceed $1,000,000,000 by 1973, Robert L. Houston, president of the Canada-Japan Trade Council, said today.

Japan would then replace Britain as Canada's second largest trading partner, he told a Montreal Kiwanis club meeting.

Houston said the value of imports and exports between Canada and Japan now exceeds $1,000,000,000 yearly. Copper and coal would be the major Canadian exports to Japan in future.

But in spite of spectacular trade growths, Japan's trading relations with Canada have been "little realized east of the Lakehead."



What's in a name? A board o' guv'nors by any other name would be as bored.

Nigeria Jails Missionaries

LAGOS (Reuters)—A Nigerian court has sentenced 20 Roman Catholic missionaries—17 Irish and three British — to six months imprisonment for illegally entering Nigeria, reliable sources said today.

The 20 are among 32 missionaries being held in the eastern Nigerian city of Port Harcourt who worked in the former secessionist region during the 30-month civil war.

The sources said that because the 20 had been sentenced on a technical rather than a criminal charge it is expected they would be released within a week.

The 20 are among 32 missionaries being held in the eastern Nigerian city of Port Harcourt who worked in the former secessionist region during the 30-month civil war.

The sources said that because the 20 had been sentenced on a technical rather than a criminal charge it is expected they would be released within a week.

Two of the missionaries, who entered the eastern region before secession, were released, the sources said.

The others, including five nuns of the Holy Rosary and Presentations orders, were fined sums ranging from £10 to £50 Nigerian pounds (about $40 to $222), the sources added.

Roman Catholic sources in Lagos said the 32 missionaries were taken from the hotel and officers' mess in which they had been detained since the end of the war and were questioned Monday.

Each of the 30 sentenced signed a statement acknowledging that they had entered Nigeria illegally and worked without the approval of immigration offices, the sources said.

DEPORTATION ORDERED

Earlier, sources reported that all 32 would be deported and that all had been found guilty. The earlier report also said that they all were issued deportation orders at Port Harcourt and were expected to be put aboard a flight out of Lagos by Friday.

All the Irish priests are members of the Holy Ghost order.

Twenty-three of the missionaries were being held under house arrest in Port Harcourt's Cedar Palace Hotel, while the others were in enforced residence at a Nigerian officers' mess, the sourcs said.

Catholic sources in Lagos reported that 28 other priests, still working in the war-devastated region, have been ordered by the Nigerian military authorities to return to Port Harcourt and were expected to appear in the same magistrates' court.

Most of the Roman Catholic missionaries in former Biafra were connected with the

'LEGALIZE DRUG IF WIDESPREAD'

OTTAWA (CP) — Health Minister John Munro said Wednesday that "if we find that a significant minority of the Canadian people smoke marijuana we would be totally irresponsible if we didn't legalize it."

Pressed by Carleton University students at the taping of the syndicated television program Under Attack, Munro said if the report of the government commission studying drug use reveals widespread use of marijuana, it should be legalized, even if that involves some health danger.

The parliamentary report of the commission, headed by Gerald Le Dain, dean of the University of Toronto law school, will be available "by the end of February," the health minister said.

Armed Shopkeepers Ruled Out by A-G

A proposal to arm British Columbia property owners and shopkeepers against hold-ups has received the cold shoulder from Attorney-General Leslie Peterson.

He said Wednesday he has no intention of extending the use of small firearms, following such a suggestion by Vancouver Provincial Judge Les Bewley.

"I am beginning to suspect," the judge said, "that if citizens and property owners were allowed to carry guns, crime would be greatly reduced.

"We can't expect police to do all the work, having so few of them," he said during the trial of a 19-year-old charged with attempted robbery.

The suspect, who pleaded guilty, had attempted to hold up a Vancouver shopkeeper with a toy gun. The merchant, 65-year-old Ernest Lavoie, pulled his own gun from a drawer and held the would-be bandit until police arrived.

Vancouver's city prosecutor Stewart McMorran was also cool to the suggestion from Bewley. He called it a "dangerous and disastrous" idea.

"There are too many incidents of people going for guns and getting shot themselves," he said. "Three people have died that way in Vancouver."

IN CYPRESS, SAYS LETTER

Benguet Still Involved

The New Democratic Party today released copies of a letter indicating that the Grand Bahama Port Authority, a subsidiary of Consolidated Benguet Inc., still feels it has an opportunity to develop Cypress Bowl.

Gordon Dowding (NDP — Burnaby Edmonds) said this morning he will ask in the legislature today how "this impression is still possessed" by Wallace Groves, chairman of the port authority.

Benguet, through the Bahamian company, was described by Resources Minister Ray Williston as an unacceptable partner in the development in a Nov. 26 letter he wrote to Alpine Outdoor Recreation Resources, original bowl promoter which was taken over by Benguet last fall.

Benguet's gambling casino interests in the Bahamas were given as the reason for their rejection by the government after a prolonged controversy over their involvement.

FULL-SCALE PLAN

The proposed ski development in the West Vancouver bowl was originally scheduled to have only hotel and alpine-village type accommodation but Benguet's plans apparently involved full-scale residential development as well.

Opposition Leader Dave Barrett released the Groves' letter, dated Jan. 16, after having failed Monday to get an answer from the government on whether Benguet had been told "that they are out . . . or are they still under the impression that they can go ahead."

Barrett said he wrote to Groves Dec. 2 to get more information on what Benguet had in mind for Cypress Bowl. He said today that he appears to have learned more from Benguet than the attorney-

PM'S ASIA TOUR PLAN

OTTAWA (CP) — The prime minister's office Wednesday released a tentative itinerary for Pierre Trudeau's five-country, 19-day Asian tour in May.

Trudeau will leave Ottawa May 10 and arrive in New Zealand May 12.

From New Zealand he will go to Australia, arriving May 15. He will move on to Malaysia May 20, to Singapore May 22 and to Japan May 25.

Trudeau will be in Osaka May 27, Canada's national day at Expo 70. He will arrive back in Ottawa May 29.

Trudeau's office said present plans call for the prime minister to travel by commercial airliner.

general's department has in more than two months of investigation.

The attorney-general's investigation is not yet complete, Attorney-General Peterson said earlier this week.

The letter from Groves to Barrett said, in part:

"I certainly appreciate your interest in our proposed development of the Cypress Bowl area.

"Members of my staff are presently preparing a timetable and schedule of development, cost analysis, slope analysis and other related figures and estimates respecting our development of the Cypress Bowl area.

"On completion of the same I propose to provide the government of British Columbia with copies of the same."

The letter said copies would also be sent to Barrett.

Dowding said he would ask that West Vancouver send a full record of negotiations on Cypress Bowl to be tabled in the legislature.

DEAL WITH ALPINE

Resources Minister Ray Williston, asked about the Groves letter, said he had made himself clear to Alpine 26 letter.

"I have been dealing with Alpine, not Benguet," said the minister, adding that he has not written to Benguet.

"My letter speaks for itself," he said, adding that the apparent bankruptcy of a logger in the Cypress Bowl project seems to indicate that money isn't being made available through Alpine.

Alpine's takeover by Benguet was to provide financing for the recreational development.

Williston said there is nothing to prevent Benguet from submitting development plans to the government, to Barrett or to anyone else if it wanted.

Roman Catholic relief organization, Caritas.

The Associated Press said that in Dublin, the office of Prime Minister Jack Lynch said it learned 17 priests were given six-month jail terms. The other eight, it said, were fined $56 each but were allowed to remain at Port Harcourt.

The prime minister's office said it has no information that the prison sentences against the priests have been suspended.

Lynch called Bernard Oyiie, head of the Nigerian diplomatic mission in Dublin, to his office to express "grave" concern over the fines and sentences and urged that court decisions against the 23 should not be enforced.

U.K. Troops Stoned By Irish Extemists

BELFAST (Reuters) — British troops were stoned by crowds of Protestant extremists early today in the fifth straight night of disturbances in Northern Ireland's capital.

Troops and police went on full-scale alert after repeated attempts by groups of extremists to break through the army's "peace line" dividing the Roman Catholic and Protestant communities.

Following the street fighting, a policeman was taken to hospital after being hit in the face by a flying brick in the Protestant Shankill Road.

Sporadic clashes broke out between troops backed up by armored cars and a crowd of 300 clanting extremist.

Troops of Britian's 1st Royal Horse Artillery were stoned by a crowd in the city's Lawnbrooke Avenue area.

Senior police and army officers, fearing increased violence this weekend, met to discuss the situation.

The extremists were understood to be protesting that there are more police and troops in Protestant areas than in the city's Catholic Falls Road area and in the Catholic Bogside district of Londonderry.

Observers in Belfast said more trouble is expected Friday and Saturday—the nights on which the city's bars do their best trade.

IRREGULARITIES IN CBC CITED

OTTAWA (CP) — CBC employees have been fired and prosecutions started for "irregularities" within the last two years, CBC president George Davidson informed the Commons public accounts committee today.

He did not specify the kinds of irregularities although he noted that the Commons broadcasting committee had questioned him last year on charges of "kickbacks."

"You haven't got 9,000 angels in the CBC," Mr. Davidson said in reply to questions from Harold Winch (NDP—Vancouver East).

Man Restrained On B.C. Flight

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — RCMP said today a man who tried to enter the cockpit on a CP Air flight from Vancouver to Prince George Wednesday night is being held in hospital here for observation.

The unidentified man, apparently suffering from a nervous breakdown, pounded on the door of the cockpit after kicking two passengers.

ordered a directive to be sent to all department heads during the next two days ordering them to stop talking to the press.

"That's what council wanted," he said this morning. "That's a council decision. They asked me to send that directive out."

The request for the directive came from council members at a dinner meeting held at the Imperial Inn 10 days ago. No minutes were kept of the meeting.

Haddock said the directive would not cut the press off from technical information.

"Department heads can still talk to you about technical things," he said. "They can provide you with the answers you want. But council doesn't want them making policy statements."

The directive, over the signature of City Manager Dennis Young, orders department heads not to engage in discussions with the press on matters not yet decided by council.

Young declined comment on the directive this morning other than to confirm it would be going out shortly at council's request.

The first familiarization meeting of Haddock's management committee will be held Friday. All council members are expected to be present when department heads outline their duties, their department aims and their personal aims.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Cloud was general over the province through the night while rain occurred intermittently along the coast. Clear periods were quite extensive thought the southern Interior. Temperatures ranged from 33 at Vancouver to eight above at Fort Nelson and to a minimum at Cranbrook of zero.

The weather system now approaching the B.C. coast will weaken as it moves inland into the interior but will carry some snow inland. Behind this disturbance conditions will improve with some sunshine expected in the interior and only a few showers on the coast Friday.

The Weather and You

By CARL RIBLET JR.

It isn't often that we shiver in these days of adequate clothing, sufficient indoor heat and mostly good health. In fact, I can't remember the last time I shivered. Why do you shiver then when you do?

You shiver when the loss of heat in your body is greater than the production of heat. When you are cold enough to shiver, the act of shivering creates heat in your body by liberating energy from the contraction of its muscles.

If you are cold and you find that you don't shiver enough to get a little bit warmer, try this remedy proposed by a doctor: Do some of those isometric exercises, the ones in which you push against a wall with all your might or link your hands together and pull each away from the other. You should work up a little more body heat for more comfort.

BLOSSOMS adorn this tree in Beacon Hill Park, but being the first Japanese plum tree to flower in Victoria doesn't guarantee its immunity from a little pruning today by city gardener Dan Luyk.

Average price of Victoria houses sold through multiple listing in 1969 was $4,954 higher than the previous year, or more than five times the increase in national average.

According to figures supplied by the Canadian Association of Real Estate Boards, the increase in Victoria's average sale price was the greatest of 12 representative cities across the country.

During 1969, the average multiple listing price in Victoria was $22,606, compared with $17,652 in 1968, ranking the city with Calgary, where the average price last year was $22,510. Edmonton, Regina, Saskatoon and Winnipeg all were lower, but the remaining six cities were all higher, up to $29,931 in Toronto.

The national average last year rose $979 to $23,281; the B.C. average $2,364 to $20,839; the Vancouver average $3,344 to $23,939.

Resale value of houses across Canada continued to climb last year, despite a decline in sales volume in most areas.

Total dollar volume of ML sales in Canada last year was $1.7 billion against $1.47 billion in 1968, up 16 per cent, but in the last half the national increase was only 7 per cent.

The number of ML sales fell in the final half, compared with a 12 per cent gain in the first half of 1969.

J. T. Blair Jackson, research director for CAREB in Toronto, said there is no lack of demand for reasonable priced housing, where adequate financing is available.

"High interest rates, scarcity of mortgage funds and unrealistic prices that are being asked by some vendors have no doubt contributed to the decline in sales activity," Jackson said.

Jury Rules Negligence In Drug Death

By NEILL GADDES

A coroner's jury ruled Wednesday night that the death of Douglas Hampton, 18, could have been prevented except for the ordinary negligence of Timothy Thornley, 19, who supplied him with a drink of Asthmador and water at a party Jan. 10.

The jury said Hampton met his death the night of the party at a Cordova Bay cottage through the use of the medication, usually used as an inhalant, which caused him to wander, dazed, into a Saanich irrigation pond where he drowned.

The decision, after a half-hour deliberation, ended the inquest that had 24 witnesses and more than 10 hours testimony and legal argument during four sittings.

Saanich police said this morning they intended further investigation of circumstances surrounding the death of Hampton.

Inspector John Post asked Thornley if he felt by supplying the Asthmador, he was acting in "wanton and reckless disregard for the lives of the people."

Thornley said he didn't think so.

Post, with Det.-Sgt. Robin Stewart, represented the Saanich police department throughout the inquest.

Earlier cross-examination by Post revealed that the witness had been in the army medical corps and had been instructed in the "extreme care" needed in administering drugs to patients.

Thornley, protected by the court by the Canada Evidence Act and the British Columbia Protection Act, agreed he had purchased the medication Jan. 9, the day before the party, but disagreed that he showed a wanton and reckless disragard.

Asked to Mix Asthmador

Thornley, on Post's instructions, mixed one full teaspoon of Asthmador powder in a glass of water and told the jury the resulting olive-green solution was similar to what he was drinking Jan. 10 when Hamtpon arrived at the cottage bout 8 p.m.

He said Hamtpon asked him what he was drinking, he told him Asthmador, and then Hampton asked if he could try some.

Thornley asked if he could handle it and Hampton replied he could.

The two then split the glass and Thornley stated Hampton got less than half the mixture.

Post pointed out that within three minutes of Thornley mixing the drink in the courtroom, there was a layer of sediment on the bottom of the glass.

Thornley had testified had testified he drank out of the glass first and Hampton drank after him which meant the deceased drank from the concentrated half of the solution.

Thornley said he had some Asthmador in water the day he bought it and "became quite tired and fell asleep for a few hours."

Paul Malkin, 4895 Cordova Bay, testified he came home from work Jan. 9 and found the can of Asthmador on a shelf.

He read the label which stated the contents included belladonna and from previous experience he knew it should not be taken internally.

"You don't realize what you are doing" was the warning Malkin gave the youths at the cottage at the time, pointing out the thirst and the hallucinations involved.

'I Didn't Want Any of It'

"I was going to throw it out, I just didn't want any part of it," he said but was talked out of it by the others.

Malkin later disposed of the Asthmador on the morning of Jan. 11 before he knew of the disappearance of Hampton.

Richard Rogers, 4627 Cordova Bay, told the jury he went to the party Jan. 10 and saw Hampton.

He said he asked "are you guys stoned?" of the youths gathered there and most said they were.

Rogers said he asked if the can of Asthmador he saw was what they had taken, someone replied it was and then he asked how to mix his own drink.

"I was feeling pretty tired," Robers said after he drank the drug and shortly afterward he decided to go home and sleep.

He said Hampton indicated he wanted to go too and they both left together to hitch-hike for home.

They got a ride to the intersection of Royal Oak and Cordova Bay, got out of the car, and Rogers saw Hampton start walking along Royal Oak with his guitar over his shoulder as he went in the opposite direction.

Another youth who was at the party testified he saw Hampton and he "looked pretty stoned."

The youth said he had seen several other youths under the influence of Asthmador earlier Jan. 10 and he did not want to take it himself.

Hampton's body was found Jan. 13 in an irrigation pond near the intersection where he was last seen by Rogers.

Coroner Edmond St. Jorre instructed the jury they could return a verdict of accidental death, if nc neglience was apparent, criminal negligence, if someone showed a flagrant disregard for the lives of others, or ordinary negligence, if inadventence on the part of someone was shown.

1,900 Phones Drowned Out

Heavy rains last week were responsible for between 1,800 and 1,900 Greater Victoria residents being without phones Wednesday.

B.C. Telephone officials located the break shortly after 8 a.m.

It occurred in a 1,200-pair underground cable at the corner of Roy and Carey.

Company spokesman Glynn Jones explained:

"The sleeve around the main cable broke away where the cable runs two feet under a culvert. The ground was pretty soggy from last week's rains and some of the moisture seeped in."

Jones said that two splicers worked all day, hooking up the lines gradually. The job was completed by 4:15 p.m.

The cable runs out of the company's Colquitz office.

Metro Health Board Seeks To Plead Cause to Bennett

Five Greater Victoria MLAs will be asked to plead the Metropolitan Board's cause to Premier Bennett.

The decision to call for assistance from the MLAs was made reluctantly by members of an ad hoc intermunicipal group Wednesday.

Council members from Victoria, Esquimalt and Oak Bay, plus school districts representatives and officials from the metro health board, had gathered to discuss Victoria's Feb. 23 deadline for a city pull-out.

Only a full meeting of city council and a reversal of a decision last Friday can change that date.

But Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread suggested the group call on the members of the legislature in one last attempt to persuade Health Minister Ralph Loffmark and Bennett that the situation is critical in the health services field.

Victoria Mayor Courtney Haddock siezed on the suggestion that further municipal-provincial talks be held and later announced that the district's five MLAs would meet health, school and municipal officials next Wednesday at 9 a.m.

While Haddock was optimistic that a further round of talks might break the financial log-jam, Oak Bay Mayor Frances Elford gloomily noted "it's just a fact, in the past diplomacy has gotten us nowhere."

Haddock said he was sure that once the MLAs saw what a strong stand was being taken they would insist on some action.

Victoria, Esquimalt and Oak Bay are threatening to withdraw from the public health organization unless per capital costs are equalized and the entire service regionalized.

This year marks the third year of negotiations with the provincial government.

Rubymay Parrott, chairman of both Saanich School Board and the metro health board, said she would prefer tougher action.

"What we want is a strong delegation to the premier," she said. "He's the man who holds the purse string. With all due respect to his abilities I don't think he's aware of what is going on. A strong delegation could tell him."

Haddock said he still preferred a conference with the MLAs.

"After all, he is the premier," he said. "He'd just call in the minister and the MLAs anyway."

While the three core municipalities are threatening to pull out at the municipal level the Greater Victoria School Board is threatening to do its own breakaway and establish a special health service for schools.

Dr. Donald Shorting, deputy chairman of the Greater Victoria board, admitted cost structure had not yet been discussed but he told the group that the mechanics of such a move had been studied in detail.

Both he and Mrs. Parrott claimed that schools did not receive service commensurate with the funds paid into the metro establishment.

Attending yesterday's meeting were Mayor Haddock, Victoria; Mayor Frances Elford, Oak Bay; Ald. Ken Hill, Esquimalt; Mrs. Parrott, schools and the health board; Ald. Tom Christie, Victoria's representative on the health board; Dr. Whitbread, city manager Dennis Young and treasurer Jim Bramley.

POOL COSTS SINK

All eight bids to build the new swimming pool in Saanich were below estimated construction costs.

The bids were officially opened Wednesday and were considered by the Gordon Head Community Centre Committee late today.

It was expected that the committee would make a recommendation to Monday night's council meeting. Construction could start in a few weeks and be finished in about six months.

Low bidder for the job was E. J. Hunter and Sons Ltd., at $401,384.

Other bids were Farmer Construction, $405,117; Bird Construction, $417,849; G. H. Wheaton, $419,617; Patterson Construction, $423,190; H. E. Fowler and Sons, $425,386; C. J. Oliver, $427,927; Allied Developments, $434,498.

Peterson and Lester, architects for the minicipal pool and community centre which will be built on the Lambrick Estate in Gordon Head, had estimated construction costs at $435,000.

A total of $470,000 is available from the 1967 recreation referendum for the project. In addition to construction costs, there are professional fees, some site work and a driveway.

The 25-metre pool will have four lanes and the building will also house a 64-by-40 community hall, a small stage and kitchen. It will be built at the Torquay-Feltham end of the 44-acre Lambrick Estate, which Saanich purchased in 1965.

REPORTER EJECTED

Red Power Talks Tough

By PAT DUFOUR

Red Power has come to Victoria through two militant Wednesday meetings attended by Indians determined to make their cause known through public disturbances.

Both meetings were organized by Indian students—the first at the Institute of Adult Studies, the Second at James Bay.

The first meeting was to organize a Native Student Association. It was attended by about 150 students.

Anti-white militancy was to the fore, beginning with ejection of the Times reporter by Larry Seymour, one of the leaders and a student at the institute.

Several of the students' teachers were at the meeting and were almost ejected as well.

Today a student told what happened:

"They took a vote after we were told that a reporter was thrown out and was uptight when she left. We all voted no white people could attend.

"Then it was pointed out that three or four of our teachers were there. They started to move toward the door. They were told to 'sit down, shut up and not speak unless they were spoken to.' "

The student said one male teacher, who normally takes publicity pictures, arrived with his camera and "ten big guys crowded around him, ready to get him out, until they found out he was a teacher."

The student also said the group repudiated all the local chiefs and their elders with the exception of Chief Philip Paul, who was at the meeting.

The emphasis throughout the meeting, the student added, was on militancy and the need for "direct confrontation" with the whites.

Uvic student Bill Wilson was elected president.

The evening meeting was to map out aggressive tactics, such as "kicking out windows."

Asked why every one at the institute meeting voted against whites being present, the student said "I guess we were intimidated."

Victoria Constable Peter Lund, who works with the Thunderbird People, a group dedicated to creating a transient and crisis centre for Indians, confirmed that the Native Student Association was Red Power-oriented.

"They're real trouble and the older Indians want nothing to do with it."

He said that the emergence of Red Power in the city threatened every step of progress made by his group.

"We're going to have an emergency meeting and lay it right on the line. Anyone who joins the association will have to get out. We can't afford to be connected with the militants."

Arthur Mayse . . .

AS A LOYAL TIMESMAN, I make it my business to read such gleanings as the opposition has managed to scrabble from the fields we reap by day. This check includes a coffee visit with our neighbor's syndicated troubleshooter, Ann Landers, who the other morning gave a wrong answer to a questioning child.

The kid's sense of fair play was outraged by a principal who punished a whole schoolful of students because a few had transgressed.

Faster than thought, Mrs. Landers issued the opinion that mass punishment is an effective technique, and that the innocent who are required to suffer for the sins of the guilty will bring these into line by applying moral persuasion.

This reply — and I'm confident that our Abigail Van Buren would agree — is so wrong morally and every other way that it shocks me.

What it implies is that the means justifies the end, that the kangaroo court and lynch law are to be condoned, and that for the sake of expediency, a basic tenet of law may be reversed.

This is that the burden of proof of guilt rests with the state, and that even at risk of letting a miscreant go free, the innocent mustn't be clobbered.

I don't suggest that the principal who applied so abhorrent a device must be a tyrant by nature. It's more likely that he's a harried, overworked executive afflicted by too much paperwork, too many extra-curricular demands on his time, and perhaps some such tension-induced ill as an ulcer or a pain in the neck.

But, extenuating circumstances or no, the tactic is a damaging one, especially when applied to children.

The child's sense of what's just and what isn't is very keen, and he is endowed with a memory like an elephant's for unjust acts committed against him. In adult life, when he has acquired a few injustices of his own to his discredit, he may preserve a hostile recollection of the old bat who kept the whole class in.

Even today, I haven't forgotten the teacher who decided that a well-strapped class would apply moral persuasion to its cutups. She bade us line ourselves around the hollow square of blackboards, then began in a methodical manner to deal out correction.

She started from up front, where most of the mild, well-behaved and short-sighted had been imprudent enough to position themselves. By the time she had licked these, her strap-arm was growing weary. It failed her completely before she had worked her way around to the other side where the culprits had gathered.

All she got out of her pogrom was a disaffected class and a touch of bursitis.

It should be noted, too, that indiscriminate punishment can't be depended on as a means of forcing the unjustly dealt with to apply 'moral' persuasion.

Hitler, this century's blackest monster to date, exerted just such pressure on the captive peoples of Europe, and thereby helped hasten his Third Reich's end as well as his own.

Devilled by guerrillas and saboteurs, his agents hung hostages in job lots. They butchered an entire village population.

The results were as history records them. Resistance movements strengthened rather than diminished. Saboteurs found more hidey-holes made available to them.

The very name of Lidice, where all were slaughtered, became a symbol of retribution.

This is a far cry from the classroom, but the principle applies to that hasty principal, and I trust his quite unworkable scheme for getting at the few through the many is not widely employed.

If minor injustices must be applied — and not one of us chugs along through life without bumping our noses on a few — let them at least be administered on an individual basis. That way, they leave fewer scars and may even have a certain value.

They induce stubborness, which is not necessarily a bad quality, and they may strengthen an interest that might have failed from lack of opposition.

A keen and exceptionally well-informed reader once told me that she was punished for venturing ahead of her grade. She had borrowed a next-grade English textbook, and was apprehended on school property with her nose in the forbidden volume.

"What struck me as completely unjust," she said, "wasn't that I should get into trouble for reading ahead, but for reading on my own time."

Injustice in that case presented a challenge, but sharing a mass rap for sins one hasn't had the pleasure of committing offers no such benefit, in school or out.

9 IN MEMORIAM

EATON—In fond and loving memory of a dear son and brother and dad, Richard Stephen Eaton, who passed away suddenly, on the Island of Rhodes, Jan. 28, 1968.
—Very sadly missed by all the family.

FRENCH—In loving memory of our dear Jack, passed away Jan. 29, 1969.

Lovingly remembered.
—Lou, Doris and Ernie.

FRENCH—In loving memory of my dear husband, Jack (John Andrew French), passed away Jan. 29, 1969.

There is a link death
cannot sever,
Love and remembrance
last forever.
—Gertie.

HAYWARD—In loving memory of our grandmother and great grandmother, Alice Maud Hayward, who passed away Jan. 29, 1969.
—Ever remembered by Heather, Mary, Verne and Leslie Ann.

HAYWARD—In loving memory of a dear sister and aunt, Alice Maud Hayward, who passed peacefully away Jan. 29, 1969.

Loving thoughts, silently kept
Of the sister we loved and will never forget.
—Ever remembered by Ann Haggart and Dorothy MacIvor.

HAYWARD — In loving memory of Mother and grandmother, Mrs. Alice M. Hayward, who passed away January 29, 1969.

And while she lies in peaceful
sleep
Her memory we shall always keep.
—Sadly missed by Gene, Alf, Diane, and George.

SPAVEN — In loving memory of Mrs. Agnes Spaven, who passed away Jan. 29, 1965.

Dear mother, you are not forgotten,
Though on earth you are no
more,
Still in memory you are with us
As you always were before.
—Loving daughter, Agnes.

STEPHENS—In loving memory of dear Bill who passed away Jan. 29, 1960.

Not dead to me who loved him,
Not lost, but gone before;
He lives with me in memory
And will forever more.
Just until the day break.
—Sadly missed by Lillian.

BOARD OF GOVERNORS FOR CITY?

Council Faces Major Shakeup

—CP Wirephoto

HAPPY PASSENGERS disembark from P. & O. liner Oronsay today following two weeks of voluntary quarantine in Vancouver harbor after outbreak of typhoid fever made them virtual prisoners on board. Some of the 1,500 passengers and crew are to be airlifted to Australia and New Zealand, and the ship is to resume its cruise Monday.

Welfare End Forecast Again

Social Welfare Minister Phil Gaglardi promised Wednesday to "get rid of the whole basis of welfare" in an overhaul of his department's role.

Welfare recipients can look forward to being "useful," he told reporters in an interview after addressing the legislature in the throne speech debate.

In the four minutes devoted to welfare department matters during his 43 minute address, Gaglardi said "we want to challenge and utilize the talents and abilities of people."

Noting that the social welfare department would be renamed the department of rehabilitation, Gaglardi said:

"This rehabilitation business should be one of the biggest things ever to happen in the 1970s."

"The whole philosophy will be changed," he said, adding it wouldn't cost "a dime more."

DIGNITY

Outside the house, Gaglardi said it is important welfare recipients have "dignity and status" and added:

"The way to do that is to make them useful. That's all I want to say at this time."

Gaglardi told the legislature that 1,150 jobs have been found so far by the Provincial Alliance of Businessmen, an agency he has headed since mid-1969.

Given jobs were 350 people who were taken off welfare, said Gaglardi, adding that the others were probably "heading straight for the welfare department," if they remained unemployed.

In other remarks, Gaglardi stressed that the 1970s should be a "human era" in which people get together and solve their problems.

Jets Hit Jordan

By The Associated Press

Israeli jets struck Arab guerrilla positions at three places in Jordan today, and the Israeli command said all the planes returned safely.

One 15-minute raid north of the Dead Sea hit near the village of Shunat Nimrin.

Two raids took place south of the Sea of Galilee in the Beisan Valley.

Nigeria Jails Missionaries

LAGOS (Reuters)—A Nigerian court has sentenced 20 Roman Catholic missionaries—17 Irish and three British—to six months imprisonment for illegally entering Nigeria, reliable sources said today.

The 20 are among 32 missionaries being held in the eastern Nigerian city of Port Harcourt who worked in the former secessionist region during the 30-month civil war.

The sources said that because the 20 had been sentenced on a technical rather than a criminal charge it is expected they would be released within a week.

Two of the missionaries, who entered the eastern region before secession, were released, the sources said.

The others, including five nuns of the Holy Rosary and Presentations orders, were fined sums ranging from £10 to £50 Nigerian pounds (about $40 to $222), the sources added.

Roman Catholic sources in Lagos said the 32 missionaries were taken from the hotel and officers' mess in which they had been detained since the end of the war and were questioned Monday.

Each of the 30 sentenced signed a statement acknowledging that they had entered Nigeria illegally and worked without the approval of immigration offices, the sources said.

DEPORTATION ORDERED

Earlier, sources reported that all 32 would be deported and that all had been found guilty. The earlier report also said that they all were issued deportation orders at Port Harcourt and were expected to be put aboard a flight out of Lagos by Friday.

All the Irish priests are members of the Holy Ghost order.

Twenty-three of the missionaries were being held under house arrest in Port Harcourt's Cedar Palace Hotel, while the others were in enforced residence at a Nigerian officers' mess, the sourcs said.

Catholic sources in Lagos reported that 28 other priests, still working in the war-devastated region, have been ordered by the Nigerian military authorities to return to Port Harcourt and were expected to appear in the same magistrates' court.

Most of the Roman Catholic missionaries in former Biafra were connected with the Roman Catholic relief organization, Caritas.

The Associated Press said that in Dublin, the office of Prime Minister Jack Lynch said it learned 17 priests were given six-month jail terms. The other eight, it said, were fined $56 each but were allowed to remain at Port Harcourt.

PLEDGE that there will be no "Nuremburg trials" of defeated Biafran leaders was given today by Nigerian leader Maj.-Gen. Yakubu Gowon.

'LEGALIZE DRUG IF WIDESPREAD'

OTTAWA (CP) — Health Minister John Munro said Wednesday that "if we find that a significant minority of the Canadian people smoke marijuana we would be totally irresponsible if we didn't legalize it."

Pressed by Carleton University students at the taping of the syndicated television program Under Attack, Munro said if the report of the government commission studying drug use reveals widespread use of marijuana, it should be legalized, even if that involves some health danger.

The parliamentary report of the commission, headed by Gerald Le Dain, dean of the University of Toronto law school, will be available "by the end of February," the health minister said.

Armed Shopkeepers Ruled Out by A-G

A proposal to arm British Columbia property owners and shopkeepers against holdups has received the cold shoulder from Attorney-General Leslie Peterson.

He said Wednesday he has no intention of extending the use of small firearms, following such a suggestion by Vancouver Provincial Judge Les Bewley.

"I am beginning to suspect," the judge said, "that if citizens and property owners were allowed to carry guns, crime would be greatly reduced.

"We can't expect police to do all the work, having so few of them," he said during the trial of a 19-year-old charged with attempted robbery.

The suspect, who pleaded guilty, had attempted to hold up a Vancouver shopkeeper with a toy gun. The merchant, 65-year-old Ernest Lavoie, pulled his own gun from a drawer and held the would-be bandit until police arrived.

Vancouver's city prosecutor Stewart McMorran was also cool to the suggestion from Bewley. He called it a "dangerous and disastrous" idea.

"There are too many incidents of people going for guns and getting shot themselves," he said. "Three people have died that way in Vancouver."

Directive Muzzles Staff

By JIM HUME

Mayor Courtney Haddock today announced plans to reorganize Victoria city administration and at the same time sharply curb the flow of information to the public.

Interviewed this morning Haddock said he thought he would publicly announce his streamlining plans to the Victoria Rotary Club early this afternoon.

The mayor will propose that the city have a three-tier government comprised of a board of management, an executive committee and a board of governors.

The board of management, says Haddock, would be formed from all city department heads plus one or two elected officials.

The executive committee would consist of the city manager, the city comptroller "and possibly others."

Both board of management and the executive committee would be closed to the press, Haddock said.

Only at the board of governor level — Haddock's new name for city council — would the press be permitted to attend meetings.

"What I'm trying to do is reconcile my business training with effective administration at city hall," the mayor said. "Maybe it won't work. If it doesn't we can always try something else.

"What I'm striving for is total involvement of all departments so that one department knows what the other department is doing. It may take two or three meetings to make it work."

Haddock said the new administrative structure would not curb the traditional and statutory powers of city council.

"They will still be the policy makers," he said. "All the management team and the executive team will do is bring forward ideas. The board of governors will still decide whether or not to go ahead with those ideas."

Asked whether he thought the tax paying public had a right to know what debate led to decisions, Haddock said he thought the public would have ample opportunity to hear the facts when the matter came before the board of governors.

In addition to keeping from the public early debate on civic issues Haddock said that he had

Benguet Still Involved

The New Democratic Party today released copies of a letter indicating that the Grand Bahama Port Authority, a subsidiary of Consolidated Benguet Inc., still feels it has an opportunity to develop Cypress Bowl.

Gordon Dowding (NDP — Burnaby Edmonds) said this morning he will ask in the legislature today how "this impression is still possessed" by Wallace Groves, chairman of the port authority.

Benguet, through the Bahamian company, was described by Resources Minister Ray Williston as an unacceptable partner in the development in a Nov. 28 letter he wrote to Alpine Outdoor Recreation Resources, original bowl promoter which was taken over by Benguet last fall.

Benguet's gambling casino interests in the Bahamas were given as the reason for their rejection by the government after a prolonged controversy over their involvement.

FULL-SCALE PLAN

The proposed ski development in the West Vancouver bowl was originally scheduled to have only hotel and alpine-village type accommodation but Benguet's plans apparently involved full-scale residential development as well.

Opposition Leader Dave Barrett released the Groves' letter, dated Jan. 16, after having failed Monday to get an answer from the government on whether Benguet had been told "that they are out . . . or are they still under the impression that they can go ahead."

Barrett said he wrote to Groves Dec. 2 to get more information on what Benguet had in mind for Cypress Bowl. He said today that he appears to have learned more from Benguet than the attorney-

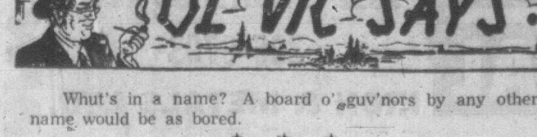
Three Men Indicted In Yablonski Death

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal grand jury today indicted Paul Eugene Gilly, Aubran Wayne Martin and Claude Edward Vealey on charges of conspiring to kill union leader Joseph A. Yablonski Dec. 31.

Attorney-general John N. Mitchell said the three were named in a seven-count indictment handed down in Cleveland.

Named as co-conspirators in an alleged plot to kill Yablonski, United Mine Workers leader who was defeated for the union presidency last year, were James Charles Phillips, Annette Gilly and other persons whose names are unknown.

Phillips and Mrs. Gilly were not actually indicted.



Whut's in a name? A board o' guv'nors by any other name would be as bored.
